Mr. C's Robbed

Mr. C's IGA foodliner located on South Main Street was broken into and burglarized early today. The entry was discovered by an employe, W. A. Ancell, who reported the theft at 7:15 a.m.

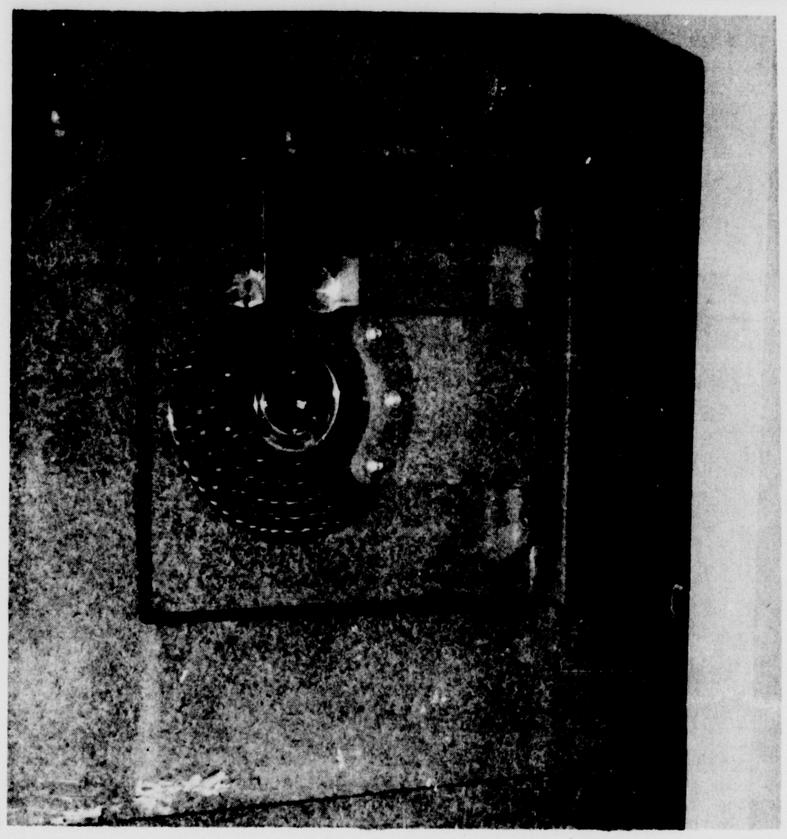

Entry was made through the front doors where the burglars knocked the lock out of the double doors and prized them open.

Reported taken were $15 in pennies and an undetermined amount of cigarettes and whiskey.

The burglars attempted to open the safe but were unsuccessful. They knocked the dials and knobs off. A cash register was damaged as they entered it. There was no money in the register.

Police are investigating, but no clues have been found.

An inventory of the store is being made to determine if other items were taken.

52 Students to Graduate From New Madrid School

NEW MADRID -- Fifty-two students will graduate from New Madrid high school in the class of 1966 and formal services for the seniors are planned for next week, according to Glenn Dyke, principal of the high school.

Baccalaureate Services will be held at the high school auditorium Sunday evening, beginning at 8 p.m. and the baccalaureate address will be given by Fr. John E. Wells, assistant pastor of Immaculate Conception church.

Invocation at the service will be by Rev. Sylvan Nussbaum of the First Methodist church and benediction will be by Rev. Paul Davidson of the Pentecostal church.

Two numbers will be rendered by the Girls' Glee Club of New Madrid high school.

Commencement Exercises will be held at the auditorium Thursday evening, May 19, at 8 p.m., when the 52 graduating seniors will receive their diplomas from Harry Leuer, president of the Board of Education.

Dr. Frank Wiley, superintendent of schools, will give the Welcome and Principal Dyke will present awards.

There will be addresses by the class valedictorian and salutatorian, but the names of those two students have not been announced.

Invocation and benediction at the Commencement will be by Rev. J. C. Thedford of the New Madrid Baptist church and there will be music by the New Madrid high school band and a song by the school's mixed chorus.

Kathy Williams Is Named Little Miss Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD -- Kathy Williams, six-year-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Williams was crowned 1966 "Little Miss Bloomfield" Friday night by Angela Holland 1965 Little Miss Bloomfield. Her attendants were Shari Snider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Snider, and Amanda Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hopkins. Crown bearer was Lloyd Kerner. Natalie Street carried the lovely bouquet of red roses to be presented to Miss Williams.

The ninth annual contest was sponsored by the Amvet Auxiliary Post 28. Auxiliary president, Mrs. Richard Sanderson gave the welcome with Mrs. Lloyd Snider acting as mistress of ceremonies, introducing the 36 little contestants. Mrs. Bill Roudeseal, Mrs. Bill Sibold and Dorothy Grinn, all of Dexter, were the judges.

Proceeds from the contest are used for a student award to a graduating senior. The name of the recipient will be announced at the graduating exercises.

Drug Out Of Control

WASHINGTON AP -- A pioneer experimenter with the drug LSD, Dr. Timothy Leary, acknowledged today that use of the drug was out of control. He estimated that one-third of the nation's college students are "experimenting with this drug."

But Leary told the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency:

"The use of LSD by young people has provoked a crisis, not a crisis of peril but a crisis of challenge."

Leary, a former Harvard University phychologist, is now a director of private foundation dealing in research on LSD and similar hallucinogenic agents, and is appealing a 30-year sentence for transporting marijuana.

He defended what he saw as proper use of the drug and called alcohol a much more dangerous substance. Leary said LSD has "an eerie power to release ancient energies from the human brain, I would say even sacred energies."

LSD is a hallucinogenic agent derived from plant fungus.

Leary ran into some sharp cross-examination from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Leary suggested that legislation be passed that would allow responsible adults to use the drug for "spiritual growth and pursuit of knowlede. . ."

He also suggested that colleges be authorized to conduct alergy courses in LSD and said such courses "will end the indiscriminate use of LSD and be the most popular and productive courses ever offered."

To this, Kennedy demanded: "What's going to happen to the boy who doesn't get to college? Are you going to offer high school courses as well?"

Leary said it was a question that would probably have to be left to research.

Program For Chemistry Teachers at Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Southeast Missouri State College Chemistry Department will offer courses this summer designed both as a part of a series leading to the master of arts degree, and to implement the new curriculum for high school chemistry currently published by the State Department of Education.

According to Dr. E. L. Bahn, Jr., head of the department, the program for this summer includes a course in Basic Concepts of Inorganic and Physical Chemistry, for three semester hours of credit. The course is intended to be modern background material and offers additional preparation for teachers already having a major in chemistry at the undergraduate level.

In addition, Dr. Bahn said, a course entitled Modern High School Chemistry for Teachers, for five semester hours, will embody the material set out in the Chemical Education Material Study program, widely accepted by many schools in Missouri as a guide in the new high school chemistry curriculum.

Although this program is designed for chemistry teachers with an undergraduate major in chemistry, teachers without this background will be counseled and placed into courses to complement their academic background, he said.

Inquiries, Dr. Bahn said, should be directed to him at the college in Cape Girardeau.

Search for Armed Abductor Continues

SHADE GAP, Pa. AP -- About 400 armed men began the third day of a massive manhunt for Peggy Ann Bradnick, 17, and her abductor. Searchers were attempting to cover every square foot of the heavily wooded, mountainous area where she was kidnapped.

State police said the searchers, including state and local police, FBI agents and between 200 and 300 volunteers, began fanning out around this community about 70 miles southwest of the state capital of Harrisburg.

It was near Shade Gap that the abductor jumped from the woods and grabbed the girl Wednesday afternoon as she was returning home from school with her sisters and brothers.

So far no clues have been discovered, police said.

Assisted by the FBI agents, hundreds of volunteers carrying rifles and shotguns, more than 100 state troopers already had spent more than 24 hours tramping through the woods when darkness, dense fog and heavy rain halted the search Thursday night.

But even after the main operation was called off, small patrols remained in the area and continued to search throughout the night.

State police said a 13-state alarm had been posted for the abductor as "a routine procedure."

Shade Gap is a community of 140 persons about 60 miles west of Harrisburg, Pa.

State police said a description of the girl's abductor seems to match that of a mysterious sniper residents call the Mountain Man. He suddenly appears out of the woods, fires a rifle and then disappears back in the woods. Two persons have been wounded by him, police said.

The abduction occurred, police said, on a dirt road about a quarter of a mile from the girl's home.

Five Year Old Dies

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. AP -- A-five-year-old boy who was beaten by a babysitter died Thursday night.

James Wayne King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester King, was taken to the hospital late Monday after his mother returned home and found him severely beaten.

An autopsy was to be performed today.

The 16-year-old babysitter, Harold Edward Henry Jr. is being held in jail on charges of child beating and County Attorney Edward J. Chapman, Jr., filed an additional charge of second degree manslaughter this morning.

The youth said in a statement that he hit the child with a softball bat, a plastic bat and his fists when he would not answer a question by the babysitter. The youth had been hired by the mother to sit with her five children.

The beaten child suffered a ruptured pancreas, a ruptured intestine, two broken ribs and other internal injuries plus bruises and abrasions.

Publisher Pleads Guilty to Tax Evasion

ST. LOUIS AP -- Wallace M. Jenkins, publisher of the South Missourian-Democrat at Alton, Mo., pleaded guilty today to charges that he failed to file a federal income tax return in 1960 and 1962.

Judge John O'Regan accepted the plea and said he would sentence Jenkins May 27. The government alleged that Jenkins had a gross income of $21,356 in 1960 and $23,908 in 1962.

Similar charges for the years 1959 and 1961 were not prosecuted by the U. S. district attorney.

Small Boy Killed in Car Accident

Kenneth Eugene Poole, 22-month-old son of Mrs. Rita Louise Strickland, 19, route four, Poplar Bluff, died in an accident Thursday at 12:30 p.m. from the impact after striking a bridge.

The accident occurred on highway 142, one - fourth mile south of Poplar Bluff. The mother told the patrol an unidentified car was approaching the bridge from the opposite direction, causing her 1963 Plymouth to strike the side of the bridge to avoid hitting the car.

The mother was taken to the Poplar Bluff Hospital, suffering from a concussion, a broken ankle and bruises. The body of the child was taken to the Frank Cottrell Funeral Home, Poplar Bluff.

The patrol reported the child was the 42nd highway death this year in Southeast Missouri, compared to 57, last year at this time.

City Arrests

Sikeston police reported that four persons received summons to appear in court before Judge E. R. Schrader on charges of not having a city auto sticker. Lee Comstock, 2111 Indiana, George Griffin, 1407 Washington, Jerry D. Jackson, 306 Sunset Drive, and Homer Lee Green, 117 W. Wakefield, who was also charged with failure to stop at a stop sign, as was H. J. Blankenship, 228 N. Handy.

Donald M. Bromley, East Prairie, was charged with not having proper registration for car.

Earl Leslie Riley, East Prairie, was charged with Curfew Violation.

Charged with public intoxication was James Burnett of Wadsworth, Kansas.

Arbitration Board to Consider Boundary Dispute

CHARLESTON -- Thurman Propst of Sedgewickville has been named the "third person" and chairman of a board of arbitration which will meet Saturday to consider the boundary dispute between Charleston and East Prairie school districts.

Announcement of Propst's appointment by the State Board of Education was revealed Wednesday night at the R-1 Board meeting.

The Arbitration board will hold its first session at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Circuit Courtroom of the courthouse at Benton, with representatives from both districts on hand to present their side of the case.

The R-1 board designated Superintendent W. R. Pierce Jr. and Attorney Clifton Banta to represent them at the hearing.

At stake before the arbitrators is a 33-square mile area now in the Charleston R-1 district. At the annual school election April 5, voters in the East Prairie district approved the transfer of this territory to the R-2 district, while voters in the Charleston district rejected the transfer.

Under state law, the board of arbitration cannot compromise the matter, but must award the entire area involved to one or the other district.

The other two members of the board are Mississippi County Board President Lloyd Hall and New Madrid County Board President Lyle Bird.

In other action Wednesday night, the R-1 Board:

--Heard a report from CHS guidance counselor Bob Entrekin on his trip to the national convention of the American Personnel and Guidance Association in Washington, D. C.

--Approved a request from Assistant Superintendent Bill Hodges to attend an in-service training workshop for school administrators at Lake Arrowhead, Calif., July 17 to 29.

--Set June 11 at 2 p.m. as the date and time of a public auction at which the house on Danforth Street constructed by the building trades class will be sold. The board said the minimum acceptable bid will be the amount of money the district has put into the house. This figure will not be known for about two weeks.

--Authorized Superintendent Pierce to negotiate for purchase of the lot next to the house just completed. This lot will be used for construction of another house by next year's building trades class.

--Voted to remove the south and east bleachers at the foot ball stadium because of their unsafe condition. A replacement will be considered later.

--Declined to make an exception to a board policy on children attending school in the attendance area in which they live. Mrs. Tommy Hess had requested a transfer from Wyatt to Charleston for her daughter, Robin.

--Approved a resolution authorizing printing and delivery of the $1,400,000 in bonds for the new high school.

--Instructed the superintendent to report at the June meeting on the best way to invest funds received from the sale of the bonds. Some of the funds will not be needed for a full 12 months after the bonds are are sold, and the investment of these funds would bring the district as much as $32,000 in additional revenue, Pierce told the board.

--Approved a contract with the city of Charleston, giving the city title to the A. D. Simpson Park in exchange for services to be provided by the city at the new high school site.

--Heard a written report from Mrs. Virginia Crenshaw on her attendance at the Governor's Conference on Libraries in St. Louis last month.

Clem Farr versus Liza Farr -- decree to plantiff.

Ruby J. Hendrix versus Glenn H. Hedrix -- decree to plaintiff with care and custody of one child and $40 per month child support.

Audra Mae Langston versus Raymond R. Langston -- decree to plantiff.

Six Persons Given Emergency Treatment

Six persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Thursday:

Public to be Barred

WASHINGTON AP -- U. S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled today the public will be barred when pre-trial statements are taken from witnesses in the $5 million libel suit filed by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., against newspaper columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson.

The pre-trial depositions will be started later this month.

Holtzoff postponed a decision on a request that Dodd bring documents relating to his income taxes, political campaign contributions, and dealings with industrial interests when he appears at the deposition hearing.

Pearson and Anderson wrote a series of articles early this year alleging official misconduct by the 57-year-old Dodd. The senator answered with a libel and conspiracy suit last Friday, denying the allegations, which a Senate committee also is investigating at Dodd's request.

Pump Stolen

Richard Hill, 508 Malcolm, reported to Sikeston police that a gas engine tree, sprig pump on a frame valued at $100 had been taken from his carport and 1 pair of tree plummers valued at $10.

Sikeston police are investigating.

The annual Senior high school open house, will begin tonight at 6:30 p.m., with tours of every classroom, trade and technical rooms. The public is invited to see this wide variety of displays by the students.

Students will accompany parents to 18 rooms of social studies and languages, in the "C" building, where accomplishments by the students for the past year are displayed. A tour of the library will also be made.

A tour of the "A" building, will find displays in mathematics, typing and business arithmetic.

In the "B building, a tour of displays by students in home economics, design drafting, art, refrigeration, electronics and welding, will be shown.

Displays to be found in the "G" building, include business education, graphic arts, cooperative occupational and distributive education.

The tour of the "H" building will be an auto mechanics, body and fender work, and power machinery mechanics.

A trip to the gymnasium will give the visitors a 30-minute session by boys and girls gym classes. The girls' gymastics will be held from 7 to 7:30 p.m. in physical activities, and includes tumbling and calisthenics. The boys program will follow, from 7:30 to 8 p.m., with a program of wrestling, basketball and volleyball.

In the event weather will permit, the open house will end at the band shell, with a band concert by the senior high school band, beginning at 8 p.m.

State NAHR Meet Closes

The state-wide meeting of the National Association of Housing Redevelopment, is in session today at the Holiday Inn. It opened last night at 7 p.m. with 40 persons registering. There were a few over 30 more who registered today, before the business session opened at 9:30 a.m., with the address of welcome by Mayor Kendall Sikes.

The more than 70 persons were present from every section of Missouri to hear a discussion on new programs in urban renewal, as well as trends in public housing.

The afternoon session opened at 2 p.m. with a discussion on new assistance programs on urban renewal and public housing, with C. M. Harris of Jefferson City, agent for urban affairs, with a panel of five men, representing all phases of the program.

Committee reports were heard prior to adjournment at 4:30 p.m. today, followed by a banquet at 7 p.m., with a film entitled "No Time For Ugliness."

The weekend statewide meeting will end with a breakfast, presided over by the newly elected chairman. Billy C. Hanna, local housing authority, is host to the outstate housing representatives.

Crippled Youth Saves Life

CHARLESTON -- A crippled youngster, Gary Guerra, 13, fished a four - year -old companion from the water May 5, and apparently should be credited with saving the child's life.

The child is, William Glass, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Q. Glass of Charleston.

Gary's mother, Mrs. R. F. Guerra, said Tuesday her son, crippled since birth by paralysis in both legs, was fishing by himself in a cove of the lake, when he heard William's sister, Elizabeth Ann, scream that her brother had fallen into the water.

The Guerras, Glasses, Mr. and Mrs. William Love, and Mrs. Howard Rice had gone to the lake for an afternoon of fishing and picknicking.

Mrs. Guerra said Gary ran the 200 feet to where William had gone under, dived in, and rescued the child. She said William and Elizabeth had wandered away from the rest of the party, and that no one but Gary could have reached the boy in time to save him. Artificial respiration was not needed.

Gary is a good swimmer, his mother added.

He is scheduled for leg surgery on June 6 at Campbell's Clinic, Memphis, Mrs. Guerra said. He will be in the hospital for two weeks, and then in a cast for three months. One reason for the May 5 trip, she said, was to give Gary an outing before he entered the hospital.

The tragic headlines which announce the loss of American lives in Viet Nam makes us constantly aware of the senselessness of war. The only consolation -- if, indeed, there is any consolation -- is that this fight in a steaming far-away land is being waged in the name of freedom and decency.

But there are other tragic headlines. Too many, in fact. And we manage to turn away from them without compassion.

These are the headlines dealing with the loss of life on U. S. highways.

Yet when we use these editorial columns to discuss highway safety (there, we've said it!), we can almost sense the curtain of callousness being drawn down -- an invisible barrier between the printed page and the thinking mind.

This fails to alter the fact that our highway casualty list is tragic. Perhaps even more tragic than our losses in Viet Nam.

In Viet Nam the losses are suffered in the name of a worthy cause.

On our highways, the atrocities are committed for the worst possible causes.

Such causes as "Get-there-before-the-other-guy" . . . . and "Hurry-up-and-wait" . . . and "I'll-take-my-share-of-the-road-anyway."

Last year 48,500 men, women and children were killed on the nation's roadways. That represents approximately the entire population of a city such as Coral Gables, Fla. . . . or Beverly Hills, Calif. . . . or Hoboken, N. J. . . . or Fargo, N.D.

Doesn't that merit your attention for a few moments?

Last year 4,100,000 persons were hurt in traffic accidents. That represents nearly half the population of New York City.

Doesn't that make you stop and think?

As a responsible newspaper, we are frustrated as we attempt to help alleviate this gruesome problem. We can put it on the printed page for all to read.

But who's to read it?

And who will take it to heart enough to do his part?

How do we convince our citizens that they should stop murdering themselves on the highway?

Editorial columns do not really provide the solution.

But you do. We all do --- as good citizens. Every time we get behind the wheel.

WHERE THE PRESS STARTED

The dividing line between a government-controlled and a free press probably came in 1735. A little-known German printer named John Peter Zenger, who published a weekly newspaper in New York City, reported corruption in the colonial government and was thrown in jail on the charge of libel by the colonial governor.

Andrew Hamilton, a famous Philadelphia lawyer, came to Zenger's defense and won a "not guilty" verdict on the basis that Zenger had printed the truth.

The belief that democracy should be based on a press free from government control grew, and Thomas Jefferson said:

"Were it left for me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government I would not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter. But I should mean that every man should receive those papers and be capable of reading them."

Jefferson's ideas were incorporated into the Constitution of the United States of America -- and the first of the 10 amendments known as the Bill of Rights provides for the freedom of the press. Article I of the Bill of Rights states specifically that:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press . . ."

Building on this foundation, many state legislatures over the years have passed a number of supplementary laws designed to protect and defend the people's right to know.

Are you too embarrassed to hitchhike?

Are you tired of walking from your car after it breaks down, to the nearest service station?

If you are, read on.

What follows is a list of items to carry in your car. Most people, we agree, know that they SHOULD carry these things, but, nevertheless, we know that most people don't. In case you're in the mood to stock your car now with some trouble-avoiding items, though, here's the list for your convenience:

--Flashlight. For an emergency light under the hood and for checking tires at night.

--Spare tire, jack and lug wrench. Don't laugh. Many people discover only when a tire goes flat that they don't have a spare, or that it doesn't have air in it.

--Warning signal, such as a flare or flasher in case of breakdown.

--First-Aid kit. List blood types of the members of your family and paste it under the lid.

--Your insurance identification card. It's surprising to hear from insurance agents how many customers don't call them after an accident, because they forgot their card or even the name of their insurance company.

A sturdy chain or rope can be indispensable if you need a tow in case of engine breakdown.

Dark glasses, small change in a holder (for emergency phone calls from isolated spots) and a detailed map of your local area also can help you avoid pestiferous inconveniences. Often it's easier to find your way to the other side of the country than the other side of town.

For people who don't go south for the winter, tire chains and a windshield scraper are life savers. So are a bucket of sand or skid pads, a folding shovel -- and a warm blanket in case you become snowbound.

To people who tend to procrastinate we can only say: Force yourself! Buy that spare tire now. The time you save will be your own.

The constant use of advertising means a saving to the retailer as well as to the consumer.

Advertising affects various segments of the economy to produce the savings. It stimulates growth in demand. The increased demand causes more efficient methods of production, resulting in increased productivity per worker.

The consumer then gets an increase in real income. With the extra income he in turn buys more goods which protect his own job through the increased business activity in his community.

Advertising causes other savings for the consumer and retailer. It eliminates costly personal selling goods are sold for a small cost.

Advertising stimulates the use and development of cheaper methods of production and research, making each business more productive. By helping to pre-sell the consumer, it eliminates inefficiencies and promotes the growth of self-service retailing.

Once the advertiser is in full swing he can maintain the more extensive business he is doing by continued advertising.

Increased advertising, if planned effectively, most often pays for itself several times over. Even as the retailer gains excess profits from increased sales, the consumer is able to buy goods at less cost.

VALIANT EFFORT GAINING GROUND

"We are turning the corner in our fight against the cardiovascular diseases."

This good news comes from noted heart specialist, Dr. Paul Dudley White, who was able to go on record with the statement recently for the first time in his 55-year medical career. Speaking as the 1966 Heart Fund campaign got under way, Dr. White cited these declines in the cardiovascular death rate since 1950:

Down 12 per cent among infants under 5 years of age; down 38 per cent for persons between 5 and 24; down 10 per cent among those aged 25 through 44; down 24 per cent among women from 45 to 64; and down 7 per cent among men between 45 and 64.

To put it another way, if the 1950 death rate for heart and blood vessel diseases had persisted to 1963 (the last year for which there are complete statistics), 40,000 more Americans would have died that year than actually did die, including 11,000 in the critical 45-to-64 male age group.

These dramatic benefits were made possible in huge measure by the many millions of dollars that have been contributed to the American Heart Association by people in their local communities.

Dr. White emphasized, however, that heart and blood vessel diseases are still the nation's leading killers, causing close to one million deaths each year. This is more than all other causes of death combined.

He also pointed out that the 7 per cent improvement among men aged 45 to 64 is not as encouraging as it appears to be. This is an AVERAGE decline, reflecting reduction in deaths from stroke, hypertension and other cardiovascular diseases.

The death rate from heart attacks alone has actually gone up by 5 per cent among men in this group.

"Here is our greatest challenge today," said Dr. White. "We must not rest on our laurels while we are losing hundreds of thousands of men in their prime and of our youngsters soon after birth."

We are turning the corner in the battle against heart disease, but it is a wide corner and this is certainly no time to start applying the brakes or to cut off the fuel.

NEW YORK AP-- Are you losing social status in your community because your friends and neighbors have more interesting diseases than you do?

Take stock of yourself. A good self-inventory may reveal you are one of the lucky ones.

For example, let us investigate your fears. Psychiatry now has a high-sounding name for practically every fear in the human catalog of error.

No doubt, like many people, you feel that you aren't being promoted on your job fast enough. Put yourself down as a victim of taphephobia, the fear of being buried alive.

On the other hand, perhaps you worry because your boss is throwing more chores your way than you feel you can handle. Clearly you are suffering from hypengyophobia, the fear of responsibility.

Does your bartender habitually put too much lemon juice in your daiquiris. Let him know that you're an acerophobiac, one who fears sourness. If his martinis are too wet, tell him you're a lifelong hygrophobiac, one who fears moisture.

Millions of straphanging subway riders endure stasibasiphobia, the fear of having to stand up, and the condition probably is incurable -- as there never have been and never will be enough seats on the subway.

Two ailments which might help improve children for which few have today are mastigophobia, fear of flogging, and rhabdophobia, fear of the rod.

Don't apologize any more if you find many modern novels unreadable and most modern art meaningless. It isn't your fault. You've just got symbolophia, the fear of symbolism.

Practically none of us can stand the thought of growing old. That's because since youth worship is so widespread--we are gnawed by chronophobia, the fear of time.

Guys who dislike dancing with tall girls are plagued with hysophobia, the fear of height.

If you're a wife and think your husband is telling fibs about having to stay late at the office, you've got a bad case of mythophobia, the fear of myths.

Afraid the computer will throw you out of work? That's mechanophobia, fear of machines.

Maybe civilization upsets you so much that you can't think of anything that doesn't frighten you. Well, you've got the big-package deal disease--pantophobia, the fear of everything.

Columnists, of course, aren't spared from the general panic. Their occupational disease is the most terrifying of all-graphophobia, the fear of writing.

West Coast Longshoremen Attack Eastern Dockers' Boycott of Viet Cong and Communist China.

Seattle: -- They're more China - conscious here.

Especially the longshoremen up and down this coast. Their leaders campaign for U. S. trade with Communist China. They want no boycott of North Viet Nam.

It is their privilege to speak out. They make the most of it, too.

Especially their leader, Harry Bridges, president of the Pacific dockwallopers. Nor does he confine himself stateside.

Recently he abandoned his carefully cultured, salty, proletarian semantics long enough to address himself to the London Economist. The old actionist of the San Francisco Embarcadero (circa the 30s), angered by the anti - Viet Cong positions of Eastern maritime workers, wrote indignantly to the Economist's editor:

"Sir: Your issue . . . carries a most incomplete and hence misleading article entitled 'Dockers Go to War,' discussing a union boycott of ships of nations which permit trade with North Viet Nam.

"The Maritime Trades Dept. of the AFL - CIO has indeed announced such a boycott, though so far there has been little implementation.

"Among the unions involved in the International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA), whose officials have said they would refuse to handle cargoes on such ships. But the ILA represents longshoremen (dockers) only on the East and Golf Coasts. My union, the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union, which represents longshoremen on the West Coast, Hawaii and Alaska, is not involved in the boycott.

"We are in fact thoroughly opposed to it.

"We favor free trade with all nations and have for example, long conducted a campaign for trade with mainland China, a position anathema to the ILA . . ."

So is Mr. Bridges -- not only in the ILA, whose leader, Ted Gleason, soon will fly with eight other waterfront men -- four stevedores and four wharf clerks -- to Saigon.

Mr. Bridges has a reciprocal loathing agreement with other maritime leaders, such as Big Joe Curran, president of the National Maritime Union.

Curran IS implementing the boycott.

He has directed all his port agents across the world to be on the alert for blood - money ships carrying death cargo to North Vietnamese ports. In the past two months, the NMU's agent in Yokohama has immobilized two such freighters. The story of the second craft has not been told. It should, though it may aggrieve Mr. Bridges.

Some weeks ago "Pat" Paterson, NMU man in Yokohama, heard of the arrival in Ito of the 7,000-ton S. S. Antonia II, formerly a Greek craft, now flying the Cypriot flag. It was bound for the Communist port of Haiphong. Paterson raced to Ito. He got there too late to head her off.

But he did learn she carried steel plate and chemicals and that she was scheduled for a stop in Hong Kong first. She arrived there on April 29.

Paterson flew to the crown colony. There he did get to the crew. He learned they had not been told of the final destination until they were at sea. Paterson told them of their death load.

He then went on to the local Greek government representatives. They sent a chap to talk to the men.

Most of them refused to go back aboard when their country's spokesman told them of their government's own boycott policy. He added they need not ship out.

Six have been repatriated. Fifteen others will be airlifted shortly. Five opted to stay with their officers on the ship.

It was learned that under another name she had been running to Havana as well. And so she was stalled, as was another craft, the S. S. Agenor, which Paterson hit in Kobe back in April. The Agenor carried steel plates, rods, tractor drive carriers and bulk ammonia for explosives.

Perhaps these are just gestures.

But they do show the world where most of America's working people stand. And perhaps these gestures have saved some American soldiers' lives.

At least this tiny dockside war was won by men unashamed to stand against totalitarianism of any brand and any era.

Other ships will be hit. And while the shipping to Haiphong is slowed by this bloodless strategy, Ted Gleason is heading to the Port of Saigon to speed unloading of freighters there. Already during the stays of four of his East Coast dockers, the capacity of the port on which our troops and the Vietnamese people depend for guns and food has been increased by 100,000 tons in the past month. Soon, Mr. Gleason told me recently, the unloading speed at Saigon will be tripled.

Mr. Bridges and company will not like that at all, apparently.

DEFENDERS OF YOUR RIGHTS

Nowadays it seems that an extraordinary variety of men and organizations want to be known as defenders of human rights. That coveted title is sought after with enthusiastic and sometimes ferocious rivalry by a host of self-appointed champions of the underdog and rebels for a cause.

Curiously, sooner or later the hostility of most of these self-appointed defenders of human rights is turned on the only men and the only organization on the job twenty-four hours a day, your local police who must protect the rights of underdogs and upper - dogs, rioters and good citizens.

From the talk we hear today it sometimes seems that the sole function and activity of the police is to throw people in jail. The fact is that we have police to protect the innocent, peaceful, law-abiding citizens.

The police in a free country are the true defenders of human rights, because human rights begin with the right to be let alone so long as you have injured no one else. Because of the presence of a competent police force, you as a good citizen do not have to stand guard constantly over your life, liberty and property like a rancher in the Old West. You can live and enjoy life in safety.

The cries of "police brutality" and the cancelling out of sound police work by unsound court decisions threaten the safety and rights of every one of us, and make support of our police all the more imperative. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- It hasn't been publicized, but all three crew members of the plane which crashed in Ardmore, Okla., April 22, killing 75 servicemen, had medical problems.

Chief Pilot Reed Pigman was under treatment for arteriosclerosis, and nitrogen tablets with his name on the bottle were found in the wreckage. Pigman was president of American Fliers, the non-sked line which was carrying the servicemen.

The co-pilot, Wilbur Marr, had arteriosclerosis in a mild form. This turned up on autopsy. It was not known before the accident.

Flight Engineer Charles Grey is reported to have been under psychiatric treatment.

Flight crews are required to take Federal Aviation Agency medical exams every six months. All three had been passed by FAA doctors.

DODD'S LIBEL SUIT

Here are some things you may not know about Sen. Tom Dodd's $5,000,000 publicity stunt: Our attorney, John Donovan, as of this writing, still has not been able to get served with a copy of the complaint. Dodd was in such a hurry that his Wall Street attorney, John F. Sonnett, went before Judge Alexander Holtzoff late last Friday, when other courts were closed, to file for immediate subpoenas. Yet as of now we have not been served and though we asked for copies of the complaint we have been unable to get one. . . .The case will not come up for trial for at least two years. . . .Sonnett told Judge Holtzoff that there was danger of the witnesses leaving town. On the contrary, most of the witnesses had appeared before a closed-door session of the Senate Ethics Committee and were standing by ready for public testimony. They had been told in the interim not to talk. Now they are subpoenaed to talk.

It looks as if the Senator from Connecticut didn't trust the final decision of his Senate colleagues. . . .Dodd has now put his case before every branch of the federal government. First, he asked the Senate Ethics Committee to investigate. When they took him seriously, he tried to use his old friends in the FBI and the Justice Department. When they began questioning his former employees, he rushed to the third branch of government, the federal courts.

EASTERN HATE-MONGERS

The Far West, once considered the hate capital of the John Birch Society and right-wingism, no longer has that exclusive distinction. The far right hatemongers have now invaded the East.

As a result, the Morrisville, Pa., apartment of liberal commentator Robert Goldman has been wrecked by vandals, with swastikas daubed on his walls.

Also in Eastern Pennsylvania, the far right is staging a bitter campaign to unseat a liberal Republican congressman, Richard S. Schweiker of Norristown.

The drive against Rep. Schweiker is being staged by the John Birch Society, with potent public help from the Pitcairn family, largest stockholders of Pittsburgh Plate Glass, and their lobbyist, Philip Pendleton, who is registered in Washington as lobbyist for the Pitcairn Company, Charitable Contributions Assn., and the Family Tax Association.

One tax amendment which Lobbyist Pendleton tried to push through Congress would have given a tax bonanza to Pennsylvania's and the nation's upper crust to the tune of over $250,000,000.

Also fulminating against the moderate Republican congressman are the extremist Young Americans for Freedom, better known as YAF, and William M. Taylor who calls Schweiker the "Communist representative from Pennslyvania"...A "traitor to God, to country."

A rightist group called "Committee of the Commonwealth" has been organized to defeat not only Schweiker but two other Republican moderates, Rep. Jim Fulton and Rep. Robert Corbett, both of Pittsburgh, the latter being dean of Pennsylvania Republican congressmen.

Running against Schweiker is ex-Congressman John A. Lafore who is to the right of Barry Goldwater, and who, when in Congress, introduced a bill making the entertainment and other expenses of all lobbyists tax deductible.

RADIO RETALIATION

Radio commentator Robert Goldman, whose apartment was wrecked, broadcasts across the Delaware River in Trenton, N.J., over Station WTTM, where he is host to "Open Mike." He entertains questions from the listening audience and frequently argues with rightist questioners. Last Jan. 26, while broadcasting, he was personally attacked, beaten up, and sent to the hospital with head injuries.

Since then he has received an average of two threats a week on his life or against his wife and three children. The family was in New York when vandals broke open his apartment, slashed furniture, poured food and liquor over the rooms, smashed TV and hi-fi sets and scribbled obscenities and swastikas on the walls.

Such is democracy as practiced by the right wing.

Note--Pennsylvania lost one of its most courageous battlers against bigotry when Attorney General Walter Alessandroni was killed in a plane crash while campaigning for Lieutenant Governor on the GOP ticket. Alessandroni, while Pennsylvania commander of the American Legion, spoke out against McCarthyism at a time when few others had the courage to do so.

KING COTTON REINSTATED

A man who believes in monarchy, though he comes from Democratic Mexico, conferred with Johnson administration officials recently regarding a king whom he considers dethroned.

The official is Julian Rodriguez Adame, former Mexican minister of agriculture, now president of the International Cotton Institute.

The monarch whom Dr. Rodriguez Adame wants reinstated is King Cotton, whose reign over the agricultural South and over other parts of the world, including Mexico, has been jeopardized by nylon, rayon and other synthetics.

The former Mexican minister of agriculture now heads the Cotton Institute comprised of the following cotton-producers in the order of their export: the United States, Mexico, Egypt, Sudan, India and Spain. Each country is contributing $1 for every bale it exports, in order to increase cotton consumption and fight King Cotton's number one enemy--synthetics.

At present the production of cotton world-wide is around 52 million bales, with a consumption between 50 and 51 million. The international export averages around 15 million bales annually.

Dr. Rodriguez Adame's weapons in protecting King Cotton are promotion regarding the advantages of cotton, marketing research and technology.

"Cotton has some very important advantages, and the public must be educated to understand them," the president of the Cotton Institute said in Washington.

"Very important is the fact that cotton absorbs perspiration, and therefore does not give off body odor. In North America you spend millions of dollars on deodorants. The TV commericals are constantly advertising under-the-arm remedies for this. Cotton underwear is one remedy. If you wash certain types of synthetic cloth, it still smells. Cotton doesn't.

Furthermore, cotton is easier to wash, wears better, and it feels better. Imagine anyone sleeping on nylon sheets. Imagine anyone drying themselves with a nylon towel. You would be sleeping on metal and trying to dry yourself with fabricated metal."

JAPANESE COOPERATION

Surprisingly, the head of the new Cotton Institute got a warmer welcome in Tokyo than he did in Washington. The United States is the number one cotton producer of the world, and Japan is one of the biggest consumers. However, the Japanese were willing to contribute approximately $10 million for the promotion of cotton consumption. They will match the contribution of the International Cotton Institute.

When officials of the Cotton Institute arrived in Tokyo, they went first to the Japanese foreign office to ask if there was any objection to a discussion with Japanese textile leaders regarding a use-cotton campaign. The foreign office, after some deliberation, replied in effect: "We believe in competition. You are welcome to discuss the matter."

The Japanese mill owners remarked that they faced many restrictions regarding imports into the United States so that they could not increase their shipments there.

"However, we have a market of 100 million people right here," they told Dr. Rodriguez Adame. "Let us promote our own market."

In Washington, Dr. Rodriguez Adame found that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has 600 grants for the improvement of crops, ranging from soy beans to cotton, but that the federal government had few grants for research in the improvement of cotton textiles. The most important research should be into the problem of shrinking.

"There are only three to four companies monopolizing the synthetic textile industry," said Rodriguez Adame. "But in Mexico we have 300 cotton mills, which is certainly no monopoly. It represents free competition on the part of many businessmen. The same situation exists in the United States.

"It seems to me we must put King Cotton back on the throne. He is good for the farmer, and he is good for business. And with a little more promotion we will show that he is good for the housewife, the athlete, and everyone else interested in clean, healthy living."

When President Johnson got together with President Diaz Ordaz of Mexico, one of the things the Mexican executive talked to him about was U.S. dumping of cotton in order to get rid of the American cotton surplus. The President of Mexico complained that sale of low-priced American cotton hurt the price of Mexican cotton. Instead he proposed a program to sell more cotton at a stable price, rather than dumping it.

Cards Inaugurate New Stadium

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS AP -- Everyone agreed that opening night in St. Louis's glittering new $24 million stadium lived up to all expectations -- everyone except the Atlanta Braves.

Flubbing their lines in the final act for the second time on opening night, the Braves left St. Louis fans applauding by giving the Cardinals a 12-inning 4-3 victory.

The Braves rang up the curtain on their own stadium this season with a 13-inning defeat.

"One pitch, just one pitch," moaned Manager Bobby Bragan whose sluggers led the powerless Cardinals 3-2 on Felipe Alou's two home runs.

With one out in the ninth inning, Alex Johnson of the Cardinals singled to left and took second when Marty Keough fumbled the ball. Johnson reached third with two out and reliever Bill O'Dell had a 2-2 count on light-hitting Jerry Buchek.

Then came the pitch. Buchek hit a pop fly off the fists that dropped in short right field and tied the score.

From then on, things went downhill for the Braves.

Phil Niekro hit Curt Flood to lead off the St. Louis 12th. Orlando Cepeda bunted but reached second and Flood made third when catcher Joe Torre threw wild to sec d. Lou Brock brought down the curtain with a bouncer up the middle past the drawn-in infield.

Aside from the outcome of the game, the Braves had good things to say about the new park. Bragan rated it even with Atlanta's new stadium, second only to the Astrodome in Houston.

"The stadium is the same type as ours in Atlanta," said Gene Oliver, "but the wind will be a factor here. We don't have any wind in Atlanta. But you guys don't have to take a back seat to anyone."

Eddie Mathews, among others felt the ball would carry well.

"It's a better park than Shea Stadium in New York," said Alou. "This park is nice and smooth."

The Cardinals agreed.

"Those fences fall away in an awful hurry," Johnson said, "but I think the ball will carry good here. . .better than in Los Angeles. If you don't hit it out you can still get a home run by putting it between the outfielders.

"This park is tailored to our type of club. It's a paradise for line drive hitters."

"It's a better hitters' park than San Francisco because the wind won't be so bad," said Cepeda, recently acquired by the Cardinals from the Giants.

"There will be a lot of doubles and triples," Mike Shannon said.

Whatever the players thought, the 48,048 fans who almost filled the 50,000 river-front edifice went away pleased with the seating comfort, unobstructed view, first-night excitement, and the play of their Cardinals.

The very modern tone poem was being performed by the symphony orchestra. The musicians used whistles, gongs, sirens, banged and rattled strips of metal, horns, falling lumber. Kansas Predicted To Capture First in Meet

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBIA AP -- Several new meet records are likely at the 38th Big Eight Track Meet today and tomorrow and the team title race could be one of the tightest in league history, with defending champ Kansas in trouble.

The Associated Press form chart prediction shows Kansas with 92 points, Oklahoma 91, Nebraska 89 and Oklahoma State 79.

Injured men hold the key.

Nebraska's Charlie Greene, successor to Bob Hayes as world's fastest human, says his sore leg is well and he's ready. He is picked to win both the 100 and 220 and anchor the Husker 440 team to victory, cutting into Oklahoma sprint strength. Kansas should score heavily in the field.

Oklahoma's Bill Calhoun is picked to win the 440 against the top field in league history and to anchor the Oklahoma mile relay team to victory.

John Lawson of Kansas, league record holder in the three mile, is picked to win both the mile and three mile, with possible records in both.

Gary Schwartz of Kansas, the discus favorite, is the choice to win although he has been hampered severely the past month with a bad back.

Bob Timmons, Kansas coach, says the Jayhawks must have both Schwartz and Art Cortez to win the crown. But the chart gives Kansas a one-point edge without Cortez, with maximum performances from all other hands.

Cortez, out with a leg injury for a month, could get 15 points in the broad jump, triple jump and high jump if he's well, but it's doubtful he'll be sharp after a long layoff.

The chart shows Kansas State with 58, Colorado 52, Missouri 46 and Iowa State 20. Nebraska, Oklahoma State and K-State are weak in the field.

Only three of the 17 meet marks are safe. The field includes 10 NCAA or Federation national champions of 1965 and 1966.

Nine meet marks have been surpassed in the current outdoor season, five closely approached and four men rank as best in Big Eight history in their events. They are Lawson, 13:40.2 three-mile; Oklahoma's Ron Tull, 7-1 1/2 high jump; Colorado's 16-5 pole vaulter, Chuck Rogers; and Missouri shot putter Gene Crews, 61-7 1/4.

The field includes 20 men ranking among the top five individuals in the 15 individual events, or 20 of the league's all-time top 75 men.

In addition, Oklahoma's 3:08.5 and Oklahoma State's 3:08.9 are the two fastest mile relay times in league history; and Nebraska returns all four men from its 440 relay team, co-holder of the league mark of 40.5.

Also on hand are three members of Oklahoma State's world record two-mile relay team. The 440 field includes four national champs, with K-State's Don Payne third best in league history at 46.2 for 400 meters.

Oklahoma State, led by Bob Dickson, runner-up in the National Amateur, is a strong favorite to win its ninth straight league golf title. Oklahoma is favored in tennis.

The league's faculty representatives will be visited by delegates from six major bowl games. The Southwest Conference has discussed a Cotton Bowl tie-up with the Big Eight, but no action is expected.

Clay's Appeal Rejected

LOUISVILLE, Ky. AP -- The chairman of Cassius Clay's local draft board says his interpretation of Muslim law contradicts the heavyweight champion's claim that serving in the armed forces would go against his religion.

The contradiction, J. Allen Sherman said Thursday, caused the rejection of one appeal made by Clay of his 1-A draft status.

The other appeal, in which Clay said induction in military service would present a hardship, also was rejected by Local Board 47 in Louisville, Sherman said.

Edward Jacko Jr., Clay attorney in New York, said, "The appeal is predicted mostly on harship, because the hardship exists at this time."

But he said there are "eight or nine grounds for the appeal, including conscientious objector." Jacko didn't elaborate on the others.

Sherman said both appeals were referred to Kentucky's Western Judicial Circuit Appeal Board at Louisville.

Should Clay's conscientious objector appeal be upheld, he still would serve, either in noncombatant military service or nonmilitary jobs, said Col. Everette S. Stephenson, director of Kentucky's Selective Service.

Sherman said the local board rejected Clay's appeal after "I looked up a little Muslim law.

"The Muslim code says the Muslims should obey the law of the land in which they reside. Now, the draft law is the law of the land.

"Another thing, the Muslims have their own military force. I don't see how they could say they are not militaristic when they have a military force of their own."

Clay's next recourse after the Western Circuit Appeal Board would be the President, Sherman said. But he said Clay couldn't appeal to Washington unless the appeal board is split on its decision.

Guests of honor at a luncheon included Groucho Marx and a general. The master of ceremonies announced, "I now give you Groucho Marx, who will make up some jokes for us."

Groucho rose, but all he said was, "I yield to the general. He will fire a cannon."

Scott Central Has Entries In State Meet

A total of 96 Class M schools and 62 Class S schools will meet at the University of Missouri Monday, May 16, for the Sixty-Fourth Annual MSHSAA Outdoor Track Meet. Approximately 348 athletes will represent Class M schools and 220 athletes will represent Class S schools in the event which is to be held at Memorial Stadium. All boys entered in the state meet qualified last week at district meets held at eight sites across the state.

Brentwood High School, the 1965 outdoor champion, again appears to be the team to beat in Class M as they qualified 16 entries in winning their district meet. Brentwood also captured the Class M indoor meet held in March. Plattsburg and Mount Vernon appear to be strong contenders also as they qualified 9 and 8 entries respectively.

University High School of Columbia, this year's Class S indoor champion, won its district meet and is a likely contender for the championship. Lathrop, Rock Port, and Drexel will also field strong entries. King City, winner of the 1965 Class S outdoor crown, has moved up to Class M this year.

Following are some of the top qualifying performances turned in the district meet this past week at Cape Girardeau.

CLASS S

220 yard dash -- John Foster, Delta; District Meet -- Cape Girardeau; Time -- :22.8

880 yard relay -- Rock Port; District Meet -- Maryville; Time -- 1:35.8. Delta; District Meet--Cape Girardeau; Time --1:37.3. North Nodaway; District Meet -- Maryville; Time --1:37.5.

Broad jump -- Gerald Storms, Scott County Central; District Meet -- Cape Girardeau; Distance -- 20' 7 1/4".

CLASS M

220 yard dash -- Louis Franklin, East Prairie; District Meet --Cape Girardeau; Time--:22.5

Shot put -- Rick Waddlington, Illmo-Scott City; District Meet --Cape Girardeau; Distance--52' 1 1/2"

The time schedule for the state meets will be on Central Standard Time. Preliminaries will begin at 9:30 C.S.T. and the finals at 12:00 C. S. T.

Murray State To Play SIU

MURRAY, Ky. -- Murray State's baseball team will play a single game at Southern Illinois today and a doubleheader at St. Louis University Saturday, but the Racers are most concerned with a doubleheader with Austin Peay at Murray Monday.

Austin Peay is in hot pursuit of Murray in the championship race for the Western Division of the Ohio Valley Conference. Murray leads the division with a record of 6-4. Austin Peay is 5-4 and has a tie game with Middle Tennessee that would be replayed if it figures in the division championship. Middle Tennessee is 4-5 and Western 4-6, and the two have a doubleheader left to play.

Murray can win the title outright with a sweep of the doubleheader. A split would assure the Racers of at least a tie. Should Middle Tennessee tie with the Racers, Murray would be declared the champion because they have beaten three of four games. Should Murray and Austin Peay tie, a one-game playoff would be played.

Murray beat Southeast Missouri, champion of the Missouri Intercollegiate Conference 11-12 Tuesday to bring their season mark to 14-8. Star of the game was outfielder Jim Johnston who had a grand - slam homerun and a single to drive in five runs.

Leftie Wayne Davis will pitch against Southern Illinois Friday. Saturday's pitchers have not been announced by Coach Johnny Reagan but they will not be staff aces John Beaton and Dave Gourieux, who will be saved for the Austin Peay doubleheader.

Communication wasn't easy between an Iowan and a telephone operator in Georgia. The operator was attempting to give a number to a Des Moines woman. "You mean 'R' as in 'rabbit'?" inquired the Iowan.

"No, ma'am," replied the Georgian. "'Ah' like in 'Iris.'"

MERCURY announces the first major breakthrough in outboard ignition in 50 years...

NOW—Spark plugs last seasons, not hours!

NOW—Preignition, even with highly leaded fuel, is unheard—and unheard of!

NOW—Engine efficiency and reliability are dramatically increased!

NOW—High-powered engines idle like fishing motors!

The new Thunderbolt ignition was invented and developed by Kiekhaefer engineers. It is a complete, fully integrated system that makes use of space-age, solid-state materials and technology to produce dramatically increased spark plug life and engine performance.

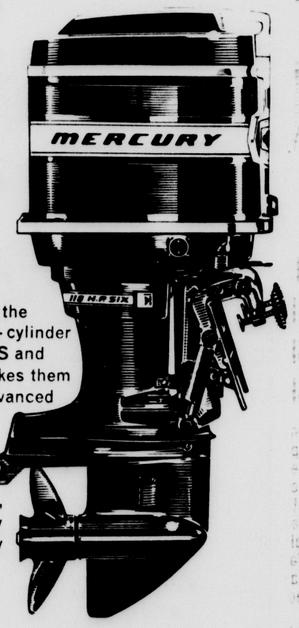

Thunderbolt is so named because its spark voltage impact far surpasses that of a conventional system—and because it produces this voltage in mere millionths of a second, many times faster than a conventional coil-and-battery system does.

Thunderbolt ignition fires the plugs so quickly that practically no energy is lost through leakage. Thus, it can fire plugs that are "fouled" by conventional ignition standards. And, because the triggering current required to discharge the capacitor (condenser) is so small, points are not nearly so subject to pitting and burning.

An integral part of the new Thunderbolt ignition system is Mercury's new Polar-Gap spark plug. Polar-Gap is a very "cold" plug: operating temperature of the electrodes and ceramic insulator is 800 to 1000 degrees cooler than conventional plugs. Consequently, deposits from the use of leaded fuels do not reach preignition temperature levels. Spark arcing area is considerably greater than that of a conventional plug—Polar-Gaps have a 360° electrode gap. This reduces the rate of electrode erosion, partially accounting for the greatly increased life of the Polar-Gap plug.

Thunderbolt's higher voltage spark just about eliminates low speed wet fouling or carbon fouling, while the very low operating temperature of the Polar-Gap plug ends fouling caused by lead deposits from automotive fuels.

And, Thunderbolt brings you a bonus of minimum interference with your radio and electronic equipment—only a single spark is produced.

The new Thunderbolt ignition is exclusive on the new 1966 six-cylinder Mercs 1100SS and 950SS. It makes them the most advanced outboards ever manufactured, offering performance, dependability and economy never before experienced in any high-horsepower outboard.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

A Review of the 1964 Term

X. INTERSTATE RELATIONS

Lest it be thought from the foregoing analysis that the United States Supreme Court has become a drifting, and perhaps even deleterious branch of government, the Court continued, last term, to perform some useful work in resolving interstate problems. In Texas v. New Jersey, it settled a squabble among Texas, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Florida over some unclaimed debts owed by the Sun Oil Company to some 1,700 small creditors who never had collected them and who could not be located. The company did not claim the property, but was faced with claims from several States over the same debts. Mr. Justice Black wrote a pragmatic opinion holding that the State of the debtor's last known address on the books of the company could escheat his unpaid debts, and if no address were known, then the State where the company was incorporated would get the money. The decision was based on the realities involved in administering a large number of small sums of money. It seems reasonable to inquire why such common-sense cannot be permitted to percolate into other areas of constitutional law.

The Court also decided that a resident of one State who works in that State for an out-of-State corporation is not required by the Full Faith and Credit Clause (Act. IV, No. 1) to submit himself to an out-of-State remedy against the corporation when his local law provides a remedy. Likewise, it held that an ex parte Florida divorce decree could validly extinguish inchoate, or merely possible, dower rights of the wife in her ex-husband's real estate in Florida. It rejected a claim, therefore, that such a Florida decision failed to give full faith and credit to a previous New York separation decree, thus recognizing Florida's interest in effecutating its decrees as they affect property located there.

Finally, the Court held that the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment is violated when a State taxes the sale of property which occurs outside of its limits, even though the seller is authorized to do business within the State, and he knows that the property ultimately will be used in the State. Such a decision protects a seller from multiple burdens imposed by taxation from more than one State on the same sale, and likewise tends to delineate each State's sources of revenue. The result is to promote interstate harmony.

JEFFERSON CITY, AP -- Unemployment compensation payments dropped again in cost during April, the State Division of Employment Security reported today.

Herman Julien, division director, said the April cost was $2,463,712, down $1,552,708 from March and down $867,364 from April last year.

Initial claims, considered a barometer of the employment picture, totaled 20,327 in April down 720 from March.

Brothers Have First Glance

KANSAS CITY AP -- Peter J. Carter, 58, a Kansas City restauranteur, met his younger brother, Andrew, 27, for the first time Wednesday.

Peter was born in Memphis and Andrew in Greece after their father, George Clisaris, returned to his homeland in 1929.

Peter refused to go back, he was 21 at the time, changed his name to Carter and eventually moved to Kansas City.

The rest of the family settled again in Greece, where the elder Clisaris went into the money-lending business, which bankrupted him when the Germans occupied the country. They issued worthless script which borrowers used to pay off their debts, and Clisaris went broke.

In the late 30s, Carter brought two sisters and another brother to America, and in 1939 Andrew was born. He is visiting in the United States, but hopes to come back some day to stay.

"I like the U. S. as a whole," he said, "but I feel that the people here are in a constant hurry to get somewhere when they are really going nowhere."

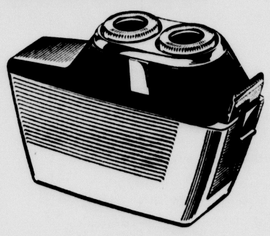

He plans to see St. Louis, Chicago, and New York during his remaining three weeks. So far, he said, he believes his most lasting impression will be Kansas City's steaks.

"The steaks here are ... well, I just don't know how to describe them. They are ... you know, delicious."

Captain Agress To Verify Claim

SAN FRANCISCO AP - A Russian ship captain, seeking to make engine repairs in San Francisco Bay, agreed Monday night to a Coast Guard inspection to verify his claim that an emergency exists.

Only last Friday, Henry H. Fowler, secretary of the treasury, denied the Chernjakhovsk permission to enter San Francisco Bay to make repairs. Fowler said it was inimical to the best interests of the United States.

The Coast Guard said the ship would be permitted into Drake's Bay north of San Francisco where American inspectors can verify whether piston rings are broken as claimed.

International law requires the granting of sheltered waters to a ship claiming emergency trouble, for as long as necessary to learn whether there actually is a crisis. If there is, the next step would be up to the U.S. State Department, the Coast Guard said.

The Chernjakhovsk is a trawler that has been serving as the mother ship for a Soviet international waters off the coasts of California and Oregon.

It will probably be days before the ship reaches Drake's Bay.

There is bad weather offshore and worse in prospect, the Coast Guard said.

Meanwhile, W. G. Saletic, president of the Congress of American Fishermen, said in a statement that "recent events have caused the CAF to conclude the United States is in great danger."

"Not only is the trawler fleet systematically wiping out our fishery, which may mean the difference between life and death for future American generations, but the Russian ships are now believed to have engaged in even more sinister activities," he declared.

The CAF said the March issue of Navy, the Navy League publication, declared that homing devices of Russian manufacturers are being discovered on the bottom at key spots off the West Coast.

Such devices, the article said, would permit extremely accurate firing of ballistic missiles by submarine or ships.

DREAMING IN THE TWILIGHT

I sit all alone in the twilight
Dreaming of days gone by
Of the happy days of childhood
And the friends that were always nigh

I could feel the soft cool zephr
From out of the golden west
While in my heart I pondered
If today have I done my best?

Have I helped some wayfaring pilgrim
Going down life's weary road
Or by some deed of kindness
Helped to lighten his load?

Have I done some kind deed for my neighbor
And been a friend worthwhile
Or have I given to someone heartbroken
A frown instead of a smile?

Have I yearned for wordly pleasure
Or worked for some selfish award
When just to give a cup of of cold water
Could bring to me a reward?

Have I gone into the home of the needy
With an abundance of things to share
Or have I been neglectful
With never a thought or a care?

If I have, O Lord, please forgive me
And help me to do my best
To bring some storm tossed sailor
Safe into the Haven of rest.

As I travel on down life's pathway
Let me do the best that I can
So they can say when I'm in my casket,
"He was a friend of man."

Seven New Citizens

CAPE GIRARDEAU - - Seven persons representing six nations became citizens of the United States Tuesday afternoon in naturalization ceremonies in United States District Court here.

The principal address in the ceremony was delivered by A. J. Seier, Cape Girardeau lawyer, who told the new citizens that through generation after generation, "perhaps our sense of history has been dulled. In a sense, your naturalization is a renewal and rededication of the original purpose on which this nation was founded."

Mr. Seier also told the class members that they are a special type of American who have a unique contribution to make.

Judge Roy W. Harper, who presided at the ceremony, also addressed the new citizens, saying, "This nation's gift of citizenship is the greatest honor that can be given to a man or woman."

The new citizens are Robert G. Martin, Cape Girardeau, a State College student and a native of Canada; Mrs. Hisako O. Ryan, a Cape Girardeau housewife from Japan; Mrs. Dimitra Zaharopoulos, a Cape Girardeau housewife from Greece; Mrs. Brigitte C. Niswonger, a Cape Girardeau seamstress from Germany; Mrs. Hermine Simmons, an Oran housewife from Germany; Mrs. Ida E. Myers, a Fredericktown housewife from Czechoslavakia, and Mrs. Kil Cha Israel, a Cape Girardeau housewife from Korea.

Mayor J. Ronald Fischer and Vernon H. Landgraf, president of the Chamber of Commerce, joined Judge Harper after the ceremonies in offering congratulations to the new citizens.

Other participants in the program were the Central High School choir directed by Gene Bryant, a Veterans of Foreign Wars color guard, the Nancy Hunter Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and Girl Scout Troop 47.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Wm. Krudwig, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Cathedral.

In other proceedings in Federal Court Tuesday, a jury began hearing a damage suit case involving an automobile accident, but the case was settled later in the day.

The case was Theodore E. Kelley of Sikeston versus H. A. Campbell of the state of Washington.

Remaining on this week's docket is the case of the Farm Boy Implement Mfg. Co. versus Gates Rubber Co. which will be tried before Judge Harper beginning Thursday morning.

Highway Department Supports 'War On Weeds' With Spraying

The Missouri State Highway Department today became an early enlistee in Governor Warren E. Hearnes' 'War on Weeds' in 1966.

In supporting the governor's proclamation, the Department pointed out that it has a continuous spraying program aimed at improving roadsides' appearance by controlling weeds and brush.

The governor called for a special weed-fighting effort this year because "the damage caused by weeds, directly and indirectly, is adversely affecting Missouri's agricultural economy" and Missouri's natural beauty.

Spraying is not a substitute for mowing, the Department said. But, with mowing, it effectively controls weeds and brush along roadsides. Roadside spraying also prevents weeds from spreading onto adjacent farmland.

With its continuing spraying program, supplemented by a growing landscaping program, the Department is attempting to add safety and beauty to the state's highways as economically as possible.

Chemicals used, said the Department, do not harm animal life if applied by manufacturer's directions. And these recommendations are adhered to strictly. The Department uses only chemicals recommended by the University of Missouri and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Department sprays no herbicides in areas adjacent to susceptible crops, desirable trees and shrubs. And no spraying is done when wind velocity exceeds 10 miles per hour.

The Highway Department and the University of Missouri are now experimenting with additional chemicals and different methods of application in a search for better and more economical weed control.

Also, an experimental mowing-spraying project is being conducted aimed at not only improving roadside appearance but greatly reducing mowing costs and erosion.

WHEREAS: the support of an understanding and informed citizenry is vital to the planning and construction of public works programs and systems such as electrical, water, sewer, streets, highways and other types of facilities; and

WHEREAS: the health, sanitation, safety and general well-being of this community depends, to a great degree, on these services and facilities; and

WHEREAS: the quality, efficiency, and effectiveness of these facilities, as well as the planning, design, and construction of future facilities, is vitally dependent upon our public works engineers, administrators, and technicians; and

WHEREAS: retaining and attracting qualified and dedicated personnel to staff public works departments is materially influenced by the people's attitude and understanding of the importance of the work performed by such employees; now therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED that I Kendall Sikes, Mayor of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, do hereby proclaim May 15-21, 1966, as NATIONAL PUBLIC WORKS WEEK and call upon all citizens and civic organizations to acquaint themselves with the problems involved in providing public works facilities and services; and recognize the important role in our safety, health and well-being that is played by the public works officials in our community.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Jerome Eisenberg, antiquarian, numismatist and director of the Royal-Athena Galleries in New York City, has a faith that knows no national boundaries.

In June, 1961, Mr. Eisenberg established the Eisenberg Museum of Egyptian and Near Eastern Antiquities at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. It was given in honor of his parents and dedicated to them because "I wanted to something for them while they were still alive."

This all came about through Mr. Eisenberg having an earlier chance meeting with Dr. E. J. Vardaman of the Seminary over a case of ancient coins in a museum in Jerusalem. Both being interested in Judeo-Christian antiquities, they formed a firm and lasting friendship. When Mr. Eisenberg decided to give the museum it was only natural that his friend Dr. Vardaman and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary would be the recipient. The archaeological materials in the museum are invaluable to students and the general public interested in the everyday life of the Bible period.

Raised in a devout Jewish home, Mr. Eisenberg bases the strength of his faith on the Golden Rule. From an early age his parents, who were teachers, stimulated his interest in ancient history. His collections of religious antiquities cover all ages and all religions as pictured above. At the top, a 14th century French Saint woodcarving. Center, a North Syrian idol from the Canaanite period over 3000 years old. And bottom, a Siamese bronze Buddha from the 13th century. Dr. Vardaman in his praise of Mr. Eisenberg said, "He is the Renaissance man in the 20th century."

THE PLACE AND POWER OF PREACHING

Mother Will Keep Twins

CLEVELAND AP -- Mrs. Barbara Brooks doesn't have to worry about giving up her twin daughters. She needed help and now has more than she knows what to do with.

"I'm amazed at the way people have come through," said Mrs. Brooks, 28, Thursday.

Mrs. Brooks' arms were crippled by polio in 1951. She can use her hands but can't lift or hold anything weighing more than eight pounds. Her two-month old daughters weigh seven pounds apiece.

She said she would have to give up the twins if she didn't get someone to help.

She received over 80 phone calls from Clevelanders Thursday, plus calls from New York City and Iowa after her story became known.

Many out-of-towners offered to take the twins for adoption. Mrs. Brooks and her husband, Kenneth, told them politely, "No."

Some offered baby furniture and clothes. Most volunteered to come and help care for the infants, Kendra and Kimberly, born prematurely March 13.

Weather Bad On Salesman

NEW YORK AP -- A poet once sang that "spring came on forever." Whatever became of it this year? In most of the nation, it's forever coming on.

"It's bad weather for bikinis," is the way one New York department store executive understated it, as he noted seasonal sales below expectations.

There's been too much rain in Texas, where some of the cotton has to be replanted. Downpours have raised the Ohio River to near flood stage, and the Chicago River became so swollen Thursday that commuter-carrying motorboats couldn't pass under bridges.

In St. Louis, rain has made the grass grow about an inch a day, and caused lawnmowers to blossom prematurely in the hands of homeowners.

But in New Mexico, they're complaining there isn't enough rain.

"Coy spring," as Emerson called it. Ever capricious, this year it's downright unruly.

Upstate New York this week had its heaviest May snowfall on record. And Pittsburgh's 3.1 inches set a record. There's still an inch of snow on the ground in Sheridan, Wyo., and Kansas City on Thursday had one of the latest sleet storms in its history.

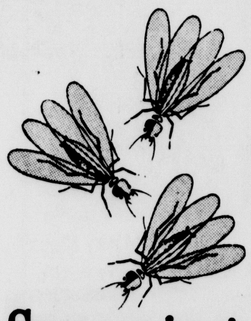

There's been almost a foot of snow since May 1 in one area of New Hampshire and George Hamilton, manager of a ski club there, says:

"We can, in all seriousness, expect good skiing into the middle of June."

Boston's May weather has been 4½ degrees below normal, South Carolina's 15 degrees below normal for this week. Upstate New York reports 8 degrees below the normal for the month, and Pennsylvania has clocked record lows for May. It's gotten as low as 15 above zero in Minnesota. South Dakota temperatures were 17 and 22 degrees below normal for three days this week.

About the only explanation for the state of affairs comes from Joseph Hardin, chief meteorologist at the U.S. Weather Bureau in Richmond, Va. He blames everything on "outbreaks of Canadian air masses."

Besides the cotton in Texas, there's a problem with frost-bitten apples in Virginia and Pennsylvania, tobacco in Kentucky, tomatoes in Ohio and West Virginia, fruit in New York, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Utah, wheat in Minnesota and Kansas. Losses are estimated in the tens of millions.

29 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

THIS WEEK SALUTING THE PENTECOSTAL HOLINESS CHURCH

Rev. and Mrs. Freeman Parker

The Pentecostal Holiness Church began on North St., Sikeston, on Feb., 1956. Rev. Freeman Parker, from Wyatt, Mo., preached his first message to a congregation of 5. Fourteen were present the first Sunday for Sunday School. The Church was organized (or set in order) in fall (Oct. '56) of that year with fourteen members. The Church now has a membership of thirty-four and averaged 82 in Sunday School last year.

Services are still conducted in the same building but quite a few improvements have been made.

It was a large building with just the Sanctuary usable. The remaining part was finished and made into 6 class rooms. Different pews and Bible stand was purchased. Later a furnace was bought. Even though there was no Women's Auxiliary organization at that time, the ladies worked at different projects to raise money to help pay this debt. The young people bought the piano which is used in the Sanctuary.

Later, new siding was put on the building and then new windows.

A parsonage was purchased Nov. 5, at 732 Vernon St. Rev. and Mrs. Freeman Parker and their daughter, Sylvia, reside there. Rev. Parker and his family have lived in Sikeston most of the ten years he pastored here.

The Church now has the "Life Liners", young people's group; Pioneer Girls, Women's Auxiliary and Men's Fellowship organizations besides the regular Church services.

'The King and I' Is in Popular Demand

Last Performance Saturday at 8 p.m. at Junior High School

"King Phra Meha Mongut, highest super agency in the whole world, universe, King of Siam, etc., invites you to The Royal Palace to see his story of the King and I."

The leading roles of the Sikeston Little Theatre's current production, "The King and I," are by Mrs. Jo Anne Fox as Anna Leonowens and James Moore III as the King of Siam. Patty McMullin, Ralph Duncan, Patsy Mitchell and Buddy Clayton also have important parts.

The play was given Friday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. and Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. and will be given at 8 p.m. Saturday night at the junior high school. The play has been very well accepted by the people of Sikeston and the cast and those behind the stage have been congratulated over and over for their fine work.

Tickets are available at the door. "The King and I" compares with last year's performance of "The Sound of Music," which most people agreed was the finest ever given by the group.

This play has a very large cast and backstage crew. Hope Terrell is the director and is assisted by Ernest Elledge. Patsy Mitchell is the producer and Jo Anne Fox is the musical director. Richard Fussell is the technical advisor and the set designer and Thelma Bush is the choreographer. The rehearsal pianists are Ginny Caskey and Anna Schumacher. The accompanists during the play are Mary and Gordon Beaver and Richard Powell.

Songs in the production are "I Whistle a Happy Tune," "My Lord and Master," "Hello Young Lovers," "A Puzzlement," "Getting to Know You," "We Kiss In A Shadow," "Shall I Tell You What I Think of You," "Western People Funny," "I Have Dreamed," and "Shall We Dance?"

The story of "The King and I" takes place in 1862, when Anna Leonowens, an attractive English widow, arrives with her son in Bangkok, Siam, to become governess to the King's many children. The King is baffled by the modern world but wants to learn and is glad that Anna is doing such a good job with his children.

The Children And The Daisy

Since the Editor's paragraph concerning his communing with nature by looking at the blossoms and blooms instead of the limbs, he has had great assistance in attempting to increase his interests. We reproduce below the latest contribution toward our flower education:

It began almost seven years ago as a routine fourth-grade assignment at Baywood School in San Mateo, California. The teacher, Mrs. Louise Lytken, suggested an investigation into the reasons why California observes Arbor Day on Luther Burbank's birthday.

The report brought to light the fact that the great plant wizard developed over three thousand varieties of plants, vegetables and fruits. One of his most famous achievements was the Shasta daisy, combining the best qualities of the white, waxy Japanese daisy, the showy, hardy English Michaelmas daisy and the prolific New England daisy.

Coincidentally, two nine year old boys brought identical news clippings relating that Congress was currently considering adoption of a national flower. This caused a flurry of interest; although they were well aware of state flowers the children had not realized there was no national flower.

"Why not the Shasta daisy?" one of the boys said.

"Why not write your congressman?" Mrs. Lytken replied.

The two boys promptly set to work and the teacher, sensing the educational possibilities, suggested the whole class participate. They wrote to their own congressman, J. Arthur Younger of the Eleventh District, in which the children live, and to every senator and many other congressmen.

The reasons they gave for their choice were various and indicative of their personalities: It was created in America by an American. It is easy to draw. It is the flower of no other state or nation. It is a perennial, needing little care. Its colors blend easily anywhere. It is cheerful. It has a gold heart. It is a tough flower, like Americans. It is cheap to grow because it needs no expensive sprays or upkeep of any kind. Its origin is symbolic of the "melting pot"; the first daisies were brought inadvertently from England in sacks of grain to feed General Burgoyne's horses. Most important, they felt, was that it can be grown in each of our fifty states.

Mrs. Lytken erected the empty frame of a jigsaw pin-up map and up went each state as its congressmen and senators replied. In the meantime the children circulated petitions in their neighborhoods and their enthusiasm kept growing. They discovered that Mrs. Burbank still lives north of San Francisco in Santa Rosa, where her husband spent much of his life and where some still talk of the day that Mr. Ford and Mr. Henry Firestone came out west to see Mr. Burbank. The trio became very good friends, each recognizing the others' genius in his particular field. Santa Rosa is in the process of planning a new garden park in Burbank's memory. The children wrote to his birthplace in Lancaster, Massachusetts, and received immediate backing.

On June 2, 1959, Congressman Younger introduced "by request" a resolution designating the Luther Burbank daisy as the national flower. On June 3 he wrote about it to the children. They were delighted with the news and have kept up a lively campaign ever since. Each year new students take up the cause.

In 1964 the House of Representatives Committee of Libraries and Memorials met again. The school sent Mrs. Lytken to Washington, complete with Shasta daisies and the precious enormous scrapbook filled with letters and clippings supporting their choice. No final decision was made. But the field was narrowed to five: marigold, rose, carnation, corn tassel and the Shasta daisy.

Last year on March 7, the anniversary of Burbank's birthday, the children mailed seeds to the head gardeners of the capital cities of every state, expressing hope that they be planted in Burbank's honor. They received charming letters from well over half. Apparently the gardeners are usually asked for plants and, as a letter from Nevada said, it was a very pleasant surprise to be sent something for a change.

Last year, too, the fourth-graders wrote to the editors of newspapers throughout the country. Each one chose a city of his own. This started a flood of mail from interested people. As in other years all this correspondence has led to friendships with editors, senators and their wives, other students, and with adults in many walks of life.

The M. H. de Young Memorial Museum in San Francisco has had on exhibit a beautiful commemorative plaque made by the children. Soon it will be mounted on a wall at the entrance to the school. It consists of free-form clay daisies attached to a brass plate twenty-four by thirty-six inches. The clay, baked and glazed, is a natural, dark, earthy red, and between the flowers there is the gold of the metal, glowing. Below this will be a separate, simple inscription of four words: "Luther Burbank, Shasta Daisy."

Among the many letters received, perhaps the most thoughtful is one written in 1959 by then-Senator John F. Kennedy. "I must frankly say," he wrote, "that this selection of a national flower is one of the most difficult choices which has come to me during my legislative career. It is very difficult to blend the historic, aesthetic and geographic considerations which must underline a final choice."

The Baywood children feel the Shasta daisy solves many of these problems. Certainly no other finalist meets the qualifications of the Shasta daisy. They realize their flower lacks the backing of strong lobbies; it is of no commercial value; its adoption would benefit no individual group. On the other hand, no other country can claim it, and it can bloom happily in every state in America. So hope is still sky-high at Baywood. They continue to contact as many people as possible.

When will a final decision be made on the national floral emblem? No one knows for certain. When approached on the possible outcome, Mrs. Lytken always says, "Well, no matter what the results are, they have learned so much." That they have. The project has entailed a knowledge of grammar, composition, spelling, geography, science, history, botany, art, music and civics. They have learned the process by which a bill becomes a law. Best of all, they have learned that the American dream really is true. The least of us can be heard.

Form the habit of reacting YES to a new idea. First think of all the reasons why it's good; there will be plenty of people around to tell you why it won't work.

Wonderful are thy works. —(Psalms 139:14)

We truly become aware of our spiritual sonship to God, when we measure ourselves in wonderment before our Creator. We can sing out with the Psalmist who said, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made." What inventory of ourselves can we make to realize the wondrous work that God has done? Our heads are high, our vision spans the unexplored heavens, and our very souls kneel at awe before the greatness that has authored us.

BULLDOG BARKER

SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL, SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Annual Open House Is Tonight

Journalists Reflect Newspaper Times

WITH ONLY ONE MORE EDITION of the Barker to be published, the staff takes a few moments to reflect on the journalistic year.

Although it appeared to be an unsurmountable task, the first edition was published in ample time for distribution.

Our staff has been small compared to some past years, but every staffer has pitched in to make the year a success. Barker duties do not end at 3:30 each day.

Staffers stay late in the afternoon, write stories at night, and plan pictures for early morning classes. Although sometimes called "gossips," the staff tries to bring the student body the school news accurately and on time.

At this time, we would like to thank the numerous people who have helped us produce a newspaper this year. This list consists of administrators who have so kindly supplied us with news of coming events. "Hats off" to the faculty who have so tirelessly answered questions and have been so considerate to the Barker staff.

The many coaches of varsity athletics also deserve our thanks because of their patience with the staff during the athletic events.

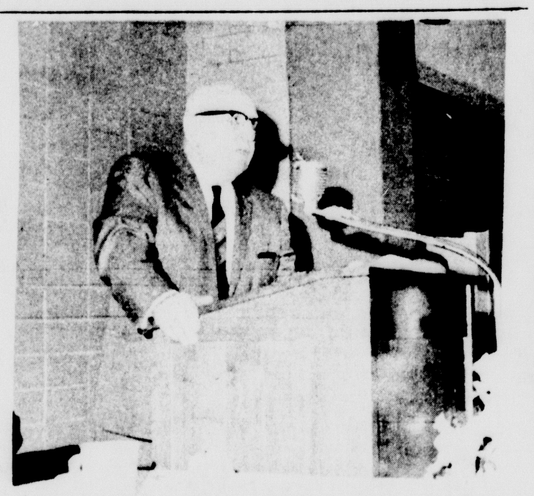

The staff would like most of all to thank the student body for the suggestions and helpful criticism that we needed to make the Bulldog Barker a better newspaper. Without you, the student body, there would have been no news or interesting articles.

The final judgment of our success or failure depends on whether you enjoyed reading the paper. In this capacity, we hope we have succeeded.

We also hope that our publication of a school newspaper will afford you many memories in future years.

We wish next year's staff good luck as the '66 staffers say THANKS TO EVERYONE!

DR. JOHN RUFI gives an inspiring talk at the annual honor banquet.

Dr. John Rufi Questions Top 10 Per Cent Students

Using as a theme "These Are Great Days If," Dr. John Rufi, Professor Emeritus of Education at the University of Missouri in Columbia, presented the address for the top 10 per cent students and their parents at the honor banquet Monday evening.

Dr. Rufi remarked, "Sikeston should take high pride in the way its young people are being built. This is a day of revolution -- the most violent earthshaking revolution the world has ever seen."

Dr. Rufi asked three questions and challenged the honor students to answer them.

"Can our educational program adequately prepare us for the rapid changes expected in the future?"

He then cited some of the changes in medicine and transportation that have been brought about recently.

"Can we as a people learn to live with a billion new neighbors?"

"Can we maintain our integrity and freedom as a nation and yet escape the horror of a third world war?"

Dr. Rufi then asked, "What can you do about these problems?"

In closing he used a quote from Kipling to suggest possibly an answer to the question --

"Do the work that lies under your nose

With the tools that lie under your hand."

Approximately 79 students were honored at the annual top 10 per cent banquet. Food was prepared and served by the public school cafeteria personnel, and the cost was underwritten by the Educational Foundation Center and several civic organizations in Sikeston.

Students received merit certificates for their achievement scholastically. Members of the Sikeston board of education presented the awards.

Pop Concert Will Follow Exhibitions

Displays of the year's work will be shown tonight at the annual open house from 6:30-8 o'clock. Pop concert of the Sikeston high school bands will immediately follow the exhibitions.

Students and teachers have prepared notebooks, projects, and displays, the objects of hours of concentration and toil, and these will be formally displayed at 6:30 this evening in the various rooms of the high school.

Immediately after the hour and one-half tours of the individual classrooms, both divisions of the band will present the annual spring concert.

Seating for the public will be on the bleachers set up in front of the outdoor stage.

In the English department, students and teachers will show a culmination of the year's work in the forms of notebooks, themes, posters, and special projects.

In the history department, students will show their work that has been gathered over the past year.

Visitors will find an amazing array of projects in the math and science building.

Juniors will exhibit their American history notebooks to show how they have been instructed to do research work and apply it to classwork.

Some of the numbers that will be presented by the 7:30 band are "Selections from Music Man;" "Pink Panther"; "Theme from Symphony No. 6"; "Bells A-Poppin' "; and "Rockin' Rhythm."

Numbers that will be presented by the 8:30 band are "No Matter What Shape"; "Pharos"; "Prelude to Revelry"; "Second American Folk Rhapsody"; and "Selections of Rodgers and Hart."

Keith Collins, band instructor, will direct both bands for their performances.

Primarily for the public's enjoyment and benefits, the open house is the "red carpet treatment" for Sikeston's citizens. School administrators as well as teachers and students, invite everyone to drop by for a "LOOK AROUND."

Seniors Receive Mortarboards, Gowns This Week

Seniors scrambled to the cafetorium yesterday afternoon to check out the long-awaited caps and gowns that are evidence of the great day -- Graduation.

Traditional navy blue will be worn again this year. Girls' robes will have white collars, but the boys are asked to wear white shirts and dark ties.

Caps and gowns will be worn on Sunday, May 22, and Friday, May 29.

Tassel and gold charm with "66" written on it may be kept by seniors as memories of the graduation ceremony.

Rental fee was $3.75 and seniors were required to present a receipt of payment before receiving their outfits.

Any seniors who has not yet checked out his cap and gown may do so at 3:30 this afternoon in the cafetorium.

Caps and gowns were received early this year to afford graduates ample opportunity to have photographs made. All robes must be turned in the night after commencement exercises in the same boxes in which they arrived.

Plans Girls' Breakfast

Senior girls who plan to attend college after graduation will be honored with a breakfast Tuesday morning in the home economics room.

Breakfast, which will begin at 7 o'clock and end at 8:30 is sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

Abilities--Talents-- Put Them To Use

DR. JOHN RUFI, in his talk at the Sikeston high school scholarship banquet Monday evening, said that we must all use our talents -- however small and inconsequential they may seem.

He was quite right. If everyone felt that his abilities were not of a great enough magnitude to make any difference to society, our country would be a poor one indeed.

It would be a country inhabited by unhappy people working at jobs below their abilities.

Very few students work up to their ability. In most cases, the students with the most potential and ability tend to coast through their school years without much effort. They do not put their talent to work.

Dr. Rufi said, "I cannot do everything, but I can do something, and feel that I can do a small part in the right direction."

Everyone should do what he can, no matter how small, to better his country. This is especially true at election time.

One vote may seem unimportant at the time, but if everyone felt that way, elections would be disastrous.

It is the responsibility of the educated Americans to put their abilities to work to keep America strong.

Yearbook Staff Prepares Pages For Deadline

With only a few days left before the May 15 yearbook deadline, the Growler staff is rushing to get as many pages as possible ready for the Paragon Press Publishing Company.

Future Teachers' pages were recently completed as pictures were taken of the students as they did their practice teaching.

Honor students were photographed Monday evening at the banquet, and the pages are being designed.

National Forensic League, Honor Society, distributive education, coooperative occupational education, and Barker pages are also ready for shipping.

Pictures of graduation and baccalaureate will be snapped by local photographer Loy Baugher and school photographers Mike Buchanan and Stan McMackins. The staff will work the first week of June to complete the Growler.

As graduation approaches, all work will eventually come to a close. Barker staffers will distribute the final issue of the Bulldog Barker next Friday afternoon.

Next week's issue will be the 30th and final publication and the traditional senior histories will appear in the edition.

Only task then remaining will be the completion of the yearbook pages. Staff will return the Tuesday following graduation to complete the final yearbook pages and will distribute the Growler sometime in August.

Mike Boardman Receives First In State Contest

Senior Mike Boardman won a number one rating in the State Industrial Education Association Awards Contest last Saturday at Columbia.

Mike's entry was in architectural drafting division.

One hundred and twenty boys participated in the state-wide event, entering projects in a variety of categories.

Mike won a number one rating at the Industrial Arts Contest at Cape Girardeau Saturday, April 30, making him eligible to participate in the state contest.

Boardman is presently enrolled in design drafting III, instructed by Pat Jones.

Mike was a member of the 65-66 Bulldog football squad, weight-training program, and is currently a leading trackster.

New President Of Honor Group

Dave Shy was elected president of the Veritas Chapter of the National Honor Society for the '67 school year Monday afternoon.

Other officers are Vicki Schindler, vice-president; Elizabeth Martin, secretary; and Connie Nowell, treasurer.

Honor Society has had various speakers throughout the year. Among them are Mrs. Robert Matthews, the Rev. Bill Spencer, Mrs. Helen Reuber, Sam Harbin, and Charles Matthews, IV.

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick was the guest speaker at the induction ceremony, the highlight of the year's activities.

Thirty-one members were initiated at the annual ceremony. New members composed five per cent of each class.

Membership in the group is based on scholastic standing, service, leadership, and character.

Mrs. Catherine Matthews, social studies instructor, is the sponsor of the organization.

Officers for the '66 school year were Phil Barkett, president; Rob Collins, vice-president; Mary Leible, secretary; and Gary Williams, treasurer.

Lions' Club To Present New Award

"Lions Junior Citizen Award" is a new honor to be presented at the awards assembly by Judge Marshal Craig.

One boy and girl from the freshmen class and one boy and girl from the senior class will receive the award.

Nominations were made at the senior high school last Friday, and students voted Tuesday in home room for the final selection.

Qualifications for the award are that the winner be a member of one or more organized school or community activity and that he or she have common courtesy and good citizenship.

All winners will receive a plaque worth $50. Winners from the senior class will receive $50 in cash while freshmen winners will receive $25 in cash. Winners will also be guests at the first Lions Club meeting following the awards assembly.

This award will be one of several distinguished awards presented at next Wednesday's assembly. Assembly is being planned by the student council's assembly committee.

Staffers Hold Picture Sale Next Monday

Pictures anyone! All pictures not used in the Growler will go on sale next Monday afternoon in A-4.

Photos will be scattered around the journalism room for all curious lookers. Many pictures were shot while students weren't looking, and they may be worth 25 or 30 cents for those persons.

All football, basketball, golf, track, and baseball pictures that were not used in the yearbook will be on sale. A few organization pictures, such as the Red Peppers, may be purchased.

All money collected from the picture sale will be used for the yearbook expenses.

Pictures left from last year will also be available if anyone wishes to purchase these.

Chosen Director

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. -- Andrew J. Murphy was chosen assistant director of the activities and special events service of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

He became a professional leader in scouting in 1941.

The National Capital Council, Washington D. C., in 1948 selected him as a district scout executive, and promoted him to assistant Scout executive.

In 1964 he directed the National Jamboree arena shows at Valley Forge, Pa., before an audience of nearly 80,000. He prepares literature on district-wide activities and conducts training courses for professional and key volunteer Scout leaders. He also gives leadership to national activities.

"Who's Who," a clever farce in one act, was thoroughly enjoyed by several hundred persons at the high school gym Friday night. Cast members were: Robert Dempster, Emery Rose, Earl Kelly, Margaret Whidden, and Marie Mainord.

This is a cat tale and a true one, too. Al Daily of the Sikeston Seed Store, keeps a grey cat about the store to keep the mice down. Thursday the cat found a mouse trap in the neighborhood that had a mouse in it, and brought trap and the mouse into the store. Mr. Daily took the mouse from the trap for the cat and the owner of the trap can have same by calling at the store.

The Paramount Cap Manufacturing Co., of St. Louis is considering Sikeston as a possible site for its factory, it was learned this week. In a letter to the Chamber of Commerce, S. H. Rubenstein, a company official, said, "We are contemplating moving our cap factory to a small town and are looking for a suitable place."

Royce Ayers, son of Wiley Ayers, of Big Opening, was severely burned on his chest and arms when his clothes were ignited after a gasoline explosion at his farm home Tuesday evening.

Mrs. A. C. Johnson sustained a fracture of the left hip Tuesday night, when she fell in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Oscar Pharris, a few miles north of Sikeston.

Melvin Dace, jr., arrived Wednesday evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Dace, sr., on Tanner street.

Franciska Seelinger Parks, (Fannie,) daughter of the late Jacob and Franciska Phiefer Seelinger, was born in Chillicothe, Ohio, March 26, 1863. She died in Sikeston in the Sikeston General Hospital on May 6, at the age of 83 years, 1 month and 10 days.

W. J. Page of Vanduser, celebrated his 75th birth anniversary on May 12, with a dinner at the home of his son, Marshall Page, with whom he makes his home.

Mrs. H. E. Reuber and Miss Myra Tanner entertained Wednesday night for Miss Margaret Clymer with a handkerchief shower and dessert bridge at the home of Mrs. Reuber. Miss Clymer is to be married to Norman Rothenheber of Brentwood on May 28 at the St. Francis Xavier Church in this city. On Friday evening Miss Camille Klein will entertain with a dinner party at the Dunn Hotel. Mrs. Jack Lancaster and Miss Lucille Stubblefield will entertain with a kitchen shower and dessert bridge on Saturday at the home of Mrs. Lancaster.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness. (II Timothy 3:16).

PRAYER: Our Father, help us to make our homes places where we honor Thee by reading and obeying Thy Word. May we not be hearers only, but doers of the Word. We pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

To the Editor:

Why I prefer the Daily Standard as my source of information for buying all family needs. Because it gives full details of where and when the bargains are and also each day that there are specials it gets out in plenty of time for us rural folk to take advantage. We prefer the Standard to all other papers.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I promised myself if it happened again I would sit down and write to you. And it did, so here I am.

Why does a telephone customer get precedence over the customer who has taken the time and trouble to go to the store? I left my office today for what I thought would be a quick trip. Just as I was preparing to hand the saleswoman the money, the telephone rang. She turned around without so much as a word and left me standing there while she became involved with a customer who had dozens of questions. With every passing minute my blood - pressure mounted. I tapped my foot for 12 minutes.

I very nearly walked out of the store but I decided it would be bitting off my nose to spite my face. If I left I would have to start all over again some place else and perhaps not find what I wanted.

Please don't tell me to boycott the store that treats its customers this way. They ALL do. Just tell me what to do about it. -- COLUMBIA, S. C.

Dear Columbia: Leaving a customer to answer the telephone is more than bad business. It is bad manners. It's as rude as turning your back on a friend in mid-sentence to speak to an intruder.

The sales person who MUST answer the phone should ask his customer before he leaves him if he will please wait one moment while he takes the number so he can return the call.

The next time you are abandoned this way I hope you WILL walk out. Then write a letter to the store president and tell him why the store lost the sale and your good will.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of seven children and I have seen a good bit of what goes on in the world so please don't think I'm naive. What happened yesterday gave me the shock of my life.

When the delivery boy returned the family dry cleaning he handed me some papers that had been found in our son's coat pocket. (Karl is 17.) Among the papers was a note from a girl. Karl and the girl are not going steady. He just happens to see this girl more often than any of the others. The girl was pleading with Karl to take her to a motel so they could pretend they were married. From the way she wrote it sounds as if she has been trying to get him to do this for quite some time.

Please tell me if I should remain silent and act as if I know nothing. Or should I let Karl know I saw the note and have a talk with him? --LANCASTER MOTHER

Dear Mother: Get a copy of my book, "Ann Landers Talks To Teen - Agers About Sex." You don't have to buy it. Your public library has a copy. Hand the book to Karl when you return the papers to him. Explain how you happen to have the papers and tell him you have read everything.

Make it plain you have complete confidence in him and that you know he's not going to do anything foolish. Tell him you want to make sure he has plenty of information since it is obvious that some of the girls in his crowd are in pretty pathetic shape emotionally and are ignorant as well.

Do you feel ill at ease. . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

NOTICE OF CONDEMNATION
TO: UNKNOWN OWNERS

TRACT NO. 3011-34, Perpetual Easement. A strip of land 100 feet in width within the S1/2 SW1/4 of Section 21, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point within said S1/2 SW 1/4, which point is 653.5 feet North and 198.9 feet East of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 573.5 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 5.60 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-6. TRACT No. 3011-33, Perpetual Easement. All that portion of a strip of land 100 feet in width in the S1/2 SW1/4 of Section 22, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point on the West boundary of said S1/2 SW 1/4, which point is 487.0 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 397.0 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 6.05 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-7. TRACT NO. 3011-34, Perpetual Easement. All that portion of a strip of land 100 feet in width in the S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4 of Section 22, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point on the West boundary of said S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4, which point is 397.0 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 308.0 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 6.05 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-8 You are hereby notified that a complaint in condemnation has heretofore been filed in the office of the Clerk of the above named court in an action to condemn a perpetual easement for the erection, operation, and maintenance of a line or lines of poles, towers, or other structures, wires, cables, and fixtures for the transmission of electric current. The easement taken is subject to existing easements for roads, railroads, canals, ditches, pipelines, telegraph lines, telephone lines, and other electric lines. The easement taken includes the perpetual right of ingress and egress, including the right to use, for the purposes of said easement, any and all right, title, and interest of the owner in and to any streets, roads, avenues, alleyways, and right-of-way upon, abutting, or in any way appertaining to the premises over which said easement passes; includes the perpetual right to remove buildings and improvements, except fences and except such buildings and improvements as are appurtenant to existing easements; includes the perpetual right to trim, cut down, remove, and destroy any trees which may interfere with or endanger said transmission line or lines or the maintenance or operation thereof; includes the perpetual right to set all necessary guy and brace poles and anchors and attach all necessary guy wires thereto; and includes the perpetual right to assign, license, permit, or otherwise agree to the sole or joint use or occupancy of such facilities by any other person, association, or corporation for the transmission of electric power and energy; reserving, however, to the owner the right to cultivate, use and occupy said property for any purpose consistent with the rights and privileges herein taken and which will not interfere with or endanger the construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said easement, but said right of cultivation, use and occupancy shall not include the erection of any structure on, or permission to the public to use any part of, said easement, or any requirement for the payment of damages for any injury to crops, trees, vines, seedlings, or improvements on said property which occurs as a result of and during construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said line or lines. In the event of permanent abandonment of said easement, the title and interest of the United States and its assigns shall vest in the owners of the underlying fee interest in said property at the time of abandonment. The properties over which these easements are to be taken are described in Exhibits A-6, A-7, and A-8. The authority for the taking is under the Act of August 1, 1888, 25 Stat. 357, as amended, 40 U.S.C. sec. 257 (1964); the Act of February 26, 1931, 46 Stat. 1421, 40 U.S.C. sec. 258a-258f (1964); Section 5 of the Act of December 22, 1944, sec. 5, 58 Stat. 890, 16 U.S.C. sec. 825s (1964); and the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1966, 79 Stat. 1096 (1965). You are further notified that if you have any objections or defense to the taking of your property you are required to serve upon plaintiff's attorney at the address herein designated within twenty days from and after May 27, 1966, an answer identifying the property in which you claim to have an interest, stating the nature and extent of the interest claimed and stating all your objections and defenses to the taking of your property. A failure so to serve an answer shall constitute a consent to the taking and to the authority of the court to proceed to hear the action and to fix the just compensation and shall constitute a waiver of all defenses and objections not so presented. You are further notified that if you have no objection or defense to the taking you may serve upon plaintiff's attorney a notice of appearance designating the property in which you claim to be interested, and thereafter you shall receive notice of all proceedings affecting the said property. You are further notified that at the trial on just compensation, whether or not you have answered or served a notice of appearance, you may present evidence as to the amount of the compensation to be paid for the property in which you have any interest and you may share in the distribution of the award of compensation.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, May 13, the 133rd day of 1966. There are 232 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1607, Jamestown, Virginia, the first permanent English settlement in America, was founded by 105 colonists.

On this date

In 1846, the United States declared war against Mexico.

In 1865, the last engagement of the Civil War occurred at Palo Pinto, Tex.

In 1915, the United States protested the sinking of the liner Lusitania by a German submarine.

In 1940, Prime Minister Winston Churchill made his historic statement: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

In 1942, the president of the Philippines established provisional headquarters of the Philippine government in Washington.

Ten years ago--A high Soviet official announced that all Soviet interment camps would be abandoned with 18 months.

Five years ago -- President Joseph Kasavubu of the Congo announced he would reconvene the Congolese Parliament.

One year ago--An eight-day truce was broken when the new government of the Dominican Republic launched an attack on the rebels.

New Kroger Store Manager

Mr. Jim Bevill, Northwest Zone Manager for The Kroger Company, has announced the appointment of Mr. Arthur Ziegler as Store Manager of the local Sikeston Kroger Store. Mr. Ziegler replaces Mr. Harold Nicholas who has been transferred to the Kroger Store in Poplar Bluff as Manager.

Mr. Ziegler is a graduate of St. Mary's High School in Cape Girardeau, Missouri.

He started with The Kroger Co. in 1943 and has worked in different positions throughout the Missouri Kroger Stores; his last position as store manager in Dexter before being transferred.

Mr. Ziegler and his wife, Anita have two children; Randy Lee and Mrs. Ada Ree Boyles. The Zieglers' are planning to move to Sikeston in the near future and will attend St. Savier Catholic Church.

Certain paintings are called miniatures because, originally, they were painted with minium, which is native cinnabar or red lead. The paint, not the size, was responsible for the name.

MEDICARE PROBLEM—Mrs. Mildred Overfelt of San Jose, Calif., has her difficulties with Medicare. She signed up for the program after repeated urging, but now can't convince the government she's as old as she says she is—94. It's a matter of principle, not need. The wealthy woman has donated to the public land worth some half-million dollars for parks and hospitals.

Airplane Builder At Kennett is Prize-Winner

KENNETT, Mo. AP -- Kennett now has a prize-winning airplane builder in its midst.

A Pitts Special, built two years ago by Dick Rice, owner of the Bootheel Flying Service, will be competing next August in the World Aerobatics Competition in Moscow, Russia.

Rice built his small Pitss during his spare time and flew it himself. He later sold it to Bob Herendeen, Santa Monica, Calif., senior captain for Trans World Airlines. Herendeen placed third in the National Aerobatic Contest in Reno, Nev., flying the plane made by Rice.

Herendeen also will fly Rice's Pitts Special in the world contest as part of the U. S. aerobatic team. The trip will not be government subsidized, all members of the team paying their own expenses.

With a top competitor already to his credit, Rice has just completed another plane. This one is built on the same plan as the other, but Rice has stretched the wing span about 15 inches and extended the fuselage by about a foot. He has hiked the horsepower from 150 to 180. The small craft is stressed for 9,000 pounds of pressure.

Rice, who is widely known in the southern part of the country for his mechanical ability and love of antique planes, completed the latest craft in about five months, working in his spare time. It has been certified as airworthy by the Federal Aviation Agency.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

LARGEST STATE CLAIMS SMALLEST BABY ON RECORD

When the Green family of Anchorage, Alaska, celebrates the first birthday of its baby girl, it will be celebrating a miracle as well. For their baby weighed in at an incredible 1 pound, 10-3/4 ounces at birth -- possibly the smallest baby to survive in the history of the United States.

According to Dr. Alan Homay, who delivered the infant, she was born three months prematurely to a 39 year-old mother who had had 25 previous pregnancies, with six living children. Born at 4:00 a.m. on July 22, 1965, at the Presbyterian Hospital here, the tiny girl measured only 11-1/2 inches. At eight months she weighed 11 pounds, 9 ounces, stood 25-1/4 inches tall, and was normal except for a small umbilical hernia and an outward crossing of her left eye.

According to medical experts only one percent of all premature babies are below 2 pounds -- and not many of them survive undamaged.

CHILD SPACING IMPORTANT FOR MOTHERS & CHILDREN

Here are some of the ways that an unplanned-for baby, or inadequately spaced babies, can affect various members of a family, according to Prof. Emma N. Plank of Western Reserve University's School of Medicine:

"Some mothers who try to conceal their anxiety and concern about pregnancy may struggle with anger and guilt and even with impulses to hurt their babies, others manage by being overly solicitous and overprotective . . ."

A new pregnancy too soon after the birth of a previous child may affect the mother's ability to loosen her very close attachment to the existing child or may make her push it away too suddenly. "For the mental health of infant, mother, and the baby to come, one would wish for a long enough period without a new pregnancy to allow the mother to feel that her first child has moved toward independence before the next one needs her full attention."

When the needs of an infant and then the rivalry between two small children absorb too much of a mother's emotional energy, preventing her from behaving as a person in her own right and not only as a mother, there may be trouble ahead for the smooth functioning of the family.

NEITHER A BORROWER NOR A LENDER BE -- OF COSMETICS

If you're just aching to borrow your friend's eyeliner pencil -- resist the temptation. The American Medical Association's Section on Cutaneous Health and Cosmetics warns that a serious eye disease -- trachoma -- can be transmitted from person to person by just such a practice as using another person's eye cosmetics.

As a matter of simple personal hygiene, you should neither borrow nor lend your comb or brush, lipstick, powder puff or other cosmetics or tools that come into intimate contact with your skin or eyes.

Don't ever slam a door; you might want to go back.

Montgomery; Mrs. Sells To Have Joint Trial

MEMPHIS -- A ruling for a joint - trial was made here yesterday for Joel Montgomery, wealthy Sikeston businessman and banker, and Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, who are charged with traffic death indictments stemming from an October 14, 1959 traffic accident.

Criminal Court Judge Perry refused to separate the two cases.

Don Owens, representing Montgomery, did not oppose the consolidation, but attorneys for Mrs. Sells did.

Their trial is presently scheduled for May 23.

In Sikeston this morning, Montgomery said, "It is of no consequence that we are to be tried together. We did not oppose it."

Montgomery ended a four-year extradition battle Feb. 16 when he stole the march on Shelby County, Tenn., law enforcement authorities and the press by surrendering himself to the Shelby County sheriff's office in Memphis.

Montgomery presently has a $2,000 bond posted in Tennessee for his appearance May 23.

He was indicated on the manslaughter charge in 1962 in connection with the death of Mrs. Glenda Wiles, 24.

Three Memphis law enforcement officers were left waiting at the courthouse in Benton Feb. 16. Montgomery had been scheduled to make a Circuit Court appearance, instead he flew to Memphis.

Mrs. Sells was indicted on a charge of second degree murder in the traffic death. She was found guilty of a reduced charge of manslaughter. The state supreme court later ordered another trial.

WW1 Veterans. Auxiliary Holds State Meeting

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. AP -- The Veterans of World War I of Missouri and its auxiliary will hold their 12th annual state convention today through Sunday at Cape Girardeau.

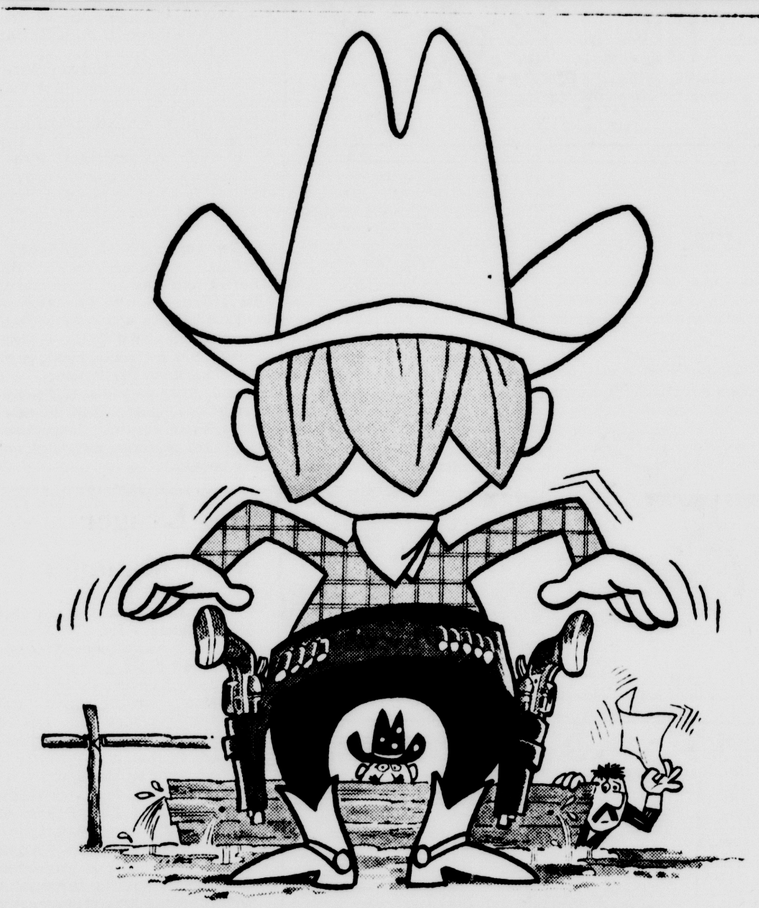

Registration, a memorial service and dinner will be today. Joseph S. Withington of DeSoto, Mo., the department commander, will call the convention to order Saturday morning. Col. Herbert M. Houston of Washington, the national commander, will be the principal speaker at a dinner Saturday night.

The business session will be Sunday morning to elect and install new offices.

Invitations were sent to 117 barracks. Charles T. Berry of Cape Girardeau and Peter N. Keller of Chaffee, remaining members of the Camp Cape Spanish American War Veterans, also will be guests.

Mr. C's Robbed

Mr. C'S IGA foodliner located on South Main Street was broken into and burglarized early today. The entry was discovered by an employe, W. A. Ancell, who reported the theft at 7:15 a.m.

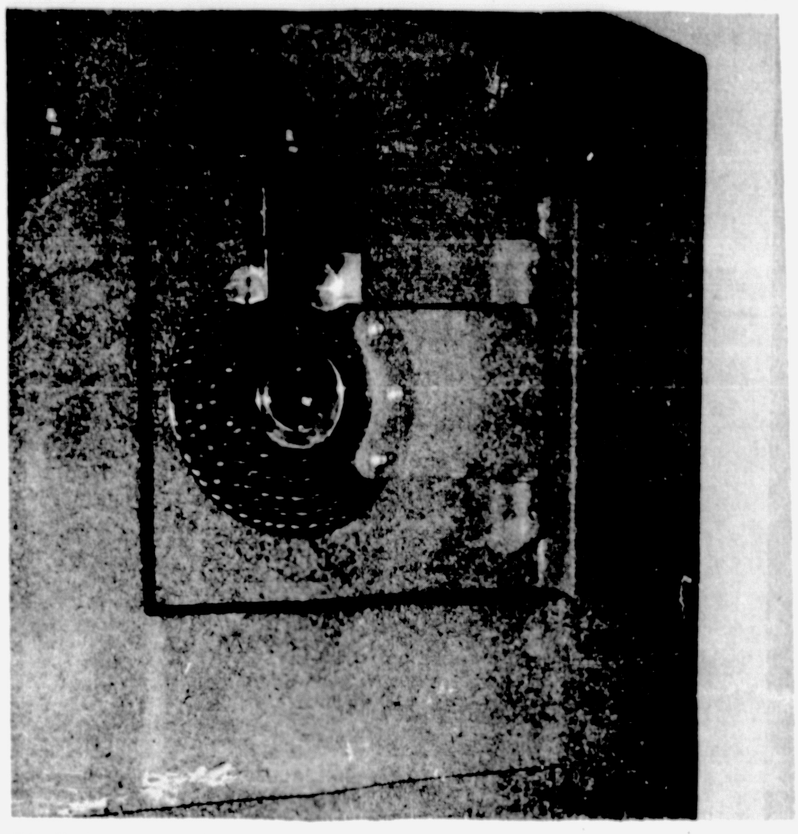

Entry was made through the front doors where the burglars knocked the lock out of the double doors and prized them open.

Reported taken were $15 in pennies and an undetermined amount of cigarettes and whiskey.

The burglars attempted to open the safe but were unsuccessful. They knocked the dials and knobs off. A cash register was damaged as they entered it. There was no money in the register.

Police are investigating, but no clues have been found.

An inventory of the store is being made to determine if other items were taken.

52 Students to Graduate From New Madrid School

NEW MADRID -- Fifty-two students will graduate from New Madrid high school in the class of 1966 and formal services for the seniors are planned for next week, according to Glenn Dyke, principal of the high school.

Baccalaureate Services will be held at the high school auditorium Sunday evening, beginning at 8 p.m. and the baccalaureate address will be given by Fr. John E. Wells, assistant pastor of Immaculate Conception church.

Invocation at the service will be by Rev. Sylvan Nussbaum of the First Methodist church and benediction will be by Rev. Paul Davidson of the Pentecostal church.

Two numbers will be rendered by the Girls' Glee Club of New Madrid high school.

Commencement Exercises will be held at the auditorium Thursday evening, May 19, at 8 p.m., when the 52 graduating seniors will receive their diplomas from Harry Leuer, president of the Board of Education.

Dr. Frank Wiley, superintendent of schools, will give the Welcome and Principal Dyke will present awards.

There will be addresses by the class valedictorian and salutatorian, but the names of those two students have not been announced.

Invocation and benediction at the Commencement will be by Rev. J. C. Thedford of the New Madrid Baptist church and there will be music by the New Madrid high school band and a song by the school's mixed chorus.

Kathy Williams Is Named Little Miss Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD -- Kathy Williams, six-year-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Williams was crowned 1966 "Little Miss Bloomfield" Friday night by Angela Holland 1965 Little Miss Bloomfield. Her attendants were Shari Snider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Snider, and Amanda Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hopkins. Crown bearer was Lloyd Kerner. Natalie Street carried the lovely bouquet of red roses to be presented to Miss Williams.

The ninth annual contest was sponsored by the Amvet Auxiliary Post 28. Auxiliary president, Mrs. Richard Sanderson gave the welcome with Mrs. Lloyd Snider acting as mistress of ceremonies, introducing the 36 little contestants. Mrs. Bill Roudeseal, Mrs. Bill Sibold and Dorothy Grinn, all of Dexter, were the judges.

Proceeds from the contest are used for a student award to a graduating senior. The name of the recipient will be announced at the graduating exercises.

Drug Out Of Control

WASHINGTON AP -- A pioneer experimenter with the drug LSD, Dr. Timothy Leary, acknowledged today that use of the drug was out of control. He estimated that one-third of the nation's college students are "experimenting with this drug."

But Leary told the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency:

"The use of LSD by young people has provoked a crisis, not a crisis of peril but a crisis of challenge."

Leary, a former Harvard University phychologist, is now a director of private foundation dealing in research on LSD and similar hallucinogenic agents, and is appealing a 30-year sentence for transporting marijuana.

He defended what he saw as proper use of the drug and called alcohol a much more dangerous substance. Leary said LSD has "an eerie power to release ancient energies from the human brain, I would say even sacred energies."

LSD is a hallucinogenic agent derived from plant fungus.

Leary ran into some sharp cross-examination from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Leary suggested that legislation be passed that would allow responsible adults to use the drug for "spiritual growth and pursuit of knowlede. . ."

He also suggested that colleges be authorized to conduct alergy courses in LSD and said such courses "will end the indiscriminate use of LSD and be the most popular and productive courses ever offered."

To this, Kennedy demanded: "What's going to happen to the boy who doesn't get to college? Are you going to offer high school courses as well?"

Leary said it was a question that would probably have to be left to research.

Program For Chemistry Teachers at Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Southeast Missouri State College Chemistry Department will offer courses this summer designed both as a part of a series leading to the master of arts degree, and to implement the new curriculum for high school chemistry currently published by the State Department of Education.

According to Dr. E. L. Bahn, Jr., head of the department, the program for this summer includes a course in Basic Concepts of Inorganic and Physical Chemistry, for three semester hours of credit. The course is intended to be modern background material and offers additional preparation for teachers already having a major in chemistry at the undergraduate level.

In addition, Dr. Bahn said, a course entitled Modern High School Chemistry for Teachers, for five semester hours, will embody the material set out in the Chemical Education Material Study program, widely accepted by many schools in Missouri as a guide in the new high school chemistry curriculum.

Although this program is designed for chemistry teachers with an undergraduate major in chemistry, teachers without this background will be counseled and placed into courses to complement their academic background, he said.

Inquiries, Dr. Bahn said, should be directed to him at the college in Cape Girardeau.

Search for Armed Abductor Continues

SHADE GAP, Pa. AP -- About 400 armed men began the third day of a massive manhunt for Peggy Ann Bradnick, 17, and her abductor. Searchers were attempting to cover every square foot of the heavily wooded, mountainous area where she was kidnapped.

State police said the searchers, including state and local police, FBI agents and between 200 and 300 volunteers, began fanning out around this community about 70 miles southwest of the state capital of Harrisburg.

It was near Shade Gap that the abductor jumped from the woods and grabbed the girl Wednesday afternoon as she was returning home from school with her sisters and brothers.

So far no clues have been discovered, police said.

Assisted by the FBI agents, hundreds of volunteers carrying rifles and shotguns, more than 100 state troopers already had spent more than 24 hours tramping through the woods when darkness, dense fog and heavy rain halted the search Thursday night.

But even after the main operation was called off, small patrols remained in the area and continued to search throughout the night.

State police said a 13-state alarm had been posted for the abductor as "a routine procedure."

Shade Gap is a community of 140 persons about 60 miles west of Harrisburg, Pa.

State police said a description of the girl's abductor seems to match that of a mysterious sniper residents call the Mountain Man. He suddenly appears out of the woods, fires a rifle and then disappears back in the woods. Two persons have been wounded by him, police said.

The abduction occurred, police said, on a dirt road about a quarter of a mile from the girl's home.

Five Year Old Dies

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. AP -- A five-year-old boy who was beaten by a babysitter died Thursday night.

James Wayne King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester King, was taken to the hospital late Monday after his mother returned home and found him severely beaten.

An autopsy was to be performed today.

The 16-year-old babysitter, Harold Edward Henry Jr. is being held in jail on charges of child beating and County Attorney Edward J. Chapman, Jr., filed an additional charge of second degree manslaughter this morning.

The youth said in a statement that he hit the child with a softball bat, a plastic bat and his fists when he would not answer a question by the babysitter. The youth had been hired by the mother to sit with her five children.

The beaten child suffered a ruptured pancreas, a ruptured intestine, two broken ribs and other internal injuries plus bruises and abrasions.

Publisher Pleads Guilty to Tax Evasion

ST. LOUIS AP -- Wallace M. Jenkins, publisher of the South Missourian-Democrat at Alton, Mo., pleaded guilty today to charges that he failed to file a federal income tax return in 1960 and 1962.

Judge John O'Regan accepted the plea and said he would sentence Jenkins May 27. The government alleged that Jenkins had a gross income of $21,356 in 1960 and $23,908 in 1962.

Similar charges for the years 1959 and 1961 were not prosecuted by the U. S. district attorney.

Arbitration Board to Consider Boundary Dispute

CHARLESTON -- Thurman Propst of Sedgewickville has been named the "third person" and chairman of a board of arbitration which will meet Saturday to consider the boundary dispute between Charleston and East Prairie school districts.

Announcement of Propst's appointment by the State Board of Education was revealed Wednesday night at the R-1 Board meeting.

The Arbitration board will hold its first session at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Circuit Courtroom of the courthouse at Benton, with representatives from both districts on hand to present their side of the case.

The R-1 board designated Superintendent W. R. Pierce Jr. and Attorney Clifton Banta to represent them at the hearing.

At stake before the arbitrators is a 33-square mile area now in the Charleston R-1 district. At the annual school election April 5, voters in the East Prairie district approved the transfer of this territory to the R-2 district, while voters in the Charleston district rejected the transfer.

Under state law, the board of arbitration cannot compromise the matter, but must award the entire area involved to one or the other district.

The other two members of the board are Mississippi County Board President Lloyd Hall and New Madrid County Board President Lyle Bird.

In other action Wednesday night, the R-1 Board:

--Heard a report from CHS guidance counselor Bob Entrekin on his trip to the national convention of the American Personnel and Guidance Association in Washington, D. C.

--Approved a request from Assistant Superintendent Bill Hodges to attend an in-service training workshop for school administrators at Lake Arrowhead, Calif., July 17 to 29.

--Set June 11 at 2 p.m. as the date and time of a public auction at which the house on Danforth Street constructed by the building trades class will be sold. The board said the minimum acceptable bid will be the amount of money the district has put into the house. This figure will not be known for about two weeks.

--Authorized Superintendent Pierce to negotiate for purchase of the lot next to the house just completed. This lot will be used for construction of another house by next year's building trades class.

--Voted to remove the south and east bleachers at the foot ball stadium because of their unsafe condition. A replacement will be considered later.

--Declined to make an exception to a board policy on children attending school in the attendance area in which they live. Mrs. Tommy Hess had requested a transfer from Wyatt to Charleston for her daughter, Robin.

--Approved a resolution authorizing printing and delivery of the $1,400,000 in bonds for the new high school.

--Instructed the superintendent to report at the June meeting on the best way to invest funds received from the sale of the bonds. Some of the funds will not be needed for a full 12 months after the bonds are are sold, and the investment of these funds would bring the district as much as $32,000 in additional revenue, Pierce told the board.

--Approved a contract with the city of Charleston, giving the city title to the A. D. Simpson Park in exchange for services to be provided by the city at the new high school site.

--Heard a written report from Mrs. Virginia Crenshaw on her attendance at the Governor's Conference on Libraries in St. Louis last month.

Public to be Barred

WASHINGTON AP -- U. S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled today the public will be barred when pre-trial statements are taken from witnesses in the $5 million libel suit filed by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., against newspaper columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson.

The pre-trial depositions will be started later this month.

Holtzoff postponed a decision on a request that Dodd bring documents relating to his income taxes, political campaign contributions, and dealings with industrial interests when he appears at the deposition hearing.

Pearson and Anderson wrote a series of articles early this year alleging official misconduct by the 57-year-old Dodd. The senator answered with a libel and conspiracy suit last Friday, denying the allegations, which a Senate committee also is investigating at Dodd's request.

State NAHR Meet Closes

The state-wide meeting of the National Association of Housing Redevelopment, is in session today at the Holiday Inn. It opened last night at 7 p.m. with 40 persons registering.

There were a few over 30 more who registered today, before the business session opened at 9:30 a.m., with the address of welcome by Mayor Kendall Sikes.

The more than 70 persons were present from every section of Missouri to hear a discussion on new programs in urban renewal, as well as trends in public housing.

The afternoon session opened at 2 p.m. with a discussion on new assistance programs on urban renewal and public housing, with C. M. Harris of Jefferson City, agent for urban affairs, with a panel of five men, representing all phases of the program.

Committee reports were heard prior to adjournment at 4:30 p.m. today, followed by a banquet at 7 p.m., with a film entitled "No Time For Ugliness."

The weekend statewide meeting will end with a breakfast, presided over by the newly elected chairman. Billy C. Hanna, local housing authority, is host to the outstate housing representatives.

Crippled Youth Saves Life

CHARLESTON -- A crippled youngster, Gary Guerra, 13, fished a four - year -old companion from the water May 5, and apparently should be credited with saving the child's life.

The child is, William Glass, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Q. Glass of Charleston.

Gary's mother, Mrs. R. F. Guerra, said Tuesday her son, crippled since birth by paralysis in both legs, was fishing by himself in a cove of the lake, when he heard William's sister, Elizabeth Ann, scream that her brother had fallen into the water.

The Guerras, Glasses, Mr. and Mrs. William Love, and Mrs. Howard Rice had gone to the lake for an afternoon of fishing and picknicking.

Mrs. Guerra said Gary ran the 200 feet to where William had gone under, dived in, and rescued the child. She said William and Elizabeth had wandered away from the rest of the party, and that no one but Gary could have reached the boy in time to save him. Artificial respiration was not needed.

Gary is a good swimmer, his mother added.

He is scheduled for leg surgery on June 6 at Campbell's Clinic, Memphis, Mrs. Guerra said. He will be in the hospital for two weeks, and then in a cast for three months. One reason for the May 5 trip, she said, was to give Gary an outing before he entered the hospital.

Mr. C's Robbed

Mr. C's IGA foodliner located on South Main Street was broken into and burglarized early today. The entry was discovered by an employe, W. A. Ancell, who reported the theft at 7:15 a.m.

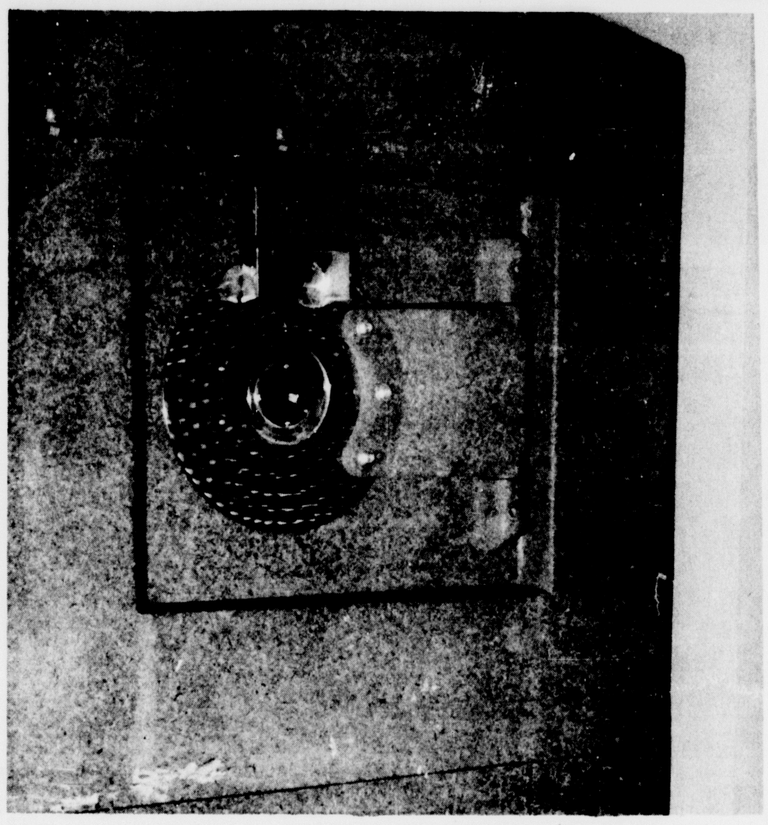

Entry was made through the front doors where the burglars knocked the lock out of the double doors and prized them open.

Reported taken were $15 in pennies and an undetermined amount of cigarettes and whiskey.

The burglars attempted to open the safe but were unsuccessful. They knocked the dials and knobs off. A cash register was damaged as they entered it. There was no money in the register.

Police are investigating, but no clues have been found.

An inventory of the store is being made to determine if other items were taken.

THIEVES DAMAGED the combination of the large safe of "Mr. C's" Super Market, South Main, early today, but failed to gain entry. The knob was knocked off, and two large dents shown in upper part of the dial, together with crowbar marks at the lower part of the safe.

Proceeds from the contest are used for a student award to a graduating senior. The name of the recipient will be announced at the graduating exercises.

Drug Out Of Control

WASHINGTON AP -- A pioneer experimenter with the drug LSD, Dr. Timothy Leary, acknowledged today that use of the drug was out of control. He estimated that one-third of the nation's college students are "experimenting with this drug."

But Leary told the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency:

"The use of LSD by young people has provoked a crisis, not a crisis of peril but a crisis of challenge."

Leary, a former Harvard University phychologist, is now a director of private foundation dealing in research on LSD and similar hallucinogenic agents, and is appealing a 30-year sentence for transporting marijuana.

He defended what he saw as proper use of the drug and called alcohol a much more dangerous substance. Leary said LSD has "an eerie power to release ancient energies from the human brain, I would say even sacred energies."

LSD is a hallucinogenic agent derived from plant fungus.

Leary ran into some sharp cross-examination from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Leary suggested that legislation be passed that would allow responsible adults to use the drug for "spiritual growth and pursuit of knowlede. . ."

He also suggested that colleges be authorized to conduct alergy courses in LSD and said such courses "will end the indiscriminate use of LSD and be the most popular and productive courses ever offered."

To this, Kennedy demanded: "What's going to happen to the boy who doesn't get to college? Are you going to offer high school courses as well?"

Leary said it was a question that would probably have to be left to research.

Program For Chemistry Teachers at Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Southeast Missouri State College Chemistry Department will offer courses this summer designed both as a part of a series leading to the master of arts degree, and to implement the new curriculum for high school chemistry currently published by the State Department of Education.

According to Dr. E. L. Bahn, Jr., head of the department, the program for this summer includes a course in Basic Concepts of Inorganic and Physical Chemistry, for three semester hours of credit. The course is intended to be modern background material and offers additional preparation for teachers already having a major in chemistry at the undergraduate level.

In addition, Dr. Bahn said, a course entitled Modern High School Chemistry for Teachers, for five semester hours, will embody the material set out in the Chemical Education Material Study program, widely accepted by many schools in Missouri as a guide in the new high school chemistry curriculum.

Although this program is designed for chemistry teachers with an undergraduate major in chemistry, teachers without this background will be counseled and placed into courses to complement their academic background, he said.

Inquiries, Dr. Bahn said, should be directed to him at the college in Cape Girardeau.

Sikeston police reported that four persons received summons to appear in court before Judge E. R. Schrader on charges of not having a city auto sticker. Lee Comstock, 2111 Indiana, George Griffin, 1407 Washington, Jerry D. Jackson, 306 Sunset Drive, and Homer Lee Green, 117 W. Wakefield, who was also charged with failure to stop at a stop sign, as was H. J. Blankenship, 228 N. Handy.

Donald M. Bromley, East Prairie, was charged with not having proper registration for car.

Earl Leslie Riley, East Prairie, was charged with Curfew Violation.

Charged with public intoxication was James Burnett of Wadsworth, Kansas.

Arbitration Board to Consider Boundary Dispute

CHARLESTON -- Thurman Propst of Sedgewickville has been named the "third person" and chairman of a board of arbitration which will meet Saturday to consider the boundary dispute between Charleston and East Prairie school districts.

Announcement of Propst's appointment by the State Board of Education was revealed Wednesday night at the R-1 Board meeting.

The Arbitration board will hold its first session at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Circuit Courtroom of the courthouse at Benton, with representatives from both districts on hand to present their side of the case.

The R-1 board designated Superintendent W. R. Pierce Jr. and Attorney Clifton Banta to represent them at the hearing.

At stake before the arbitrators is a 33-square mile area now in the Charleston R-1 district. At the annual school election April 5, voters in the East Prairie district approved the transfer of this territory to the R-2 district, while voters in the Charleston district rejected the transfer.

Under state law, the board of arbitration cannot compromise the matter, but must award the entire area involved to one or the other district.

The other two members of the board are Mississippi County Board President Lloyd Hall and New Madrid County Board President Lyle Bird.

In other action Wednesday night, the R-1 Board:

--Heard a report from CHS guidance counselor Bob Entrekin on his trip to the national convention of the American Personnel and Guidance Association in Washington, D. C.

--Approved a request from Assistant Superintendent Bill Hodges to attend an in-service training workshop for school administrators at Lake Arrowhead, Calif., July 17 to 29.

--Set June 11 at 2 p.m. as the date and time of a public auction at which the house on Danforth Street constructed by the building trades class will be sold. The board said the minimum acceptable bid will be the amount of money the district has put into the house. This figure will not be known for about two weeks.

--Authorized Superintendent Pierce to negotiate for purchase of the lot next to the house just completed. This lot will be used for construction of another house by next year's building trades class.

--Voted to remove the south and east bleachers at the foot ball stadium because of their unsafe condition. A replacement will be considered later.

--Declined to make an exception to a board policy on children attending school in the attendance area in which they live. Mrs. Tommy Hess had requested a transfer from Wyatt to Charleston for her daughter, Robin.

--Approved a resolution authorizing printing and delivery of the $1,400,000 in bonds for the new high school.

--Instructed the superintendent to report at the June meeting on the best way to invest funds received from the sale of the bonds. Some of the funds will not be needed for a full 12 months after the bonds are are sold, and the investment of these funds would bring the district as much as $32,000 in additional revenue, Pierce told the board.

--Approved a contract with the city of Charleston, giving the city title to the A. D. Simpson Park in exchange for services to be provided by the city at the new high school site.

--Heard a written report from Mrs. Virginia Crenshaw on her attendance at the Governor's Conference on Libraries in St. Louis last month.

Four Divorces Granted in New Madrid

NEW MADRID: Four divorce actions were the sole business of the New Madrid County Court this week as Judge William L. Ragland of Caruthersville, presided.

Divorce decrees were as follows:

Linda Nolen Berry versus James Berry -- decree to plantiff and restoration of former name of Nolen.

Clem Farr versus Liza Farr -- decree to plantiff.

Ruby J. Hendrix versus Glenn H. Hedrix -- decree to plaintiff with care and custody of one child and $40 per month child support.

Audra Mae Langston versus Raymond R. Langston -- decree to plantiff.

Six Persons Given Emergency Treatment

Six persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Thursday:

Public to be Barred

WASHINGTON AP -- U. S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff ruled today the public will be barred when pre-trial statements are taken from witnesses in the $5 million libel suit filed by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., against newspaper columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson.

The pre-trial depositions will be started later this month.

Holtzoff postponed a decision on a request that Dodd bring documents relating to his income taxes, political campaign contributions, and dealings with industrial interests when he appears at the deposition hearing.

Pearson and Anderson wrote a series of articles early this year alleging official misconduct by the 57-year-old Dodd. The senator answered with a libel and conspiracy suit last Friday, denying the allegations, which a Senate committee also is investigating at Dodd's request.

Pump Stolen

Richard Hill, 508 Malcolm, reported to Sikeston police that a gas engine tree, sprig pump on a frame valued at $100 had been taken from his carport and 1 pair of tree plummers valued at $10.

Sikeston police are investigating.

State NAHR Meet Closes

The state-wide meeting of the National Association of Housing Redevelopment, is in session today at the Holiday Inn. It opened last night at 7 p.m. with 40 persons registering. There were a few over 30 more who registered today, before the business session opened at 9:30 a.m., with the address of welcome by Mayor Kendall Sikes.

The more than 70 persons were present from every section of Missouri to hear a discussion on new programs in urban renewal, as well as trends in public housing.

The afternoon session opened at 2 p.m. with a discussion on new assistance programs on urban renewal and public housing, with C. M. Harris of Jefferson City, agent for urban affairs, with a panel of five men, representing all phases of the program.

Committee reports were heard prior to adjournment at 4:30 p.m. today, followed by a banquet at 7 p.m., with a film entitled "No Time For Ugliness."

The weekend statewide meeting will end with a breakfast, presided over by the newly elected chairman. Billy C. Hanna, local housing authority, is host to the outstate housing representatives.

Crippled Youth Saves Life

CHARLESTON -- A crippled youngster, Gary Guerra, 13, fished a four - year -old companion from the water May 5, and apparently should be credited with saving the child's life.

The child is, William Glass, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Q. Glass of Charleston.

Gary's mother, Mrs. R. F. Guerra, said Tuesday her son, crippled since birth by paralysis in both legs, was fishing by himself in a cove of the lake, when he heard William's sister, Elizabeth Ann, scream that her brother had fallen into the water.

The Guerras, Glasses, Mr. and Mrs. William Love, and Mrs. Howard Rice had gone to the lake for an afternoon of fishing and picknicking.

Mrs. Guerra said Gary ran the 200 feet to where William had gone under, dived in, and rescued the child. She said William and Elizabeth had wandered away from the rest of the party, and that no one but Gary could have reached the boy in time to save him. Artificial respiration was not needed.

Gary is a good swimmer, his mother added.

He is scheduled for leg surgery on June 6 at Campbell's Clinic, Memphis, Mrs. Guerra said. He will be in the hospital for two weeks, and then in a cast for three months. One reason for the May 5 trip, she said, was to give Gary an outing before he entered the hospital.

The tragic headlines which announce the loss of American lives in Viet Nam makes us constantly aware of the senselessness of war. The only consolation -- if, indeed, there is any consolation -- is that this fight in a steaming far-away land is being waged in the name of freedom and decency.

But there are other tragic headlines. Too many, in fact. And we manage to turn away from them without compassion.

These are the headlines dealing with the loss of life on U. S. highways.

Yet when we use these editorial columns to discuss highway safety (there, we've said it!), we can almost sense the curtain of callousness being drawn down -- an invisible barrier between the printed page and the thinking mind.

This fails to alter the fact that our highway casualty list is tragic. Perhaps even more tragic than our losses in Viet Nam.

In Viet Nam the losses are suffered in the name of a worthy cause.

On our highways, the atrocities are committed for the worst possible causes.

Such causes as "Get-there-before-the-other-guy" . . . . and "Hurry-up-and-wait" . . . and "I'll-take-my-share-of-the-road-anyway."

Last year 48,500 men, women and children were killed on the nation's roadways. That represents approximately the entire population of a city such as Coral Gables, Fla. . . . or Beverly Hills, Calif. . . . or Hoboken, N. J. . . . or Fargo, N.D.

Doesn't that merit your attention for a few moments?

Last year 4,100,000 persons were hurt in traffic accidents. That represents nearly half the population of New York City.

Doesn't that make you stop and think?

As a responsible newspaper, we are frustrated as we attempt to help alleviate this gruesome problem. We can put it on the printed page for all to read.

But who's to read it?

And who will take it to heart enough to do his part?

How do we convince our citizens that they should stop murdering themselves on the highway?

Editorial columns do not really provide the solution.

WHERE THE PRESS STARTED

The dividing line between a government-controlled and a free press probably came in 1735. A little-known German printer named John Peter Zenger, who published a weekly newspaper in New York City, reported corruption in the colonial government and was thrown in jail on the charge of libel by the colonial governor.

Andrew Hamilton, a famous Philadelphia lawyer, came to Zenger's defense and won a "not guilty" verdict on the basis that Zenger had printed the truth.

The belief that democracy should be based on a press free from government control grew, and Thomas Jefferson said:

"Were it left for me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government I would not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter. But I should mean that every man should receive those papers and be capable of reading them."

Jefferson's ideas were incorporated into the Constitution of the United States of America -- and the first of the 10 amendments known as the Bill of Rights provides for the freedom of the press. Article I of the Bill of Rights states specifically that:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press . . ."

Building on this foundation, many state legislatures over the years have passed a number of supplementary laws designed to protect and defend the people's right to know.

Are you too embarrassed to hitchhike?

Are you tired of walking from your car after it breaks down, to the nearest service station?

If you are, read on.

What follows is a list of items to carry in your car. Most people, we agree, know that they SHOULD carry these things, but, nevertheless, we know that most people don't. In case you're in the mood to stock your car now with some trouble-avoiding items, though, here's the list for your convenience:

--Flashlight. For an emergency light under the hood and for checking tires at night.

--Spare tire, jack and lug wrench. Don't laugh. Many people discover only when a tire goes flat that they don't have a spare, or that it doesn't have air in it.

--Warning signal, such as a flare or flasher in case of breakdown.

--First-Aid kit. List blood types of the members of your family and paste it under the lid.

--Your insurance identification card. It's surprising to hear from insurance agents how many customers don't call them after an accident, because they forgot their card or even the name of their insurance company.

A sturdy chain or rope can be indispensable if you need a tow in case of engine breakdown.

Dark glasses, small change in a holder (for emergency phone calls from isolated spots) and a detailed map of your local area also can help you avoid pestiferous inconveniences. Often it's easier to find your way to the other side of the country than the other side of town.

For people who don't go south for the winter, tire chains and a windshield scraper are life savers. So are a bucket of sand or skid pads, a folding shovel -- and a warm blanket in case you become snowbound.

To people who tend to procrastinate we can only say: Force yourself! Buy that spare tire now. The time you save will be your own.

The constant use of advertising means a saving to the retailer as well as to the consumer.

Advertising affects various segments of the economy to produce the savings. It stimulates growth in demand. The increased demand causes more efficient methods of production, resulting in increased productivity per worker.

The consumer then gets an increase in real income. With the extra income he in turn buys more goods which protect his own job through the increased business activity in his community.

Advertising causes other savings for the consumer and retailer. It eliminates costly personal selling goods are sold for a small cost.

Advertising stimulates the use and development of cheaper methods of production and research, making each business more productive. By helping to pre-sell the consumer, it eliminates inefficiencies and promotes the growth of self-service retailing.

Once the advertiser is in full swing he can maintain the more extensive business he is doing by continued advertising.

Increased advertising, if planned effectively, most often pays for itself several times over. Even as the retailer gains excess profits from increased sales, the consumer is able to buy goods at less cost.

VALIANT EFFORT GAINING GROUND

"We are turning the corner in our fight against the cardiovascular diseases."

This good news comes from noted heart specialist, Dr. Paul Dudley White, who was able to go on record with the statement recently for the first time in his 55-year medical career. Speaking as the 1966 Heart Fund campaign got under way, Dr. White cited these declines in the cardiovascular death rate since 1950:

Down 12 per cent among infants under 5 years of age; down 38 per cent for persons between 5 and 24; down 10 per cent among those aged 25 through 44; down 24 per cent among women from 45 to 64; and down 7 per cent among men between 45 and 64.

To put it another way, if the 1950 death rate for heart and blood vessel diseases had persisted to 1963 (the last year for which there are complete statistics), 40,000 more Americans would have died that year than actually did die, including 11,000 in the critical 45-to-64 male age group.

These dramatic benefits were made possible in huge measure by the many millions of dollars that have been contributed to the American Heart Association by people in their local communities.

Dr. White emphasized, however, that heart and blood vessel diseases are still the nation's leading killers, causing close to one million deaths each year. This is more than all other causes of death combined.

He also pointed out that the 7 per cent improvement among men aged 45 to 64 is not as encouraging as it appears to be. This is an AVERAGE decline, reflecting reduction in deaths from stroke, hypertension and other cardiovascular diseases.

The death rate from heart attacks alone has actually gone up by 5 per cent among men in this group.

"Here is our greatest challenge today," said Dr. White. "We must not rest on our laurels while we are losing hundreds of thousands of men in their prime and of our youngsters soon after birth."

We are turning the corner in the battle against heart disease, but it is a wide corner and this is certainly no time to start applying the brakes or to cut off the fuel.

NEW YORK AP-- Are you losing social status in your community because your friends and neighbors have more interesting diseases than you do?

Take stock of yourself. A good self-inventory may reveal you are one of the lucky ones.

For example, let us investigate your fears. Psychiatry now has a high-sounding name for practically every fear in the human catalog of error.

No doubt, like many people, you feel that you aren't being promoted on your job fast enough. Put yourself down as a victim of taphephobia, the fear of being buried alive.

On the other hand, perhaps you worry because your boss is throwing more chores your way than you feel you can handle. Clearly you are suffering from hypengyophobia, the fear of responsibility.

Does your bartender habitually put too much lemon juice in your daiquiris. Let him know that you're an acerophobiac, one who fears sourness. If his martinis are too wet, tell him you're a lifelong hygrophobiac, one who fears moisture.

Millions of straphanging subway riders endure stasibasiphobia, the fear of having to stand up, and the condition probably is incurable -- as there never have been and never will be enough seats on the subway.

Two ailments which might help improve children for which few have today are mastigophobia, fear of flogging, and rhabdophobia, fear of the rod.

Don't apologize any more if you find many modern novels unreadable and most modern art meaningless. It isn't your fault. You've just got symbolophia, the fear of symbolism.

Practically none of us can stand the thought of growing old. That's because since youth worship is so widespread--we are gnawed by chronophobia, the fear of time.

Guys who dislike dancing with tall girls are plagued with hysophobia, the fear of height.

If you're a wife and think your husband is telling fibs about having to stay late at the office, you've got a bad case of mythophobia, the fear of myths.

Afraid the computer will throw you out of work? That's mechanophobia, fear of machines.

Maybe civilization upsets you so much that you can't think of anything that doesn't frighten you. Well, you've got the big-package deal disease--pantophobia, the fear of everything.

Columnists, of course, aren't spared from the general panic. Their occupational disease is the most terrifying of all--graphophobia, the fear of writing.

West Coast Longshoremen Attack Eastern Dockers' Boycott of Viet Cong and Communist China.

Seattle: -- They're more China - conscious here.

Especially the longshoremen up and down this coast. Their leaders campaign for U. S. trade with Communist China. They want no boycott of North Viet Nam.

It is their privilege to speak out. They make the most of it, too.

Especially their leader, Harry Bridges, president of the Pacific dockwallopers. Nor does he confine himself stateside.

Recently he abandoned his carefully cultured, salty, proletarian semantics long enough to address himself to the London Economist. The old actionist of the San Francisco Embarcadero (circa the 30s), angered by the anti - Viet Cong positions of Eastern maritime workers, wrote indignantly to the Economist's editor:

"Sir: Your issue . . . carries a most incomplete and hence misleading article entitled 'Dockers Go to War,' discussing a union boycott of ships of nations which permit trade with North Viet Nam.

"The Maritime Trades Dept. of the AFL - CIO has indeed announced such a boycott, though so far there has been little implementation.

"Among the unions involved in the International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA), whose officials have said they would refuse to handle cargoes on such ships. But the ILA represents longshoremen (dockers) only on the East and Golf Coasts. My union, the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union, which represents longshoremen on the West Coast, Hawaii and Alaska, is not involved in the boycott.

"We are in fact thoroughly opposed to it.

"We favor free trade with all nations and have for example, long conducted a campaign for trade with mainland China, a position anathema to the ILA . . ."

So is Mr. Bridges -- not only in the ILA, whose leader, Ted Gleason, soon will fly with eight other waterfront men -- four stevedores and four wharf clerks -- to Saigon.

Mr. Bridges has a reciprocal loathing agreement with other maritime leaders, such as Big Joe Curran, president of the National Maritime Union.

Curran IS implementing the boycott.

He has directed all his port agents across the world to be on the alert for blood-money ships carrying death cargo to North Vietnamese ports. In the past two months, the NMU's agent in Yokohama has immobilized two such freighters. The story of the second craft has not been told. It should, though it may aggrieve Mr. Bridges.

Some weeks ago "Pat" Paterson, NMU man in Yokohama, heard of the arrival in Ito of the 7,000-ton S. S. Antonia II, formerly a Greek craft, now flying the Cypriot flag. It was bound for the Communist port of Haiphong. Paterson raced to Ito. He got there too late to head her off.

But he did learn she carried steel plate and chemicals and that she was scheduled for a stop in Hong Kong first. She arrived there on April 29.

Paterson flew to the crown colony. There he did get to the crew. He learned they had not been told of the final destination until they were at sea. Paterson told them of their death load.

He then went on to the local Greek government representatives. They sent a chap to talk to the men.

Most of them refused to go back aboard when their country's spokesman told them of their government's own boycott policy. He added they need not ship out.

Six have been repatriated. Fifteen others will be airlifted shortly. Five opted to stay with their officers on the ship.

It was learned that under another name she had been running to Havana as well. And so she was stalled, as was another craft, the S. S. Agenor, which Paterson hit in Kobe back in April. The Agenor carried steel plates, rods, tractor drive carriers and bulk ammonia for explosives.

Perhaps these are just gestures.

But they do show the world where most of America's working people stand. And perhaps these gestures have saved some American soldiers' lives.

At least this tiny dockside war was won by men unashamed to stand against totalitarianism of any brand and any era.

Other ships will be hit. And while the shipping to Haiphong is slowed by this bloodless strategy, Ted Gleason is heading to the Port of Saigon to speed unloading of freighters there. Already during the stays of four of his East Coast dockers, the capacity of the port on which our troops and the Vietnamese people depend for guns and food has been increased by 100,000 tons in the past month. Soon, Mr. Gleason told me recently, the unloading speed at Saigon will be tripled.

Mr. Bridges and company will not like that at all, apparently.

DEFENDERS OF YOUR RIGHTS

Nowadays it seems that an extraordinary variety of men and organizations want to be known as defenders of human rights. That coveted title is sought after with enthusiastic and sometimes ferocious rivalry by a host of self-appointed champions of the underdog and rebels for a cause.

Curiously, sooner or later the hostility of most of these self-appointed defenders of human rights is turned on the only men and the only organization on the job twenty-four hours a day, your local police who must protect the rights of underdogs and upper - dogs, rioters and good citizens.

From the talk we hear today it sometimes seems that the sole function and activity of the police is to throw people in jail. The fact is that we have police to protect the innocent, peaceful, law-abiding citizens.

The police in a free country are the true defenders of human rights, because human rights begin with the right to be let alone so long as you have injured no one else. Because of the presence of a competent police force, you as a good citizen do not have to stand guard constantly over your life, liberty and property like a rancher in the Old West. You can live and enjoy life in safety.

The cries of "police brutality" and the cancelling out of sound police work by unsound court decisions threaten the safety and rights of every one of us, and make support of our police all the more imperative. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- It hasn't been publicized, but all three crew members of the plane which crashed in Ardmore, Okla., April 22, killing 75 servicemen, had medical problems.

Chief Pilot Reed Pigman was under treatment for arteriosclerosis, and nitrogen tablets with his name on the bottle were found in the wreckage. Pigman was president of American Fliers, the non-sked line which was carrying the servicemen.

The co-pilot, Wilbur Marr, had arteriosclerosis in a mild form. This turned up on autopsy. It was not known before the accident.

Flight Engineer Charles Grey is reported to have been under psychiatric treatment.

Flight crews are required to take Federal Aviation Agency medical exams every six months. All three had been passed by FAA doctors.

DODD'S LIBEL SUIT

Here are some things you may not know about Sen. Tom Dodd's $5,000,000 publicity stunt: Our attorney, John Donovan, as of this writing, still has not been able to get served with a copy of the complaint. Dodd was in such a hurry that his Wall Street attorney, John F. Sonnett, went before Judge Alexander Holtzoff late last Friday, when other courts were closed, to file for immediate subpoenas. Yet as of now we have not been served and though we asked for copies of the complaint we have been unable to get one. . . .The case will not come up for trial for at least two years. . . .Sonnett told Judge Holtzoff that there was danger of the witnesses leaving town. On the contrary, most of the witnesses had appeared before a closed-door session of the Senate Ethics Committee and were standing by ready for public testimony. They had been told in the interim not to talk. Now they are subpoenaed to talk.

It looks as if the Senator from Connecticut didn't trust the final decision of his Senate colleagues. . . .Dodd has now put his case before every branch of the federal government. First, he asked the Senate Ethics Committee to investigate. When they took him seriously, he tried to use his old friends in the FBI and the Justice Department. When they began questioning his former employees, he rushed to the third branch of government, the federal courts.

EASTERN HATE-MONGERS

The Far West, once considered the hate capital of the John Birch Society and right-wingism, no longer has that exclusive distinction. The far right hatemongers have now invaded the East.

As a result, the Morrisville, Pa., apartment of liberal commentator Robert Goldman has been wrecked by vandals, with swastikas daubed on his walls.

Also in Eastern Pennsylvania, the far right is staging a bitter campaign to unseat a liberal Republican congressman, Richard S. Schweiker of Norristown.

The drive against Rep. Schweiker is being staged by the John Birch Society, with potent public help from the Pitcairn family, largest stockholders of Pittsburgh Plate Glass, and their lobbyist, Philip Pendleton, who is registered in Washington as lobbyist for the Pitcairn Company, Charitable Contributions Assn., and the Family Tax Association.

One tax amendment which Lobbyist Pendleton tried to push through Congress would have given a tax bonanza to Pennsylvania's and the nation's upper crust to the tune of over $250,000,000.

Also fulminating against the moderate Republican congressman are the extremist Young Americans for Freedom, better known as YAF, and William M. Taylor who calls Schweiker the "Communist representative from Pennsylvania". . .A "traitor to God, to country."

A rightist group called "Committee of the Commonwealth" has been organized to defeat not only Schweiker but two other Republican moderates, Rep. Jim Fulton and Rep. Robert Corbett, both of Pittsburgh, the latter being dean of Pennsylvania Republican congressmen.

Running against Schweiker is ex-Congressman John A. Lafore who is to the right of Barry Goldwater, and who, when in Congress, introduced a bill making the entertainment and other expenses of all lobbyists tax deductible.

RADIO RETALIATION

Radio commentator Robert Goldman, whose apartment was wrecked, broadcasts across the Delaware River in Trenton, N.J., over Station WTTM, where he is host to "Open Mike." He entertains questions from the listening audience and frequently argues with rightist questioners. Last Jan. 26, while broadcasting, he was personally attacked, beaten up, and sent to the hospital with head injuries.

Since then he has received an average of two threats a week on his life or against his wife and three children. The family was in New York when vandals broke open his apartment, slashed furniture, poured food and liquor over the rooms, smashed TV and hi-fi sets and scribbled obscenities and swastikas on the walls.

Such is democracy as practiced by the right wing.

Note--Pennsylvania lost one of its most courageous battlers against bigotry when Attorney General Walter Alessandroni was killed in a plane crash while campaigning for Lieutenant Governor on the GOP ticket. Alessandroni, while Pennsylvania commander of the American Legion, spoke out against McCarthyism at a time when few others had the courage to do so.

KING COTTON REINSTATED

A man who believes in monarchy, though he comes from Democratic Mexico, conferred with Johnson administration officials recently regarding a king whom he considers dethroned.

The official is Julian Rodriguez Adame, former Mexican minister of agriculture, now president of the International Cotton Institute.

The monarch whom Dr. Rodriguez Adame wants reinstated is King Cotton, whose reign over the agricultural South and over other parts of the world, including Mexico, has been jeopardized by nylon, rayon and other synthetics.

The former Mexican minister of agriculture now heads the Cotton Institute comprised of the following cotton-producers in the order of their export: the United States, Mexico, Egypt, Sudan, India and Spain. Each country is contributing $1 for every bale it exports, in order to increase cotton consumption and fight King Cotton's number one enemy--synthetics.

At present the production of cotton world-wide is around 52 million bales, with a consumption between 50 and 51 million. The international export averages around 15 million bales annually.

Dr. Rodriguez Adame's weapons in protecting King Cotton are promotion regarding the advantages of cotton, marketing research and technology.

"Cotton has some very important advantages, and the public must be educated to understand them," the president of the Cotton Institute said in Washington.

"Very important is the fact that cotton absorbs perspiration, and therefore does not give off body odor. In North America you spend millions of dollars on deodorants. The TV commericals are constantly advertising under-the-arm remedies for this. Cotton underwear is one remedy. If you wash certain types of synthetic cloth, it still smells. Cotton doesn't.

Furthermore, cotton is easier to wash, wears better, and it feels better. Imagine anyone sleeping on nylon sheets. Imagine anyone drying themselves with a nylon towel. You would be sleeping on metal and trying to dry yourself with fabricated metal."

JAPANESE COOPERATION

Surprisingly, the head of the new Cotton Institute got a warmer welcome in Tokyo than he did in Washington. The United States is the number one cotton producer of the world, and Japan is one of the biggest consumers. However, the Japanese were willing to contribute approximately $10 million for the promotion of cotton consumption. They will match the contribution of the International Cotton Institute.

When officials of the Cotton Institute arrived in Tokyo, they went first to the Japanese foreign office to ask if there was any objection to a discussion with Japanese textile leaders regarding a use-cotton campaign. The foreign office, after some deliberation, replied in effect: "We believe in competition. You are welcome to discuss the matter."

The Japanese mill owners remarked that they faced many restrictions regarding imports into the United States so that they could not increase their shipments there.

"However, we have a market of 100 million people right here," they told Dr. Rodriguez Adame. "Let us promote our own market."

In Washington, Dr. Rodriguez Adame found that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has 600 grants for the improvement of crops, ranging from soy beans to cotton, but that the federal government had few grants for research in the improvement of cotton textiles. The most important research should be into the problem of shrinking.

"There are only three to four companies monopolizing the synthetic textile industry," said Rodriguez Adame. "But in Mexico we have 300 cotton mills, which is certainly no monopoly. It represents free competition on the part of many businessmen. The same situation exists in the United States.

"It seems to me we must put King Cotton back on the throne. He is good for the farmer, and he is good for business. And with a little more promotion we will show that he is good for the housewife, the athlete, and everyone else interested in clean, healthy living."

When President Johnson got together with President Diaz Ordaz of Mexico, one of the things the Mexican executive talked to him about was U.S. dumping of cotton in order to get rid of the American cotton surplus. The President of Mexico complained that sale of low-priced American cotton hurt the price of Mexican cotton. Instead he proposed a program to sell more cotton at a stable price, rather than dumping it.

Cards Inaugurate New Stadium

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS AP -- Everyone agreed that opening night in St. Louis's glittering new $24 million stadium lived up to all expectations -- everyone except the Atlanta Braves.

Flubbing their lines in the final act for the second time on opening night, the Braves left St. Louis fans applauding by giving the Cardinals a 12-inning 4-3 victory.

The Braves rang up the curtain on their own stadium this season with a 13-inning defeat.

"One pitch, just one pitch," moaned Manager Bobby Bragan whose sluggers led the powerless Cardinals 3-2 on Felipe Alou's two home runs.

With one out in the ninth inning, Alex Johnson of the Cardinals singled to left and took second when Marty Keough fumbled the ball. Johnson reached third with two out and reliever Bill O'Dell had a 2-2 count on light-hitting Jerry Buchek.

Then came the pitch. Buchek hit a pop fly off the fists that dropped in short right field and tied the score.

From then on, things went downhill for the Braves.

Phil Niekro hit Curt Flood to lead off the St. Louis 12th. Orlando Cepeda bunted but reached second and Flood made third when catcher Joe Torre threw wild to sec . Lou Brock brought down the curtain with a bouncer up the middle past the drawn-in infield.

Aside from the outcome of the game, the Braves had good things to say about the new park. Bragan rated it even with Atlanta's new stadium, second only to the Astrodome in Houston.

"The stadium is the same type as ours in Atlanta," said Gene Oliver, "but the wind will be a factor here. We don't have any wind in Atlanta. But you guys don't have to take a back seat to anyone."

Eddie Mathews, among others felt the ball would carry well.

"It's a better park than Shea Stadium in New York," said Alou. "This park is nice and smooth."

The Cardinals agreed.

"Those fences fall away in an awful hurry," Johnson said, "but I think the ball will carry good here. . .better than in Los Angeles. If you don't hit it out you can still get a home run by putting it between the outfielders.

"This park is tailored to our type of club. It's a paradise for line drive hitters."

"It's a better hitters' park than San Francisco because the wind won't be so bad," said Cepeda, recently acquired by the Cardinals from the Giants.

"There will be a lot of doubles and triples," Mike Shannon said.

Whatever the players thought, the 48,048 fans who almost filled the 50,000 river-front edifice went away pleased with the seating comfort, unobstructed view, first-night excitement, and the play of their Cardinals.

DISCORD

The very modern tone poem was being performed by the symphony orchestra. The musicians used whistles, gongs, sirens, banged and rattled strips of metal, horns, falling lumber. As the musicians became more and more enthusiastic, and the music louder and louder, the audience began to snicker. An elderly and distinguished-looking gentleman in the front raised his cane aloft. Tied to it was a white handkerchief.

Kansas Predicted To Capture First in Meet

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBIA AP -- Several new meet records are likely at the 38th Big Eight Track Meet today and tomorrow and the team title race could be one of the tightest in league history, with defending champ Kansas in trouble.

The Associated Press form chart prediction shows Kansas with 92 points, Oklahoma 91, Nebraska 89 and Oklahoma State 79.

Injured men hold the key.

Nebraska's Charlie Greene, successor to Bob Hayes as world's fastest human, says his sore leg is well and he's ready. He is picked to win both the 100 and 220 and anchor the Husker 440 team to victory, cutting into Oklahoma sprint strength. Kansas should score heavily in the field.

Oklahoma's Bill Calhoun is picked to win the 440 against the top field in league history and to anchor the Oklahoma mile relay team to victory.

John Lawson of Kansas, league record holder in the three mile, is picked to win both the mile and three mile, with possible records in both.

Gary Schwartz of Kansas, the discus favorite, is the choice to win although he has been hampered severely the past month with a bad back.

Bob Timmons, Kansas coach, says the Jayhawks must have both Schwartz and Art Cortez to win the crown. But the chart gives Kansas a one-point edge without Cortez, with maximum performances from all other hands.

Cortez, out with a leg injury for a month, could get 15 points in the broad jump, triple jump and high jump if he's well, but it's doubtful he'll be sharp after a long layoff.

The chart shows Kansas State with 58, Colorado 52, Missouri 46 and Iowa State 20. Nebraska, Oklahoma State and K-State are weak in the field.

Only three of the 17 meet marks are safe. The field includes 10 NCAA or Federation national champions of 1965 and 1966.

Nine meet marks have been surpassed in the current outdoor season, five closely approached and four men rank as best in Big Eight history in their events. They are Lawson, 13:40.2 three-mile; Oklahoma's Ron Tull, 7-1 1/2 high jump; Colorado's 16-5 pole vaulter, Chuck Rogers; and Missouri shot putter Gene Crews, 61-7 1/4.

The field includes 20 men ranking among the top five individuals in the 15 individual events, or 20 of the league's all-time top 75 men.

In addition, Oklahoma's 3:08.5 and Oklahoma State's 3:08.9 are the two fastest mile relay times in league history; and Nebraska returns all four men from its 440 relay team, co-holder of the league mark of 40.5.

Also on hand are three members of Oklahoma State's world record two-mile relay team. The 440 field includes four national champs, with K-State's Don Payne third best in league history at 46.2 for 400 meters.

Oklahoma State, led by Bob Dickson, runner-up in the National Amateur, is a strong favorite to win its ninth straight league golf title. Oklahoma is favored in tennis.

The league's faculty representatives will be visited by delegates from six major bowl games. The Southwest Conference has discussed a Cotton Bowl tie-up with the Big Eight, but no action is expected.

Clay's Appeal Rejected

LOUISVILLE, Ky. AP -- The chairman of Cassius Clay's local draft board says his interpretation of Muslim law contradicts the heavyweight champion's claim that serving in the armed forces would go against his religion.

The contradiction, J. Allen Sherman said Thursday, caused the rejection of one appeal made by Clay of his 1-A draft status.

The other appeal, in which Clay said induction in military service would present a hardship, also was rejected by Local Board 47 in Louisville, Sherman said.

Edward Jacko Jr., Clay attorney in New York, said, "The appeal is predicted mostly on harship, because the hardship exists at this time."

But he said there are "eight or nine grounds for the appeal, including conscientious objector." Jacko didn't elaborate on the others.

Sherman said both appeals were referred to Kentucky's Western Judicial Circuit Appeal Board at Louisville.

Should Clay's conscientious objector appeal be upheld, he still would serve, either in noncombatant military service or nonmilitary jobs, said Col. Everette S. Stephenson, director of Kentucky's Selective Service.

Sherman said the local board rejected Clay's appeal after "I looked up a little Muslim law.

"The Muslim code says the Muslims should obey the law of the land in which they reside. Now, the draft law is the law of the land.

"Another thing, the Muslims have their own military force. I don't see how they could say they are not militaristic when they have a military force of their own."

Clay's next recourse after the Western Circuit Appeal Board would be the President, Sherman said. But he said Clay couldn't appeal to Washington unless the appeal board is split on its decision.

Murray State To Play SIU

MURRAY, Ky. -- Murray State's baseball team will play a single game at Southern Illinois today and a doubleheader at St. Louis University Saturday, but the Racers are most concerned with a doubleheader with Austin Peay at Murray Monday.

Austin Peay is in hot pursuit of Murray in the championship race for the Western Division of the Ohio Valley Conference. Murray leads the division with a record of 6-4. Austin Peay is 5-4 and has a tie game with Middle Tennessee that would be replayed if it figures in the division championship. Middle Tennessee is 4-5 and Western 4-6, and the two have a doubleheader left to play.

Murray can win the title outright with a sweep of the doubleheader. A split would assure the Racers of at least a tie. Should Middle Tennessee tie with the Racers, Murray would be declared the champion because they have beaten three of four games. Should Murray and Austin Peay tie, a one-game playoff would be played.

Murray beat Southeast Missouri, champion of the Missouri Intercollegiate Conference 11-12 Tuesday to bring their season mark to 14-8. Star of the game was outfielder Jim Johnston who had a grand - slam homerun and a single to drive in five runs.

Leftie Wayne Davis will pitch against Southern Illinois Friday. Saturday's pitchers have not been announced by Coach Johnny Reagan but they will not be staff aces John Beaton and Dave Gourieux, who will be saved for the Austin Peay doubleheader.

Communication wasn't easy between an Iowan and a telephone operator in Georgia. The operator was attempting to give a number to a Des Moines woman. "You mean 'R' as in 'rabbit'?" inquired the Iowan.

"No, ma'am," replied the Georgian. " 'Ah' like in 'Iris.' "

Scott Central Has Entries In State Meet

A total of 96 Class M schools and 62 Class S schools will meet at the University of Missouri Monday, May 16, for the Sixty-Fourth Annual MSHSAA Outdoor Track Meet. Approximately 348 athletes will represent Class M schools and 220 athletes will represent Class S schools in the event which is to be held at Memorial Stadium. All boys entered in the state meet qualified last week at district meets held at eight sites across the state.

Brentwood High School, the 1965 outdoor champion, again appears to be the team to beat in Class M as they qualified 16 entries in winning their district meet. Brentwood also captured the Class M indoor meet held in March. Plattsburg and Mount Vernon appear to be strong contenders also as they qualified 9 and 8 entries respectively.

University High School of Columbia, this year's Class S indoor champion, won its district meet and is a likely contender for the championship. Lathrop, Rock Port, and Drexel will also field strong entries. King City, winner of the 1965 Class S outdoor crown, has moved up to Class M this year.

Following are some of the top qualifying performances turned in the district meet this past week at Cape Girardeau.

CLASS S

220 yard dash -- John Foster, Delta; District Meet -- Cape Girardeau; Time -- :22.8

880 yard relay -- Rock Port; District Meet -- Maryville; Time -- 1:35.8. Delta; District Meet--Cape Girardeau; Time --1:37.3. North Nodaway; District Meet -- Maryville; Time --1:37.5.

Broad jump -- Gerald Storms, Scott County Central; District Meet -- Cape Girardeau; Distance -- 20' 7 1/4".

CLASS M

220 yard dash -- Louis Franklin, East Prairie; District Meet --Cape Girardeau; Time--:22.5

Shot put -- Rick Waddlington, Illmo-Scott City; District Meet --Cape Girardeau; Distance--52' 1 1/2"

The time schedule for the state meets will be on Central Standard Time. Preliminaries will begin at 9:30 C.S.T. and the finals at 12:00 C. S. T.

THUNDERBOLT

MERCURY announces the first major breakthrough in outboard ignition in 50 years...

NOW—Spark plugs last seasons, not hours!

NOW—Preignition, even with highly leaded fuel, is unheard—and unheard of!

NOW—Engine efficiency and reliability are dramatically increased!

NOW—High-powered engines idle like fishing motors!

The new Thunderbolt ignition was invented and developed by Kiekhaefer engineers. It is a complete, fully integrated system that makes use of space-age, solid-state materials and technology to produce dramatically increased spark plug life and engine performance.

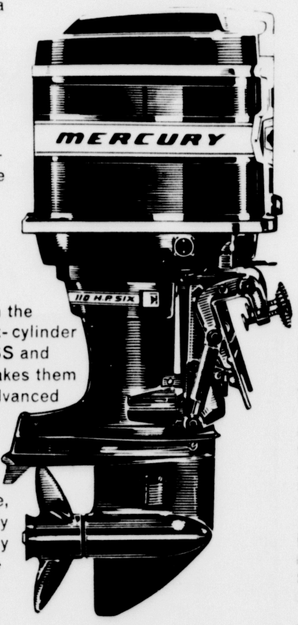

Thunderbolt is so named because its spark voltage impact far surpasses that of a conventional system—and because it produces this voltage in mere millionths of a second, many times faster than a conventional coil-and-battery system does.

Thunderbolt ignition fires the plugs so quickly that practically no energy is lost through leakage. Thus, it can fire plugs that are "fouled" by conventional ignition standards. And, because the triggering current required to discharge the capacitor (condenser) is so small, points are not nearly so subject to pitting and burning.

An integral part of the new Thunderbolt ignition system is Mercury's new Polar-Gap spark plug. Polar-Gap is a very "cold" plug: operating temperature of the electrodes and ceramic insulator is 800 to 1000 degrees cooler than conventional plugs. Consequently, deposits from the use of leaded fuels do not reach preignition temperature levels. Spark arcing area is considerably greater than that of a conventional plug—Polar-Gaps have a 360° electrode gap. This reduces the rate of electrode erosion, partially accounting for the greatly increased life of the Polar-Gap plug.

Thunderbolt's higher voltage spark just about eliminates low speed wet fouling or carbon fouling, while the very low operating temperature of the Polar-Gap plug ends fouling caused by lead deposits from automotive fuels.

And, Thunderbolt brings you a bonus of minimum interference with your radio and electronic equipment—only a single spark is produced.

The new Thunderbolt ignition is exclusive on the new 1966 six-cylinder Mercs 1100SS and 950SS. It makes them the most advanced outboards ever manufactured, offering performance, dependability and economy never before experienced in any high-horsepower outboard.

Deloris Box Plans Vows With Perry Yount

NEW MADRID -- Mrs. Fay Box wishes to announce the engagement of her daughter, Deloris, to Perry Yount, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Yount of Morehouse.

Miss Box is a 1965 graduate of New Madrid high school and is presently employed as secretary at Kellett Oil Company. The prospective groom attended Morehouse high school and is employed at the International Shoe Company.

A June wedding is planned.

Woman's Club Has Last Meeting of Season

The Woman's Club held its last meeting of the season with a spring luncheon in the Colonial Inn in Cape Girardeau.

Hostesses were Mrs. J. S. Wallace, Mrs. Sayers Tanner, Mrs. Harry Young and Mrs. Guy Calvin.

The invocation was given by Mrs. Fred Steward, Sr.

Mrs. E. J. Nienstedt introduced the special guest, Jean Bell Mosley of Cape Girardeau, author and lecturer, who talked of some of her writings. She said her writings come in three distrinct categories: "Farm," and the natural things seen out of doors, "Religious" writings and newspaper work.

She has been writing a column for 10 newspapers for 11 years in the Southeast Missouri District or area.

In the business meeting, it was announced a federation project called "Above and Beyond" will be at 7:30 p.m. May 22 on the older radio broadcast.

The program will relate the deeds of some of the congressional medal of honor recipients. This is the nation's highest military honor.

Mrs. Fredrick A. Koch and Mrs. E. F. Weidemann gave their reports of the Ninth District Spring Convention held in Ste. Genevieve April 20.

Mrs. Weidemann served on the time and place committee at the convention and she announced the Fall Convention will be held in Sikeston Oct. 12. The Junior Woman's Club will also be a host club.

Mrs. Harold Lewis gave the report for the auditing committee.

Other guests were Mrs. Ralph Williams of Cape Girardeau, a former member and Mrs. Robert Dempster.

Canalou WMU Meets Tuesday

CANALOU -- The Canalou Baptist Women's Missionary Union met at the church Tuesday night. Before the program began, cards were prepared to be sent to those who were sick.

Beginning the program, the group sang, "O For a Thousand Tongues to Sing". The program entitled, "The French in Louisiana" was introduced by Mrs. Alene Lasters. Mrs. Vera Kochel presented the topic, "As Seen Through the Eyes of a Poet."

Mrs. Elmer Evans told the group about Louisiana "As Seen Through the Eyes of a Historian." Mrs. Pete McCann told of mission work there "As Seen Through the Eyes of Southern Baptist."

Mrs. Bettye McClarty gave the challenge, "Lift Up Your Eyes, and Look." The concluding part was presented by Mrs. Lasters. Mrs. Evans led the group with closing prayer.

Food Prices May Go Down

NEW YORK AP -- It looks as if the weatherman is in cahoots with the gremlins in the nation's food markets.

Federal officials predicted food prices would go down later this year, with a lot of ifs, including if the weather behaved.

This week, freezes caused severe damage to the fruit crops in the Great Lakes region -- damage that is likely to show up in the form of higher prices in the stores, first in fresh fruit and then canned and frozen supplies.

In southwestern Michigan, Clifford Conrad, Berrien County agricultural agent, said the losses in that bumper fruit-producing county alone might run $5 to $10 million.

"Cherries are about shot," said Frank Klackle, Kent County, Mich., horticultural agent.

In Ohio, serious damage was reported to the peach, pear and apple crops.

Apples were damaged in New York's Hudson Valley, berries in southern Illinois, and grapes near Erie, Pa.

The freeze came after heavy rains cut the onion, potato and carrot crops in Texas. Those rains already are being felt in higher vegetable prices.

Temperatures in the 90s in eastern Washington and dry weather have added to the woes of pea growers after one of the worst freezes in history last month.

Housewives may fast higher prices for frozen peas as a result.

Damage to the orange crop was not as bad as originally feared.

Lettuce, delayed by cool weather, is increasingly plentiful, and prices finally are headed lower.

The federal government pointed to the possibility of lower prices later this year for livestock, poultry, eggs, potatoes and vegetables.

Pork, which played a major role in soaring food prices last winter, has been up and down this week.

Some beef and pork prices are reported lower across the country, with the emphasis on advertised specials.

Rev. Storey To Be Speaker

The Rev. Phil Storey of Jackson, Tenn., will speak and sing at the First Church of the Nazarene Sunday morning at 10:45 a.m. and in the evening at 7 p.m.

He will be accompanied by his wife, and his son, Paul, who will also sing. Storey is a graduate of Eastern Nazarene college, and formerly dean of men at Bethany college, Bethany, Okla. This is a talented family.

The public is invited. John D. Rhame is pastor.

Sixteen Attend WSCS Meeting

MOREHOUSE -- The Women's Society of Christian Service met Monday afternoon in the Fellowship room of the Rauch-Spence Memorial Methodist church for its regular monthly business meeting with 15 members and one visitor, Mrs. C. L. Lasters of Canalou, attending.

Mrs. Nelson Gruen, leader, used as a worship setting a centerpiece of spring flowers and one red brick. By using several verses of scripture she illustrated how a lowly lone red brick can be used to symbolize the character of a true Christian. Scripture she used was Genesis 2:7, Daniel 3:19-20, Ephesians 2:19-22, Psalms 39:3 and Malachi 1:11. She closed with prayer.

A business meeting was conducted by President Mrs. Nelson Gruen, Recording Secretary Mrs. William Dillon read the minutes from the previous meeting and Treasurer Mrs. Joe Barnett gave her report.

The Rev. James Estep will install W. S. C. S. officers for 1966-67 Sunday. The pledge service will be held May 30 with Mrs. Wendell Fox, the new treasurer, in charge. The benediction was pronounced by Mrs. Irene Bowen.

Art Exhibit Entries to be Made May 27

The Sikeston Art League is sponsoring the Holiday Art Exhibit at the Holiday Inn, in Sikeston, May 28 and 29. As in previous years, original drawings, paintings and sculpture, representing many talents and various media will be accepted. The standard materials, pen and ink, pencil, pastels, water colors, charcoal, oils and more recent additions such as polymer will be found.

All drawings and paintings must be framed, ready to hang. Sculpture must be of a durable material. The Art League will take all precautions to see that articles are carefully handled, but cannot assume responsibility for loss or damage of entries. All work should have been completed within the last five years and never before exhibited in Sikeston. Artists, high school age or older, may make three entries. Again this year, no entry fee will be required and entries may be placed for sale. The artist must set price of articles.

All entries will be made on May 27. Articles may be brought to room 200 at the Holiday Inn on that day between the hours of 9 a.m. and 9 p.m.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

A Review of the 1964 Term

X. INTERSTATE RELATIONS

Lest it be thought from the foregoing analysis that the United States Supreme Court has become a drifting, and perhaps even deleterious branch of government, the Court continued, last term, to perform some useful work in resolving interstate problems. In Texas v. New Jersey, it settled a squabble among Texas, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Florida over some unclaimed debts owed by the Sun Oil Company to some 1,700 small creditors who never had collected them and who could not be located. The company did not claim the property, but was faced with claims from several States over the same debts. Mr. Justice Black wrote a pragmatic opinion holding that the State of the debtor's last known address on the books of the company could escheat his unpaid debts, and if no address were known, then the State where the company was incorporated would get the money. The decision was based on the realities involved in administering a large number of small sums of money. It seems reasonable to inquire why such common-sense cannot be permitted to percolate into other areas of constitutional law.

The Court also decided that a resident of one State who works in that State for an out-of-State corporation is not required by the Full Faith and Credit Clause (Act. IV, No. 1) to submit himself to an out-of-State remedy against the corporation when his local law provides a remedy. Likewise, it held that an ex parte Florida divorce decree could validly extinguish inchoate, or merely possible, dower rights of the wife in her ex-husband's real estate in Florida. It rejected a claim, therefore, that such a Florida decision failed to give full faith and credit to a previous New York separation decree, thus recognizing Florida's interest in effecutating its decrees as they affect property located there.

Finally, the Court held that the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment is violated when a State taxes the sale of property which occurs outside of its limits, even though the seller is authorized to do business within the State, and he knows that the property ultimately will be used in the State. Such a decision protects a seller from multiple burdens imposed by taxation from more than one State on the same sale, and likewise tends to delineate each State's sources of revenue. The result is to promote interstate harmony.

JEFFERSON CITY, AP -- Unemployment compensation payments dropped again in cost during April, the State Division of Employment Security reported today.

Herman Julien, division director, said the April cost was $2,463,712, down $1,552,708 from March and down $867,364 from April last year.

Initial claims, considered a barometer of the employment picture, totaled 20,327 in April down 720 from March.

Brothers Have First Glance

KANSAS CITY AP -- Peter J. Carter, 58, a Kansas City restauranteur, met his younger brother, Andrew, 27, for the first time Wednesday.

Peter was born in Memphis and Andrew in Greece after their father, George Clisaris, returned to his homeland in 1929.

Peter refused to go back, he was 21 at the time, changed his name to Carter and eventually moved to Kansas City.

The rest of the family settled again in Greece, where the elder Clisaris went into the money-lending business, which bankrupted him when the Germans occupied the country. They issued worthless script which borrowers used to pay off their debts, and Clisaris went broke.

In the late 30s, Carter brought two sisters and another brother to America, and in 1939 Andrew was born. He is visiting in the United States, but hopes to come back some day to stay.

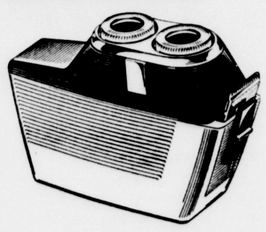

"I like the U. S. as a whole," he said, "but I feel that the people here are in a constant hurry to get somewhere when they are really going nowhere."

He plans to see St. Louis, Chicago, and New York during his remaining three weeks. So far, he said, he believes his most lasting impression will be Kansas City's steaks.

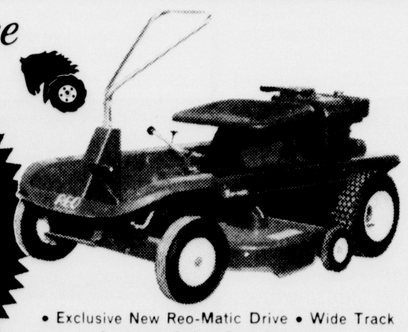

"The steaks here are...well, I just don't know how to describe them. They are ... you know, delicious."

Cards Inaugurate New Stadium

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS AP -- Everyone agreed that opening night in St. Louis's glittering new $24 million stadium lived up to all expectations -- everyone except the Atlanta Braves.

Flubbing their lines in the final act for the second time on opening night, the Braves left St. Louis fans applauding by giving the Cardinals a 12-inning 4-3 victory.

The Braves rang up the curtain on their own stadium this season with a 13-inning defeat.

"One pitch, just one pitch," moaned Manager Bobby Bragan whose sluggers led the powerless Cardinals 3-2 on Felipe Alou's two home runs.

With one out in the ninth inning, Alex Johnson of the Cardinals singled to left and took second when Marty Keough fumbled the ball. Johnson reached third with two out and reliever Bill O'Dell had a 2-2 count on light-hitting Jerry Buchek.

Then came the pitch. Buchek hit a pop fly off the fists that dropped in short right field and tied the score.

From then on, things went downhill for the Braves.

Phil Niekro hit Curt Flood to lead off the St. Louis 12th. Orlando Cepeda bunted but reached second and Flood made third when catcher Joe Torre threw wild to sec d. Lou Brock brought down the curtain with a bouncer up the middle past the drawn-in infield.

Aside from the outcome of the game, the Braves had good things to say about the new park. Bragan rated it even with Atlanta's new stadium, second only to the Astrodome in Houston.

"The stadium is the same type as ours in Atlanta," said Gene Oliver, "but the wind will be a factor here. We don't have any wind in Atlanta. But you guys don't have to take a back seat to anyone."

Eddie Mathews, among others felt the ball would carry well.

"It's a better park than Shea Stadium in New York," said Alou. "This park is nice and smooth."

The Cardinals agreed.

"Those fences fall away in an awful hurry," Johnson said, "but I think the ball will carry good here. . .better than in Los Angeles. If you don't hit it out you can still get a home run by putting it between the outfielders.

"This park is tailored to our type of club. It's a paradise for line drive hitters."

"It's a better hitters' park than San Francisco because the wind won't be so bad," said Cepeda, recently acquired by the Cardinals from the Giants.

"There will be a lot of doubles and triples," Mike Shannon said.

Whatever the players thought, the 48,048 fans who almost filled the 50,000 river-front edifice went away pleased with the seating comfort, unobstructed view, first-night excitement, and the play of their Cardinals.

DISCORD

The very modern tone poem was being performed by the symphony orchestra. The musicians used whistles, gongs, sirens, banged and rattled strips of metal, horns, falling lumber. As the musicians became more and more enthusiastic, and the music louder and louder, the audience began to snicker. An elderly and distinguished-looking gentleman in the front raised his cane aloft. Tied to it was a white handkerchief.

Kansas Predicted To Capture First in Meet

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBIA AP -- Several new meet records are likely at the 38th Big Eight Track Meet today and tomorrow and the team title race could be one of the tightest in league history, with defending champ Kansas in trouble.

The Associated Press form chart prediction shows Kansas with 92 points, Oklahoma 91, Nebraska 89 and Oklahoma State 79.

Injured men hold the key.

Nebraska's Charlie Greene, successor to Bob Hayes as world's fastest human, says his sore leg is well and he's ready. He is picked to win both the 100 and 220 and anchor the Husker 440 team to victory, cutting into Oklahoma sprint strength. Kansas should score heavily in the field.

Oklahoma's Bill Calhoun is picked to win the 440 against the top field in league history and to anchor the Oklahoma mile relay team to victory.

John Lawson of Kansas, league record holder in the three mile, is picked to win both the mile and three mile, with possible records in both.

Gary Schwartz of Kansas, the discus favorite, is the choice to win although he has been hampered severely the past month with a bad back.

Bob Timmons, Kansas coach, says the Jayhawks must have both Schwartz and Art Cortez to win the crown. But the chart gives Kansas a one-point edge without Cortez, with maximum performances from all other hands.

Cortez, out with a leg injury for a month, could get 15 points in the broad jump, triple jump and high jump if he's well, but it's doubtful he'll be sharp after a long layoff.

The chart shows Kansas State with 58, Colorado 52, Missouri 46 and Iowa State 20. Nebraska, Oklahoma State and K-State are weak in the field.

Only three of the 17 meet marks are safe. The field includes 10 NCAA or Federation national champions of 1965 and 1966.

Nine meet marks have been surpassed in the current outdoor season, five closely approached and four men rank as best in Big Eight history in their events. They are Lawson, 13:40.2 three-mile; Oklahoma's Ron Tull, 7-1 1/2 high jump; Colorado's 16-5 pole vaulter, Chuck Rogers; and Missouri shot putter Gene Crews, 61-7 1/4.

The field includes 20 men ranking among the top five individuals in the 15 individual events, or 20 of the league's all-time top 75 men.

In addition, Oklahoma's 3:08.5 and Oklahoma State's 3:08.9 are the two fastest mile relay times in league history; and Nebraska returns all four men from its 440 relay team, co-holder of the league mark of 40.5.

Also on hand are three members of Oklahoma State's world record two-mile relay team. The 440 field includes four national champs, with K-State's Don Payne third best in league history at 46.2 for 400 meters.

Oklahoma State, led by Bob Dickson, runner-up in the National Amateur, is a strong favorite to win its ninth straight league golf title. Oklahoma is favored in tennis.

The league's faculty representatives will be visited by delegates from six major bowl games. The Southwest Conference has discussed a Cotton Bowl tie-up with the Big Eight, but no action is expected.

Clay's Appeal Rejected

LOUISVILLE, Ky. AP -- The chairman of Cassius Clay's local draft board says his interpretation of Muslim law contradicts the heavyweight champion's claim that serving in the armed forces would go against his religion.

The contradiction, J. Allen Sherman said Thursday, caused the rejection of one appeal made by Clay of his 1-A draft status.

The other appeal, in which Clay said induction in military service would present a hardship, also was rejected by Local Board 47 in Louisville, Sherman said.

Edward Jacko Jr., Clay attorney in New York, said, "The appeal is predicted mostly on harship, because the hardship exists at this time."

But he said there are "eight or nine grounds for the appeal, including conscientious objector." Jacko didn't elaborate on the others.

Sherman said both appeals were referred to Kentucky's Western Judicial Circuit Appeal Board at Louisville.

Should Clay's conscientious objector appeal be upheld, he still would serve, either in noncombatant military service or nonmilitary jobs, said Col. Everette S. Stephenson, director of Kentucky's Selective Service.

Sherman said the local board rejected Clay's appeal after "I looked up a little Muslim law.

"The Muslim code says the Muslims should obey the law of the land in which they reside. Now, the draft law is the law of the land.

"Another thing, the Muslims have their own military force. I don't see how they could say they are not militaristic when they have a military force of their own."

Clay's next recourse after the Western Circuit Appeal Board would be the President, Sherman said. But he said Clay couldn't appeal to Washington unless the appeal board is split on its decision.

Guests of honor at a luncheon included Groucho Marx and a general. The master of ceremonies announced, "I now give you Groucho Marx, who will make up some jokes for us."

Groucho rose, but all he said was, "I yield to the general. He will fire a cannon."

Scott Central Has Entries In State Meet

A total of 96 Class M schools and 62 Class S schools will meet at the University of Missouri Monday, May 16, for the Sixty-Fourth Annual MSHSAA Outdoor Track Meet. Approximately 348 athletes will represent Class M schools and 220 athletes will represent Class S schools in the event which is to be held at Memorial Stadium. All boys entered in the state meet qualified last week at district meets held at eight sites across the state.

Brentwood High School, the 1965 outdoor champion, again appears to be the team to beat in Class M as they qualified 16 entries in winning their district meet. Brentwood also captured the Class M indoor meet held in March. Plattsburg and Mount Vernon appear to be strong contenders also as they qualified 9 and 8 entries respectively.

University High School of Columbia, this year's Class S indoor champion, won its district meet and is a likely contender for the championship. Lathrop, Rock Port, and Drexel will also field strong entries. King City, winner of the 1965 Class S outdoor crown, has moved up to Class M this year.

Following are some of the top qualifying performances turned in the district meet this past week at Cape Girardeau.

CLASS S

220 yard dash -- John Foster, Delta; District Meet -- Cape Girardeau; Time -- :22.8

880 yard relay -- Rock Port; District Meet -- Maryville; Time -- 1:35.8. Delta; District Meet--Cape Girardeau; Time --1:37.3. North Nodaway; District Meet -- Maryville; Time --1:37.5.

Broad jump -- Gerald Storms, Scott County Central; District Meet -- Cape Girardeau; Distance -- 20' 7 1/4".

CLASS M

220 yard dash -- Louis Franklin, East Prairie; District Meet --Cape Girardeau; Time--:22.5

Shot put -- Rick Waddlington, Illmo-Scott City; District Meet --Cape Girardeau; Distance--52' 1 1/2"

The time schedule for the state meets will be on Central Standard Time. Preliminaries will begin at 9:30 C.S.T. and the finals at 12:00 C. S. T.

Murray State To Play SIU

MURRAY, Ky. -- Murray State's baseball team will play a single game at Southern Illinois today and a doubleheader at St. Louis University Saturday, but the Racers are most concerned with a doubleheader with Austin Peay at Murray Monday.

Austin Peay is in hot pursuit of Murray in the championship race for the Western Division of the Ohio Valley Conference. Murray leads the division with a record of 6-4. Austin Peay is 5-4 and has a tie game with Middle Tennessee that would be replayed if it figures in the division championship. Middle Tennessee is 4-5 and Western 4-6, and the two have a doubleheader left to play.

Murray can win the title outright with a sweep of the doubleheader. A split would assure the Racers of at least a tie. Should Middle Tennessee tie with the Racers, Murray would be declared the champion because they have beaten three of four games. Should Murray and Austin Peay tie, a one-game playoff would be played.

Murray beat Southeast Missouri, champion of the Missouri Intercollegiate Conference 11-12 Tuesday to bring their season mark to 14-8. Star of the game was outfielder Jim Johnston who had a grand - slam homerun and a single to drive in five runs.

Leftie Wayne Davis will pitch against Southern Illinois Friday. Saturday's pitchers have not been announced by Coach Johnny Reagan but they will not be staff aces John Beaton and Dave Gourieux, who will be saved for the Austin Peay doubleheader.

Communication wasn't easy between an Iowan and a telephone operator in Georgia. The operator was attempting to give a number to a Des Moines woman. "You mean 'R' as in 'rabbit'?" inquired the Iowan.

"No, ma'am," replied the Georgian. "'Ah' like in 'Iris.'"

THUNDERBOLT

MERCURY announces the first major breakthrough in outboard ignition in 50 years...

NOW—Spark plugs last seasons, not hours!

NOW—Preignition, even with highly leaded fuel, is unheard—and unheard of!

NOW—Engine efficiency and reliability are dramatically increased!

NOW—High-powered engines idle like fishing motors!

The new Thunderbolt ignition was invented and developed by Kiekhaefer engineers. It is a complete, fully integrated system that makes use of space-age, solid-state materials and technology to produce dramatically increased spark plug life and engine performance.

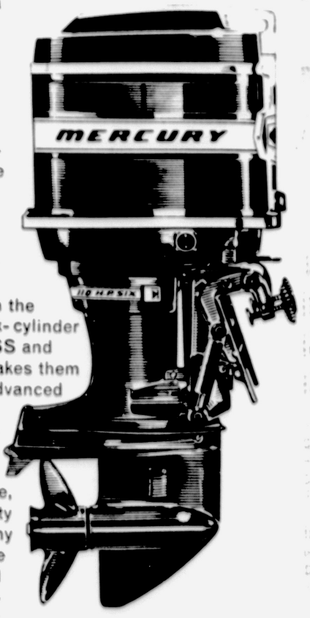

Thunderbolt is so named because its spark voltage impact far surpasses that of a conventional system—and because it produces this voltage in mere millionths of a second, many times faster than a conventional coil-and-battery system does.

Thunderbolt ignition fires the plugs so quickly that practically no energy is lost through leakage. Thus, it can fire plugs that are "fouled" by conventional ignition standards. And, because the triggering current required to discharge the capacitor (condenser) is so small, points are not nearly so subject to pitting and burning.

An integral part of the new Thunderbolt ignition system is Mercury's new Polar-Gap spark plug. Polar-Gap is a very "cold" plug: operating temperature of the electrodes and ceramic insulator is 800 to 1000 degrees cooler than conventional plugs. Consequently, deposits from the use of leaded fuels do not reach preignition temperature levels. Spark arcing area is considerably greater than that of a conventional plug—Polar-Gaps have a 360° electrode gap. This reduces the rate of electrode erosion, partially accounting for the greatly increased life of the Polar-Gap plug.

Thunderbolt's higher voltage spark just about eliminates low speed wet fouling or carbon fouling, while the very low operating temperature of the Polar-Gap plug ends fouling caused by lead deposits from automotive fuels.

And, Thunderbolt brings you a bonus of minimum interference with your radio and electronic equipment—only a single spark is produced.

The new Thunderbolt ignition is exclusive on the new 1966 six-cylinder Mercs 1100SS and 950SS. It makes them the most advanced outboards ever manufactured, offering performance, dependability and economy never before experienced in any high-horsepower outboard.

Captain Agress To Verify Claim

SAN FRANCISCO AP - A Russian ship captain, seeking to make engine repairs in San Francisco Bay, agreed Monday night to a Coast Guard inspection to verify his claim that an emergency exists.

Only last Friday, Henry H. Fowler, secretary of the treasury, denied the Chernjakhovsk permission to enter San Francisco Bay to make repairs. Fowler said it was inimical to the best interests of the United States.

The Coast Guard said the ship would be permitted into Drake's Bay north of San Francisco where American inspectors can verify whether piston rings are broken as claimed.

International law requires the granting of sheltered waters to a ship claiming emergency trouble, for as long as necessary to learn whether there actually is a crisis. If there is, the next step would be up to the U.S. State Department, the Coast Guard said.

The Chernjakhovsk is a trawler that has been serving as the mother ship for a Soviet international waters off the coasts of California and Oregon.

It will probably be days before the ship reaches Drake's Bay.

There is bad weather offshore and worse in prospect, the Coast Guard said.

Meanwhile, W. G. Saletic, president of the Congress of American Fishermen, said in a statement that "recent events have caused the CAF to conclude the United States is in great danger."

"Not only is the trawler fleet systematically wiping out our fishery, which may mean the difference between life and death for future American generations, but the Russian ships are now believed to have engaged in even more sinister activities," he declared.

The CAF said the March issue of Navy, the Navy League publication, declared that homing devices of Russian manufacturers are being discovered on the bottom at key spots off the West Coast.

Such devices, the article said, would permit extremely accurate firing of ballistic missiles by submarine or ships.

DREAMING IN THE TWILIGHT

I sit all alone in the twilight
Dreaming of days gone by
Of the happy days of childhood
And the friends that were always nigh

I could feel the soft cool zephr
From out of the golden west
While in my heart I pondered
If today have I done my best?

Have I helped some wayfaring pilgrim
Going down life's weary road
Or by some deed of kindness
Helped to lighten his load?

Have I done some kind deed for my neighbor
And been a friend worthwhile
Or have I given to someone heartbroken
A frown instead of a smile?

Have I yearned for wordly pleasure
Or worked for some selfish award
When just to give a cup of of cold water
Could bring to me a reward?

Have I gone into the home of the needy
With an abundance of things to share
Or have I been neglectful
With never a thought or a care?

If I have, O Lord, please forgive me
And help me to do my best
To bring some storm tossed sailor
Safe into the Haven of rest.

As I travel on down life's pathway
Let me do the best that I can
So they can say when I'm in my casket,
"He was a friend of man."

Seven New Citizens

CAPE GIRARDEAU - - Seven persons representing six nations became citizens of the United States Tuesday afternoon in naturalization ceremonies in United States District Court here.

The principal address in the ceremony was delivered by A. J. Seier, Cape Girardeau lawyer, who told the new citizens that through generation after generation, "perhaps our sense of history has been dulled. In a sense, your naturalization is a renewal and rededication of the original purpose on which this nation was founded."

Mr. Seier also told the class members that they are a special type of American who have a unique contribution to make.

Judge Roy W. Harper, who presided at the ceremony, also addressed the new citizens, saying, "This nation's gift of citizenship is the greatest honor that can be given to a man or woman."

The new citizens are Robert G. Martin, Cape Girardeau, a State College student and a native of Canada; Mrs. Hisako O. Ryan, a Cape Girardeau housewife from Japan; Mrs. Dimitra Zaharopoulos, a Cape Girardeau housewife from Greece; Mrs. Brigitte C. Niswonger, a Cape Girardeau seamstress from Germany; Mrs. Hermine Simmons, an Oran housewife from Germany; Mrs. Ida E. Myers, a Fredericktown housewife from Czechoslavakia, and Mrs. Kil Cha Israel, a Cape Girardeau housewife from Korea.

Mayor J. Ronald Fischer and Vernon H. Landgraf, president of the Chamber of Commerce, joined Judge Harper after the ceremonies in offering congratulations to the new citizens.

Other participants in the program were the Central High School choir directed by Gene Bryant, a Veterans of Foreign Wars color guard, the Nancy Hunter Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and Girl Scout Troop 47.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Wm. Krudwig, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Cathedral.

In other proceedings in Federal Court Tuesday, a jury began hearing a damage suit case involving an automobile accident, but the case was settled later in the day.

The case was Theodore E. Kelley of Sikeston versus H. A. Campbell of the state of Washington.

Remaining on this week's docket is the case of the Farm Boy Implement Mfg. Co. versus Gates Rubber Co. which will be tried before Judge Harper beginning Thursday morning.

Highway Department Supports 'War On Weeds' With Spraying

The Missouri State Highway Department today became an early enlistee in Governor Warren E. Hearnes' 'War on Weeds' in 1966.

In supporting the governor's proclamation, the Department pointed out that it has a continuous spraying program aimed at improving roadsides' appearance by controlling weeds and brush.

The governor called for a special weed-fighting effort this year because "the damage caused by weeds, directly and indirectly, is adversely affecting Missouri's agricultural economy" and Missouri's natural beauty.

Spraying is not a substitute for mowing, the Department said. But, with mowing, it effectively controls weeds and brush along roadsides. Roadside spraying also prevents weeds from spreading onto adjacent farmland.

With its continuing spraying program, supplemented by a growing landscaping program, the Department is attempting to add safety and beauty to the state's highways as economically as possible.

Chemicals used, said the Department, do not harm animal life if applied by manufacturer's directions. And these recommendations are adhered to strictly. The Department uses only chemicals recommended by the University of Missouri and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Department sprays no herbicides in areas adjacent to susceptible crops, desirable trees and shrubs. And no spraying is done when wind velocity exceeds 10 miles per hour.

The Highway Department and the University of Missouri are now experimenting with additional chemicals and different methods of application in a search for better and more economical weed control.

Also, an experimental mowing-spraying project is being conducted aimed at not only improving roadside appearance but greatly reducing mowing costs and erosion.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS: public works services provided in our community are an integral part of our citizen's everyday lives; and

WHEREAS: the support of an understanding and informed citizenry is vital to the planning and construction of public works programs and systems such as electrical, water, sewer, streets, highways and other types of facilities; and

WHEREAS: the health, sanitation, safety and general well-being of this community depends, to a great degree, on these services and facilities; and

WHEREAS: the quality, efficiency, and effectiveness of these facilities, as well as the planning, design, and construction of future facilities, is vitally dependent upon our public works engineers, administrators, and technicians; and

WHEREAS: retaining and attracting qualified and dedicated personnel to staff public works departments is materially influenced by the people's attitude and understanding of the importance of the work performed by such employees; now therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED that I Kendall Sikes, Mayor of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, do hereby proclaim May 15-21, 1966, as NATIONAL PUBLIC WORKS WEEK and call upon all citizens and civic organizations to acquaint themselves with the problems involved in providing public works facilities and services; and recognize the important role in our safety, health and well-being that is played by the public works officials in our community.

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

Jerome Eisenberg, antiquarian, numismatist and director of the Royal-Athena Galleries in New York City, has a faith that knows no national boundaries.

In June, 1961, Mr. Eisenberg established the Eisenberg Museum of Egyptian and Near Eastern Antiquities at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. It was given in honor of his parents and dedicated to them because "I wanted to something for them while they were still alive."

This all came about through Mr. Eisenberg having an earlier chance meeting with Dr. E. J. Vardaman of the Seminary over a case of ancient coins in a museum in Jerusalem. Both being interested in Judeo-Christian antiquities, they formed a firm and lasting friendship. When Mr. Eisenberg decided to give the museum it was only natural that his friend Dr. Vardaman and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary would be the recipient. The archaeological materials in the museum are invaluable to students and the general public interested in the everyday life of the Bible period.

Raised in a devout Jewish home, Mr. Eisenberg bases the strength of his faith on the Golden Rule. From an early age his parents, who were teachers, stimulated his interest in ancient history. His collections of religious antiquities cover all ages and all religions as pictured above. At the top, a 14th century French Saint woodcarving. Center, a North Syrian idol from the Canaanite period over 3000 years old. And bottom, a Siamese bronze Buddha from the 13th century. Dr. Vardaman in his praise of Mr. Eisenberg said, "He is the Renaissance man in the 20th century."

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

X. INTERSTATE RELATIONS

Lest it be thought from the foregoing analysis that the United States Supreme Court has become a drifting, and perhaps even deleterious branch of government, the Court continued, last term, to perform some useful work in resolving interstate problems. In Texas v. New Jersey, it settled a squabble among Texas, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Florida over some unclaimed debts owed by the Sun Oil Company to some 1,700 small creditors who never had collected them and who could not be located. The company did not claim the property, but was faced with claims from several States over the same debts. Mr. Justice Black wrote a pragmatic opinion holding that the State of the debtor's last known address on the books of the company could escheat his unpaid debts, and if no address were known, then the State where the company was incorporated would get the money. The decision was based on the realities involved in administering a large number of small sums of money. It seems reasonable to inquire why such common-sense cannot be permitted to percolate into other areas of constitutional law.

The Court also decided that a resident of one State who works in that State for an out-of-State corporation is not required by the Full Faith and Credit Clause (Act. IV, No. 1) to submit himself to an out-of-State remedy against the corporation when his local law provides a remedy. Likewise, it held that an ex parte Florida divorce decree could validly extinguish inchoate, or merely possible, dower rights of the wife in her ex-husband's real estate in Florida. It rejected a claim, therefore, that such a Florida decision failed to give full faith and credit to a previous New York separation decree, thus recognizing Florida's interest in effecutating its decrees as they affect property located there.

Finally, the Court held that the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment is violated when a State taxes the sale of property which occurs outside of its limits, even though the seller is authorized to do business within the State, and he knows that the property ultimately will be used in the State. Such a decision protects a seller from multiple burdens imposed by taxation from more than one State on the same sale, and likewise tends to delineate each State's sources of revenue. The result is to promote interstate harmony.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Savage visited Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Lucy Ward in the Sikeston hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Carrington of Peoria, Ill., visited last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Carrington and her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Agee, of Morehouse and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Agee of East Prairie.

Mr and Mrs. Henry Hart and Edgar Todd met the latters wife Mildred at the airport Saturday night in Memphis. She had spent two weeks with her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Largent and children in Long Beach, Calif. They were all Mother's day guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Burch and son and Mike Hart of Memphis.

JEFFERSON CITY, AP -- Unemployment compensation payments dropped again in cost during April, the State Division of Employment Security reported today.

Herman Julien, division director, said the April cost was $2,463,712, down $1,552,708 from March and down $867,364 from April last year.

Initial claims, considered a barometer of the employment picture, totaled 20,327 in April down 720 from March.

Brothers Have First Glance

KANSAS CITY AP -- Peter J. Carter, 58, a Kansas City restauranteur, met his younger brother, Andrew, 27, for the first time Wednesday.

Peter was born in Memphis and Andrew in Greece after their father, George Clisaris, returned to his homeland in 1929.

Peter refused to go back, he was 21 at the time, changed his name to Carter and eventually moved to Kansas City.

The rest of the family settled again in Greece, where the elder Clisaris went into the money-lending business, which bankrupted him when the Germans occupied the country. They issued worthless script which borrowers used to pay off their debts, and Clisaris went broke.

In the late 30s, Carter brought two sisters and another brother to America, and in 1939 Andrew was born. He is visiting in the United States, but hopes to come back some day to stay.

"I like the U. S. as a whole," he said, "but I feel that the people here are in a constant hurry to get somewhere when they are really going nowhere."

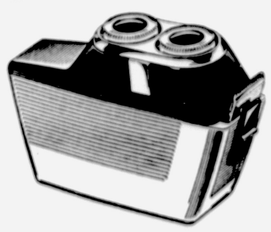

He plans to see St. Louis, Chicago, and New York during his remaining three weeks. So far, he said, he believes his most lasting impression will be Kansas City's steaks.

"The steaks here are ... well, I just don't know how to describe them. They are ... you know, delicious."

Mother Will Keep Twins

CLEVELAND AP -- Mrs. Barbara Brooks doesn't have to worry about giving up her twin daughters. She needed help and now has more than she knows what to do with.

"I'm amazed at the way people have come through," said Mrs. Brooks, 28, Thursday.

Mrs. Brooks' arms were crippled by polio in 1951. She can use her hands but can't lift or hold anything weighing more than eight pounds. Her two-month old daughters weigh seven pounds apiece.

She said she would have to give up the twins if she didn't get someone to help.

She received over 80 phone calls from Clevelanders Thursday, plus calls from New York City and Iowa after her story became known.

Many out-of-towners offered to take the twins for adoption. Mrs. Brooks and her husband, Kenneth, told them politely, "No."

Some offered baby furniture and clothes. Most volunteered to come and help care for the infants, Kendra and Kimberly, born prematurely March 13.

Weather Bad On Salesman

NEW YORK AP -- A poet once sang that "spring came on forever." Whatever became of it this year? In most of the nation, it's forever coming on. "It's bad weather for bikinis," is the way one New York department store executive understated it, as he noted seasonal sales below expectations.

There's been too much rain in Texas, where some of the cotton has to be replanted. Downpours have raised the Ohio River to near flood stage, and the Chicago River became so swollen Thursday that commuter-carrying motorboats couldn't pass under bridges.

In St. Louis, rain has made the grass grow about an inch a day, and caused lawnmowers to blossom prematurely in the hands of homeowners.

But in New Mexico, they're complaining there isn't enough rain.

"Coy spring," as Emerson called it. Ever capricious, this year it's downright unruly.

Upstate New York this week had its heaviest May snowfall on record. And Pittsburgh's 3.1 inches set a record. There's still an inch of snow on the ground in Sheridan, Wyo., and Kansas City on Thursday had one of the latest sleet storms in its history.

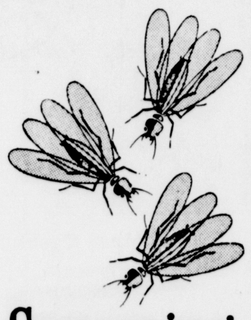

There's been almost a foot of snow since May 1 in one area of New Hampshire and George Hamilton, manager of a ski club there, says:

"We can, in all seriousness, expect good skiing into the middle of June."

Boston's May weather has been 4½ degrees below normal, South Carolina's 15 degrees below normal for this week. Upstate New York reports 8 degrees below the normal for the month, and Pennsylvania has clocked record lows for May. It's gotten as low as 15 above zero in Minnesota. South Dakota temperatures were 17 and 22 degrees below normal for three days this week.

About the only explanation for the state of affairs comes from Joseph Hardin, chief meteorologist at the U.S. Weather Bureau in Richmond, Va. He blames everything on "outbreaks of Canadian air masses."

Besides the cotton in Texas, there's a problem with frost-bitten apples in Virginia and Pennsylvania, tobacco in Kentucky, tomatoes in Ohio and West Virginia, fruit in New York, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Utah, wheat in Minnesota and Kansas. Losses are estimated in the tens of millions.

29 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

THIS WEEK SALUTING THE PENTECOSTAL HOLINESS CHURCH

Rev. and Mrs. Freeman Parker

The Pentecostal Holiness Church began on North St., Sikeston, on Feb., 1956. Rev. Freeman Parker, from Wyatt, Mo., preached his first message to a congregation of 5. Fourteen were present the first Sunday for Sunday School. The Church was organized (or set in order) in fall (Oct. '56) of that year with fourteen members. The Church now has a membership of thirty-four and averaged 82 in Sunday School last year.

Services are still conducted in the same building but quite a few improvements have been made.

It was a large building with just the Sanctuary usable. The remaining part was finished and made into 6 class rooms. Different pews and Bible stand was purchased. Later a furnace was bought. Even though there was no Women's Auxiliary organization at that time, the ladies worked at different projects to raise money to help pay this debt. The young people bought the piano which is used in the Sanctuary.

Later, new siding was put on the building and then new windows.

A parsonage was purchased Nov. 5, at 732 Vernon St. Rev. and Mrs. Freeman Parker and their daughter, Sylvia, reside there. Rev. Parker and his family have lived in Sikeston most of the ten years he pastored here.

The Church now has the "Life Liners", young people's group; Pioneer Girls, Women's Auxiliary and Men's Fellowship organizations besides the regular Church services.

Captain Agress To Verify Claim

SAN FRANCISCO AP - A Russian ship captain, seeking to make engine repairs in San Francisco Bay, agreed Monday night to a Coast Guard inspection to verify his claim that an emergency exists.

Only last Friday, Henry H. Fowler, secretary of the treasury, denied the Chernjakhovsk permission to enter San Francisco Bay to make repairs. Fowler said it was inimical to the best interests of the United States.

The Coast Guard said the ship would be permitted into Drake's Bay north of San Francisco where American inspectors can verify whether piston rings are broken as claimed.

International law requires the granting of sheltered waters to a ship claiming emergency trouble, for as long as necessary to learn whether there actually is a crisis. If there is, the next step would be up to the U.S. State Department, the Coast Guard said.

The Chernjakhovsk is a trawler that has been serving as the mother ship for a Soviet international waters off the coasts of California and Oregon.

It will probably be days before the ship reaches Drake's Bay.

There is bad weather offshore and worse in prospect, the Coast Guard said.

Meanwhile, W. G. Saletic, president of the Congress of American Fishermen, said in a statement that "recent events have caused the CAF to conclude the United States is in great danger."

"Not only is the trawler fleet systematically wiping out our fishery, which may mean the difference between life and death for future American generations, but the Russian ships are now believed to have engaged in even more sinister activities," he declared.

The CAF said the March issue of Navy, the Navy League publication, declared that homing devices of Russian manufacturers are being discovered on the bottom at key spots off the West Coast.

Such devices, the article said, would permit extremely accurate firing of ballistic missiles by submarine or ships.

DREAMING IN THE TWILIGHT

I sit all alone in the twilight
Dreaming of days gone by
Of the happy days of childhood
And the friends that were always nigh

I could feel the soft cool zephr
From out of the golden west
While in my heart I pondered
If today have I done my best?

Have I helped some wayfaring pilgrim
Going down life's weary road
Or by some deed of kindness
Helped to lighten his load?

Have I done some kind deed for my neighbor
And been a friend worthwhile
Or have I given to someone heartbroken
A frown instead of a smile?

Have I yearned for wordly pleasure
Or worked for some selfish award
When just to give a cup of of cold water
Could bring to me a reward?

Have I gone into the home of the needy
With an abundance of things to share
Or have I been neglectful
With never a thought or a care?

If I have, O Lord, please forgive me
And help me to do my best
To bring some storm tossed sailor
Safe into the Haven of rest.

As I travel on down life's pathway
Let me do the best that I can
So they can say when I'm in my casket,
"He was a friend of man."

The executive answered that they employed a simple test. "All applicants are asked to lock their hands behind their heads, elbows in front, and walk to that wall," he said. "If their elbows touch wood first, the interview is over".

Seven New Citizens

CAPE GIRARDEAU - - Seven persons representing six nations became citizens of the United States Tuesday afternoon in naturalization ceremonies in United States District Court here.

The principal address in the ceremony was delivered by A. J. Seier, Cape Girardeau lawyer, who told the new citizens that through generation after generation, "perhaps our sense of history has been dulled. In a sense, your naturalization is a renewal and rededication of the original purpose on which this nation was founded."

Mr. Seier also told the class members that they are a special type of American who have a unique contribution to make.

Judge Roy W. Harper, who presided at the ceremony, also addressed the new citizens, saying, "This nation's gift of citizenship is the greatest honor that can be given to a man or woman."

The new citizens are Robert G. Martin, Cape Girardeau, a State College student and a native of Canada; Mrs. Hisako O. Ryan, a Cape Girardeau housewife from Japan; Mrs. Dimitra Zaharopoulos, a Cape Girardeau housewife from Greece; Mrs. Brigitte C. Niswonger, a Cape Girardeau seamstress from Germany; Mrs. Hermine Simmons, an Oran housewife from Germany; Mrs. Ida E. Myers, a Fredericktown housewife from Czechoslavakia, and Mrs. Kil Cha Israel, a Cape Girardeau housewife from Korea.

Mayor J. Ronald Fischer and Vernon H. Landgraf, president of the Chamber of Commerce, joined Judge Harper after the ceremonies in offering congratulations to the new citizens.

Other participants in the program were the Central High School choir directed by Gene Bryant, a Veterans of Foreign Wars color guard, the Nancy Hunter Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and Girl Scout Troop 47.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Wm. Krudwig, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Cathedral.

In other proceedings in Federal Court Tuesday, a jury began hearing a damage suit case involving an automobile accident, but the case was settled later in the day.

The case was Theodore E. Kelley of Sikeston versus H. A. Campbell of the state of Washington.

Remaining on this week's docket is the case of the Farm Boy Implement Mfg. Co. versus Gates Rubber Co. which will be tried before Judge Harper beginning Thursday morning.

Highway Department Supports 'War On Weeds' With Spraying

The Missouri State Highway Department today became an early enlistee in Governor Warren E. Hearnes' 'War on Weeds' in 1966.

In supporting the governor's proclamation, the Department pointed out that it has a continuous spraying program aimed at improving roadsides' appearance by controlling weeds and brush.

The governor called for a special weed-fighting effort this year because "the damage caused by weeds, directly and indirectly, is adversely affecting Missouri's agricultural economy" and Missouri's natural beauty.

Spraying is not a substitute for mowing, the Department said. But, with mowing, it effectively controls weeds and brush along roadsides. Roadside spraying also prevents weeds from spreading onto adjacent farmland.

With its continuing spraying program, supplemented by a growing landscaping program, the Department is attempting to add safety and beauty to the state's highways as economically as possible.

Chemicals used, said the Department, do not harm animal life if applied by manufacturer's directions. And these recommendations are adhered to strictly. The Department uses only chemicals recommended by the University of Missouri and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Department sprays no herbicides in areas adjacent to susceptible crops, desirable trees and shrubs. And no spraying is done when wind velocity exceeds 10 miles per hour.

The Highway Department and the University of Missouri are now experimenting with additional chemicals and different methods of application in a search for better and more economical weed control.

Also, an experimental mowing-spraying project is being conducted aimed at not only improving roadside appearance but greatly reducing mowing costs and erosion.

RAISIN APPLE SAUCE CAKE
1 cup light or dark raisins
½ cup shortening
1¼ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 cup thick unsweetened applesauce
Mocha icing
2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
Rinse, drain and chop raisins. Cream shortening and sugar together thoroughly. Add well beaten eggs, raisins, walnuts and applesauce. Beat well. Sift flour with salt, spices, soda and baking powder. Blend into first mixture thoroughly. Pour into two greased 9-inch layer cake pans. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. When cool, fill and frost with a Mocha icing or your favorite. Makes 1 (9-inch) layer cake.

FRUITED PORK ROLLS
½ cup light or dark raisins
1½ to 2 lbs. thinly cut pork steak
1½ cups soft stale bread crumbs
1 cup chopped apple
1 tablespoon shortening
1½ teaspoon instant minced onion or 2 tablespoons raw onion
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon thyme
2 tablespoons water
1 cup chicken broth
Rinse and dry raisins. Trim any excess fat from meat; pound meat, then cut into 5 or 6 serving pieces. Combine bread crumbs, raisins, apple, onion, salt, thyme and water. Center each piece of meat with stuffing, roll up and fasten with string. Brown in heated shortening. Add broth, cover and cook slowly until meat is very tender about 45 to 50 minutes. Skim any excess fat from pan drippings; thicken remaining juices slightly with a little cornstarch mixed with water, if desired. Makes 5 or 6 servings.

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

Jerome Eisenberg, antiquarian, numismatist and director of the Royal-Athena Galleries in New York City, has a faith that knows no national boundaries.

In June, 1961, Mr. Eisenberg established the Eisenberg Museum of Egyptian and Near Eastern Antiquities at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. It was given in honor of his parents and dedicated to them because "I wanted to something for them while they were still alive."

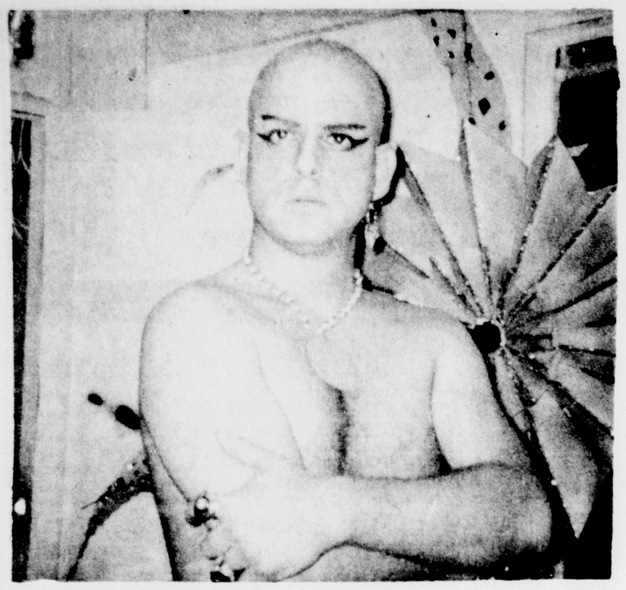

This all came about through Mr. Eisenberg having an earlier chance meeting with Dr. E. J. Vardaman of the Seminary over a case of ancient coins in a museum in Jerusalem. Both being interested in Judeo-Christian antiquities, they formed a firm and lasting friendship. When Mr. Eisenberg decided to give the museum it was only natural that his friend Dr. Vardaman and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary would be the recipient. The archaeological materials in the museum are invaluable to students and the general public interested in the everyday life of the Bible period.

Raised in a devout Jewish home, Mr. Eisenberg bases the strength of his faith on the Golden Rule. From an early age his parents, who were teachers, stimulated his interest in ancient history. His collections of religious antiquities cover all ages and all religions as pictured above. At the top, a 14th century French Saint woodcarving. Center, a North Syrian idol from the Canaanite period over 3000 years old. And bottom, a Siamese bronze Buddha from the 13th century. Dr. Vardaman in his praise of Mr. Eisenberg said, "He is the Renaissance man in the 20th century."

THE PLACE AND POWER OF PREACHING

'The King and I' Is in Popular Demand

Last Performance Saturday at 8 p.m. at Junior High School

"King Phra Meha Mongut, highest super agency in the whole world, universe, King of Siam, etc., invites you to The Royal Palace to see his story of the King and I."

The leading roles of the Sikeston Little Theatre's current production, "The King and I," are by Mrs. Jo Anne Fox as Anna Leonowens and James Moore III as the King of Siam. Patty McMullin, Ralph Duncan, Patsy Mitchell and Buddy Clayton also have important parts.

The play was given Friday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. and Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. and will be given at 8 p.m. Saturday night at the junior high school. The play has been very well accepted by the people of Sikeston and the cast and those behind the stage have been congratulated over and over for their fine work.

Tickets are available at the door. "The King and I" compares with last year's performance of "The Sound of Music," which most people agreed was the finest ever given by the group.

This play has a very large cast and backstage crew. Hope Terrell is the director and is assisted by Ernest Elledge. Patsy Mitchell is the producer and Jo Anne Fox is the musical director. Richard Fussell is the technical advisor and the set designer and Thelma Bush is the choreographer. The rehearsal pianists are Ginny Caskey and Anna Schumacher. The accompanists during the play are Mary and Gordon Beaver and Richard Powell.

Songs in the production are "I Whistle a Happy Tune," "My Lord and Master," "Hello Young Lovers," "A Puzzlement," "Getting to Know You," "We Kiss In A Shadow," "Shall I Tell You What I Think of You," "Western People Funny," "I Have Dreamed," and "Shall We Dance?"

The story of "The King and I" takes place in 1862, when Anna Leonowens, an attractive English widow, arrives with her son in Bangkok, Siam, to become governess to the King's many children. The King is baffled by the modern world but wants to learn and is glad that Anna is doing such a good job with his children.

Mother Will Keep Twins

CLEVELAND AP -- Mrs. Barbara Brooks doesn't have to worry about giving up her twin daughters. She needed help and now has more than she knows what to do with.

"I'm amazed at the way people have come through," said Mrs. Brooks, 28, Thursday.

Mrs. Brooks' arms were crippled by polio in 1951. She can use her hands but can't lift or hold anything weighing more than eight pounds. Her two-month old daughters weigh seven pounds apiece.

She said she would have to give up the twins if she didn't get someone to help.

She received over 80 phone calls from Clevelanders Thursday, plus calls from New York City and Iowa after her story became known.

Many out-of-towners offered to take the twins for adoption. Mrs. Brooks and her husband, Kenneth, told them politely, "No."

Some offered baby furniture and clothes. Most volunteered to come and help care for the infants, Kendra and Kimberly, born prematurely March 13.

Weather Bad On Salesman

NEW YORK AP -- A poet once sang that "spring came on forever." Whatever became of it this year? In most of the nation, it's forever coming on.

"It's bad weather for bikinis," is the way one New York department store executive understated it, as he noted seasonal sales below expectations.

There's been too much rain in Texas, where some of the cotton has to be replanted. Downpours have raised the Ohio River to near flood stage, and the Chicago River became so swollen Thursday that commuter-carrying motorboats couldn't pass under bridges.

In St. Louis, rain has made the grass grow about an inch a day, and caused lawnmowers to blossom prematurely in the hands of homeowners.

But in New Mexico, they're complaining there isn't enough rain.

"Coy spring," as Emerson called it. Ever capricious, this year it's downright unruly.

Upstate New York this week had its heaviest May snowfall on record. And Pittsburgh's 3.1 inches set a record. There's still an inch of snow on the ground in Sheridan, Wyo., and Kansas City on Thursday had one of the latest sleet storms in its history.

There's been almost a foot of snow since May 1 in one area of New Hampshire and George Hamilton, manager of a ski club there, says:

"We can, in all seriousness, expect good skiing into the middle of June."

Boston's May weather has been 4½ degrees below normal, South Carolina's 15 degrees below normal for this week. Upstate New York reports 8 degrees below the normal for the month, and Pennsylvania has clocked record lows for May. It's gotten as low as 15 above zero in Minnesota. South Dakota temperatures were 17 and 22 degrees below normal for three days this week.

About the only explanation for the state of affairs comes from Joseph Hardin, chief meteorologist at the U.S. Weather Bureau in Richmond, Va. He blames everything on "outbreaks of Canadian air masses."

Besides the cotton in Texas, there's a problem with frost-bitten apples in Virginia and Pennsylvania, tobacco in Kentucky, tomatoes in Ohio and West Virginia, fruit in New York, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Utah, wheat in Minnesota and Kansas. Losses are estimated in the tens of millions.

29 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

THIS WEEK SALUTING THE PENTECOSTAL HOLINESS CHURCH

Rev. and Mrs. Freeman Parker

The Pentecostal Holiness Church began on North St., Sikeston, on Feb., 1956. Rev. Freeman Parker, from Wyatt, Mo., preached his first message to a congregation of 5. Fourteen were present the first Sunday for Sunday School. The Church was organized (or set in order) in fall (Oct. '56) of that year with fourteen members. The Church now has a membership of thirty-four and averaged 82 in Sunday School last year.

Services are still conducted in the same building but quite a few improvements have been made.

It was a large building with just the Sanctuary usable. The remaining part was finished and made into 6 class rooms. Different pews and Bible stand was purchased. Later a furnace was bought. Even though there was no Women's Auxiliary organization at that time, the ladies worked at different projects to raise money to help pay this debt. The young people bought the piano which is used in the Sanctuary.

Later, new siding was put on the building and then new windows.

A parsonage was purchased Nov. 5, at 732 Vernon St. Rev. and Mrs. Freeman Parker and their daughter, Sylvia, reside there. Rev. Parker and his family have lived in Sikeston most of the ten years he pastored here.

The Church now has the "Life Liners", young people's group; Pioneer Girls, Women's Auxiliary and Men's Fellowship organizations besides the regular Church services.

The Children And The Daisy

Since the Editor's paragraph concerning his communing with nature by looking at the blossoms and blooms instead of the limbs, he has had great assistance in attempting to increase his interests. We reproduce below the latest contribution toward our flower education:

It began almost seven years ago as a routine fourth-grade assignment at Baywood School in San Mateo, California. The teacher, Mrs. Louise Lytken, suggested an investigation into the reasons why California observes Arbor Day on Luther Burbank's birthday.

The report brought to light the fact that the great plant wizard developed over three thousand varieties of plants, vegetables and fruits. One of his most famous achievements was the Shasta daisy, combining the best qualities of the white, waxy Japanese daisy, the showy, hardy English Michaelmas daisy and the prolific New England daisy.

Coincidentally, two nine year old boys brought identical news clippings relating that Congress was currently considering adoption of a national flower. This caused a flurry of interest; although they were well aware of state flowers the children had not realized there was no national flower.

"Why not the Shasta daisy?" one of the boys said.

"Why not write your congressman?" Mrs. Lytken replied.

The two boys promptly set to work and the teacher, sensing the educational possibilities, suggested the whole class participate. They wrote to their own congressman, J. Arthur Younger of the Eleventh District, in which the children live, and to every senator and many other congressmen.

The reasons they gave for their choice were various and indicative of their personalities: It was created in America by an American. It is easy to draw. It is the flower of no other state or nation. It is a perennial, needing little care. Its colors blend easily anywhere. It is cheerful. It has a gold heart. It is a tough flower, like Americans. It is cheap to grow because it needs no expensive sprays or upkeep of any kind. Its origin is symbolic of the "melting pot"; the first daisies were brought inadvertently from England in sacks of grain to feed General Burgoyne's horses. Most important, they felt, was that it can be grown in each of our fifty states.

Mrs. Lytken erected the empty frame of a jigsaw pin-up map and up went each state as its congressmen and senators replied. In the meantime the children circulated petitions in their neighborhoods and their enthusiasm kept growing. They discovered that Henry Ford had been a great admirer of Burbank and had dismantled the horticulturist's home and reassembled it as part of the Ford Village Museum of early Americans in Dearborn, Michigan. They wrote to the Ford Motor Company for support. They discovered that Mrs. Burbank still lives north of San Francisco in Santa Rosa, where her husband spent much of his life and where some still talk of the day that Mr. Ford and Mr. Henry Firestone came out west to see Mr. Burbank. The trio became very good friends, each recognizing the others' genius in his particular field. Santa Rosa is in the process of planning a new garden park in Burbank's memory. The children wrote to his birthplace in Lancaster, Massachusetts, and received immediate backing.

On June 2, 1959, Congressman Younger introduced "by request" a resoltuion designating the Luther Burbank daisy as the national flower. On June 3 he wrote about it to the children. They were delighted with the news and have kept up a lively campaign ever since. Each year new students take up the cause.

In 1964 the House of Representatives Committee of Libraries and Memorials met again. The school sent Mrs. Lytken to Washington, complete with Shasta daisies and the precious enormous scrapbook filled with letters and clippings supporting their choice. No final decision was made. But the field was narrowed to five: marigold, rose, carnation, corn tassel and the Shasta daisy.

Last year on March 7, the anniversary of Burbank's birthday, the children mailed seeds to the head gardeners of the capital cities of every state, expressing hope that they be planted in Burbank's honor. They received charming letters from well over half. Apparently the gardeners are usually asked for plants and, as a letter from Nevada said, it was a very pleasant surprise to be sent something for a change.

Last year, too, the fourth-graders wrote to the editors of newspapers throughout the country. Each one chose a city of his own. This started a flood of mail from interested people. As in other years all this correspondence has led to friendships with editors, senators and their wives, other students, and with adults in many walks of life.

The M. H. de Young Memorial Museum in San Francisco has had on exhibit a beautiful commemorative plaque made by the children. Soon it will be mounted on a wall at the entrance to the school. It consists of free-form clay daisies attached to a brass plate twenty-four by thirty-six inches. The clay, baked and glazed, is a natural, dark, earthy red, and between the flowers there is the gold of the metal, glowing. Below this will be a separate, simple inscription of four words: "Luther Burbank, Shasta Daisy."

Among the many letters received, perhaps the most thoughtful is one written in 1959 by then-Senator John F. Kennedy. "I must frankly say," he wrote, "that this selection of a national flower is one of the most difficult choices which has come to me during my legislative career. It is very difficult to blend the historic, aesthetic and geographic considerations which must underline a final choice."

The Baywood children feel the Shasta daisy solves many of these problems. Certainly no other finalist meets the qualifications of the Shasta daisy. They realize their flower lacks the backing of strong lobbies; it is of no commercial value; its adoption would benefit no individual group. On the other hand, no other country can claim it, and it can bloom happily in every state in America. So hope is still sky-high at Baywood. They continue to contact as many people as possible.

When will a final decision be made on the national floral emblem? No one knows for certain. When approached on the possible outcome, Mrs. Lytken always says, "Well, no matter what the results are, they have learned so much." That they have. The project has entailed a knowledge of grammar, composition, spelling, geography, science, history, botany, art, music and civics. They have learned the process by which a bill becomes a law. Best of all, they have learned that the American dream really is true. The least of us can be heard.

'The King and I' Is in Popular Demand

Last Performance Saturday at 8 p.m. at Junior High School

"King Phra Meha Mongut, highest super agency in the whole world, universe, King of Siam, etc., invites you to The Royal Palace to see his story of the King and I."

The leading roles of the Sikeston Little Theatre's current production, "The King and I," are by Mrs. Jo Anne Fox as Anna Leonowens and James Moore III as the King of Siam. Patty McMullin, Ralph Duncan, Patsy Mitchell and Buddy Clayton also have important parts.

The play was given Friday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. and Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. and will be given at 8 p.m. Saturday night at the junior high school. The play has been very well accepted by the people of Sikeston and the cast and those behind the stage have been congratulated over and over for their fine work.

Tickets are available at the door. "The King and I" compares with last year's performance of "The Sound of Music," which most people agreed was the finest ever given by the group.

This play has a very large cast and backstage crew. Hope Terrell is the director and is assisted by Ernest Elledge. Patsy Mitchell is the producer and Jo Anne Fox is the musical director. Richard Fussell is the technical advisor and the set designer and Thelma Bush is the choreographer. The rehearsal pianists are Ginny Caskey and Anna Schumacher. The accompanists during the play are Mary and Gordon Beaver and Richard Powell.

Songs in the production are "I Whistle a Happy Tune," "My Lord and Master," "Hello Young Lovers," "A Puzzlement," "Getting to Know You," "We Kiss In A Shadow," "Shall I Tell You What I Think of You," "Western People Funny," "I Have Dreamed," and "Shall We Dance?"

The story of "The King and I" takes place in 1862, when Anna Leonowens, an attractive English widow, arrives with her son in Bangkok, Siam, to become governess to the King's many children. The King is baffled by the modern world but wants to learn and is glad that Anna is doing such a good job with his children.

Wonderful are thy works. —(Psalms 139:14)

We truly become aware of our spiritual sonship to God, when we measure ourselves in wonderment before our Creator. We can sing out with the Psalmist who said, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made." What inventory of ourselves can we make to realize the wondrous work that God has done? Our heads are high, our vision spans the unexplored heavens, and our very souls kneel at awe before the greatness that has authored us.

Form the habit of reacting YES to a new idea. First think of all the reasons why it's good; there will be plenty of people around to tell you why it won't work.

Journalists Reflect Newspaper Times

WITH ONLY ONE MORE EDITION of the Barker to be published, the staff takes a few moments to reflect on the journalistic year.

Although it appeared to be an unsurmountable task, the first edition was published in ample time for distribution.

Our staff has been small compared to some past years, but every staffer has pitched in to make the year a success. Barker duties do not end at 3:30 each day.

Staffers stay late in the afternoon, write stories at night, and plan pictures for early morning classes. Although sometimes called "gossips," the staff tries to bring the student body the school news accurately and on time.

At this time, we would like to thank the numerous people who have helped us produce a newspaper this year. This list consists of administrators who have so kindly supplied us with news of coming events. "Hats off" to the faculty who have so tirelessly answered questions and have been so considerate to the Barker staff.

The many coaches of varsity athletics also deserve our thanks because of their patience with the staff during the athletic events.

The staff would like most of all to thank the student body for the suggestions and helpful criticism that we needed to make the Bulldog Barker a better newspaper. Without you, the student body, there would have been no news or interesting articles.

The final judgment of our success or failure depends on whether you enjoyed reading the paper. In this capacity, we hope we have succeeded.

We also hope that our publication of a school newspaper will afford you many memories in future years.

We wish next year's staff good luck as the '66 staffers say THANKS TO EVERYONE!

Abilities--Talents-- Put Them To Use

DR. JOHN RUFI, in his talk at the Sikeston high school scholarship banquet Monday evening, said that we must all use our talents -- however small and inconsequential they may seem.

He was quite right. If everyone felt that his abilities were not of a great enough magnitude to make any difference to society, our country would be a poor one indeed.

It would be a country inhabited by unhappy people working at jobs below their abilities.

Very few students work up to their ability. In most cases, the students with the most potential and ability tend to coast through their school years without much effort. They do not put their talent to work.

Dr. Rufi said, "I cannot do everything, but I can do something, and feel that I can do a small part in the right direction."

Everyone should do what he can, no matter how small, to better his country. This is especially true at election time.

One vote may seem unimportant at the time, but if everyone felt that way, elections would be disastrous.

Yearbook Staff Prepares Pages For Deadline

With only a few days left before the May 15 yearbook deadline, the Growler staff is rushing to get as many pages as possible ready for the Paragon Press Publishing Company.

Future Teachers' pages were recently completed as pictures were taken of the students as they did their practice teaching.

Honor students were photographed Monday evening at the banquet, and the pages are being designed.

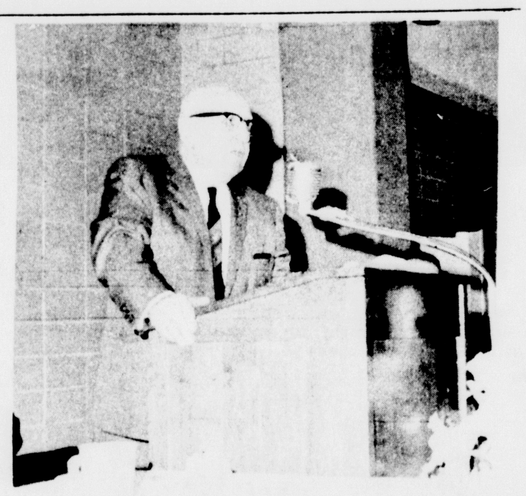

National Forensic League, Honor Society, distributive education, coooperative occupational education, and Barker pages are also ready for shipping.

Pictures of graduation and baccalaureate will be snapped by local photographer Loy Baugher and school photographers Mike Buchanan and Stan McMackins. The staff will work the first week of June to complete the Growler.

As graduation approaches, all work will eventually come to a close. Barker staffers will distribute the final issue of the Bulldog Barker next Friday afternoon.

Next week's issue will be the 30th and final publication and the traditional senior histories will appear in the edition.

Only task then remaining will be the completion of the yearbook pages. Staff will return the Tuesday following graduation to complete the final yearbook pages and will distribute the Growler sometime in August.

DR. JOHN RUFI gives an inspiring talk at the annual honor banquet.

Dr. John Rufi Questions Top 10 Per Cent Students

Using as a theme "These Are Great Days If," Dr. John Rufi, Professor Emeritus of Education at the University of Missouri in Columbia, presented the address for the top 10 per cent students and their parents at the honor banquet Monday evening.

Dr. Rufi remarked, "Sikeston should take high pride in the way its young people are being built. This is a day of revolution -- the most violent earthshaking revolution the world has ever seen."

Dr. Rufi asked three questions and challenged the honor students to answer them.

"Can our educational program adequately prepare us for the rapid changes expected in the future?"

He then cited some of the changes in medicine and transportation that have been brought about recently.

"Can we as a people learn to live with a billion new neighbors?"

"Can we maintain our integrity and freedom as a nation and yet escape the horror of a third world war?"

Dr. Rufi then asked, "What can you do about these problems?"

In closing he used a quote from Kipling to suggest possibly an answer to the question --

"Do the work that lies under your nose

With the tools that lie under your hand."

Approximately 79 students were honored at the annual top 10 per cent banquet. Food was prepared and served by the public school cafeteria personnel, and the cost was underwritten by the Educational Foundation Center and several civic organizations in Sikeston.

Students received merit certificates for their achievement scholastically. Members of the Sikeston board of education presented the awards.

Pop Concert Will Follow Exhibitions

Displays of the year's work will be shown tonight at the annual open house from 6:30-8 o'clock. Pop concert of the Sikeston high school bands will immediately follow the exhibitions.

Students and teachers have prepared notebooks, projects, and displays, the objects of hours of concentration and toil, and these will be formally displayed at 6:30 this evening in the various rooms of the high school.

Immediately after the hour and one-half tours of the individual classrooms, both divisions of the band will present the annual spring concert.

Seating for the public will be on the bleachers set up in front of the outdoor stage.

In the English department, students and teachers will show a culmination of the year's work in the forms of notebooks, themes, posters, and special projects.

In the history department, students will show their work that has been gathered over the past year.

Visitors will find an amazing array of projects in the math and science building.

Juniors will exhibit their American history notebooks to show how they have been instructed to do research work and apply it to classwork.

Some of the numbers that will be presented by the 7:30 band are "Selections from Music Man;" "Pink Panther"; "Theme from Symphony No. 6"; "Bells A-Poppin' "; and "Rockin' Rhythm."

Numbers that will be presented by the 8:30 band are "No Matter What Shape"; "Pharos"; "Prelude to Revelry"; "Second American Folk Rhapsody"; and "Selections of Rodgers and Hart."

Keith Collins, band instructor, will direct both bands for their performances.

Primarily for the public's enjoyment and benefits, the open house is the "red carpet treatment" for Sikeston's citizens. School administrators as well as teachers and students, invite everyone to drop by for a "LOOK AROUND."

Mike Boardman Receives First In State Contest

Senior Mike Boardman won a number one rating in the State Industrial Education Association Awards Contest last Saturday at Columbia.

Mike's entry was in architectural drafting division.

One hundred and twenty boys participated in the state-wide event, entering projects in a variety of categories.

Mike won a number one rating at the Industrial Arts Contest at Cape Girardeau Saturday, April 30, making him eligible to participate in the state contest.

Boardman is presently enrolled in design drafting III, instructed by Pat Jones.

Mike was a member of the 65-66 Bulldog football squad, weight-training program, and is currently a leading trackster.

New President Of Honor Group

Dave Shy was elected president of the Veritas Chapter of the National Honor Society for the '67 school year Monday afternoon.

Other officers are Vicki Schindler, vice-president; Elizabeth Martin, secretary; and Connie Nowell, treasurer.

Honor Society has had various speakers throughout the year. Among them are Mrs. Robert Matthews, the Rev. Bill Spencer, Mrs. Helen Reuber, Sam Harbin, and Charles Matthews, IV.

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick was the guest speaker at the induction ceremony, the highlight of the year's activities.

Thirty-one members were initiated at the annual ceremony. New members composed five per cent of each class.

Membership in the group is based on scholastic standing, service, leadership, and character.

Mrs. Catherine Matthews, social studies instructor, is the sponsor of the organization.

Lions' Club To Present New Award

"Lions Junior Citizen Award" is a new honor to be presented at the awards assembly by Judge Marshal Craig.

One boy and girl from the freshmen class and one boy and girl from the senior class will receive the award.

Nominations were made at the senior high school last Friday, and students voted Tuesday in home room for the final selection.

Qualifications for the award are that the winner be a member of one or more organized school or community activity and that he or she have common courtesy and good citizenship.

All winners will receive a plaque worth $50. Winners from the senior class will receive $50 in cash while freshmen winners will receive $25 in cash. Winners will also be guests at the first Lions Club meeting following the awards assembly.

This award will be one of several distinguished awards presented at next Wednesday's assembly. Assembly is being planned by the student council's assembly committee.

Staffers Hold Picture Sale Next Monday

Pictures anyone! All pictures not used in the Growler will go on sale next Monday afternoon in A-4.

Photos will be scattered around the journalism room for all curious lookers. Many pictures were shot while students weren't looking, and they may be worth 25 or 30 cents for those persons.

All football, basketball, golf, track, and baseball pictures that were not used in the yearbook will be on sale. A few organization pictures, such as the Red Peppers, may be purchased.

All money collected from the picture sale will be used for the yearbook expenses.

Pictures left from last year will also be available if anyone wishes to purchase these.

Seniors Receive Mortarboards, Gowns This Week

Seniors scrambled to the caretorium yesterday afternoon to check out the long-awaited caps and gowns that are evidence of the great day -- Graduation.

Traditional navy blue will be worn again this year. Girls' robes will have white collars, but the boys are asked to wear white shirts and dark ties.

Caps and gowns will be worn on Sunday, May 22, and Friday, May 29.

Tassel and gold charm with "66" written on it may be kept by seniors as memories of the graduation ceremony.

Rental fee was $3.75 and seniors were required to present a receipt of payment before receiving their outfits.

Any seniors who has not yet checked out his cap and gown may do so at 3:30 this afternoon in the cafetorium.

Caps and gowns were received early this year to afford graduates ample opportunity to have photographs made. All robes must be turned in the night after commencement exercises in the same boxes in which they arrived.

Plans Girls' Breakfast

Senior girls who plan to attend college after graduation will be honored with a breakfast Tuesday morning in the home economics room.

Breakfast, which will begin at 7 o'clock and end at 8:30 is sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

The Children And The Daisy

Since the Editor's paragraph concerning his communing with nature by looking at the blossoms and blooms instead of the limbs, he has had great assistance in attempting to increase his interests. We reproduce below the latest contribution toward our flower education:

It began almost seven years ago as a routine fourth-grade assignment at Baywood School in San Mateo, California. The teacher, Mrs. Louise Lytken, suggested an investigation into the reasons why California observes Arbor Day on Luther Burbank's birthday.

The report brought to light the fact that the great plant wizard developed over three thousand varieties of plants, vegetables and fruits. One of his most famous achievements was the Shasta daisy, combining the best qualities of the white, waxy Japanese daisy, the showy, hardy English Michaelmas daisy and the prolific New England daisy.

Coincidentally, two nine year old boys brought identical news clippings relating that Congress was currently considering adoption of a national flower. This caused a flurry of interest; although they were well aware of state flowers the children had not realized there was no national flower.

"Why not the Shasta daisy?" one of the boys said.

"Why not write your congressman?" Mrs. Lytken replied.

The two boys promptly set to work and the teacher, sensing the educational possibilities, suggested the whole class participate. They wrote to their own congressman, J. Arthur Younger of the Eleventh District, in which the children live, and to every senator and many other congressmen.

The reasons they gave for their choice were various and indicative of their personalities: It was created in America by an American. It is easy to draw. It is the flower of no other state or nation. It is a perennial, needing little care. Its colors blend easily anywhere. It is cheerful. It has a gold heart. It is a tough flower, like Americans. It is cheap to grow because it needs no expensive sprays or upkeep of any kind. Its origin is symbolic of the "melting pot"; the first daisies were brought inadvertently from England in sacks of grain to feed General Burgoyne's horses. Most important, they felt, was that it can be grown in each of our fifty states.

Mrs. Lytken erected the empty frame of a jigsaw pin-up map and up went each state as its congressmen and senators replied. In the meantime the children circulated petitions in their neighborhoods and their enthusiasm kept growing. They discovered that Henry Ford had been a great admirer of Burbank and had dismantled the horticulturist's home and reassembled it as part of the Ford Village Museum of early Americans in Dearborn, Michigan. They wrote to the Ford Motor Company for support. They discovered that Mrs. Burbank still lives north of San Francisco in Santa Rosa, where her husband spent much of his life and where some still talk of the day that Mr. Ford and Mr. Henry Firestone came out west to see Mr. Burbank. The trio became very good friends, each recognizing the others' genius in his particular field. Santa Rosa is in the process of planning a new garden park in Burbank's memory. The children wrote to his birthplace in Lancaster, Massachusetts, and received immediate backing.

On June 2, 1959, Congressman Younger introduced "by request" a resolution designating the Luther Burbank daisy as the national flower. On June 3 he wrote about it to the children. They were delighted with the news and have kept up a lively campaign ever since. Each year new students take up the cause.

In 1964 the House of Representatives Committee of Libraries and Memorials met again. The school sent Mrs. Lytken to Washington, complete with Shasta daisies and the precious enormous scrapbook filled with letters and clippings supporting their choice. No final decision was made. But the field was narrowed to five: marigold, rose, carnation, corn tassel and the Shasta daisy.

Last year on March 7, the anniversary of Burbank's birthday, the children mailed seeds to the head gardeners of the capital cities of every state, expressing hope that they be planted in Burbank's honor. They received charming letters from well over half. Apparently the gardeners are usually asked for plants and, as a letter from Nevada said, it was a very pleasant surprise to be sent something for a change.

Last year, too, the fourth-graders wrote to the editors of newspapers throughout the country. Each one chose a city of his own. This started a flood of mail from interested people. As in other years all this correspondence has led to friendships with editors, senators and their wives, other students, and with adults in many walks of life.

The M. H. de Young Memorial Museum in San Francisco has had on exhibit a beautiful commemorative plaque made by the children. Soon it will be mounted on a wall at the entrance to the school. It consists of free-form clay daisies attached to a brass plate twenty-four by thirty-six inches. The clay, baked and glazed, is a natural, dark, earthy red, and between the flowers there is the gold of the metal, glowing. Below this will be a separate, simple inscription of four words: "Luther Burbank, Shasta Daisy."

Among the many letters received, perhaps the most thoughtful is one written in 1959 by then-Senator John F. Kennedy. "I must frankly say," he wrote, "that this selection of a national flower is one of the most difficult choices which has come to me during my legislative career. It is very difficult to blend the historic, aesthetic and geographic considerations which must underline a final choice."

The Baywood children feel the Shasta daisy solves many of these problems. Certainly no other finalist meets the qualifications of the Shasta daisy. They realize their flower lacks the backing of strong lobbies; it is of no commercial value; its adoption would benefit no individual group. On the other hand, no other country can claim it, and it can bloom happily in every state in America. So hope is still sky-high at Baywood. They continue to contact as many people as possible.

When will a final decision be made on the national floral emblem? No one knows for certain. When approached on the possible outcome, Mrs. Lytken always says, "Well, no matter what the results are, they have learned so much." That they have. The project has entailed a knowledge of grammar, composition, spelling, geography, science, history, botany, art, music and civics. They have learned the process by which a bill becomes a law. Best of all, they have learned that the American dream really is true. The least of us can be heard.

Charles Dana Gibson. U.S. artist and illustrator and creator of the famed "Gibson girl," furnished Collier's Weekly with 52 pen and ink drawings for a year and was paid $50,000. This is said to have been the largest commission ever paid to an illustrator. In the late 19th and early 20th century he was known as the delineator of the typical American girl at various occupations, particularly those out-of-doors.

Wonderful are thy works. —(Psalms 139:14)

We truly become aware of our spiritual sonship to God, when we measure ourselves in wonderment before our Creator. We can sing out with the Psalmist who said, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made." What inventory of ourselves can we make to realize the wondrous work that God has done? Our heads are high, our vision spans the unexplored heavens, and our very souls kneel at awe before the greatness that has authored us.

Form the habit of reacting YES to a new idea. First think of all the reasons why it's good; there will be plenty of people around to tell you why it won't work.

BULLDOG BARKER

Annual Open House Is Tonight

Journalists Reflect Newspaper Times

WITH ONLY ONE MORE EDITION of the Barker to be published, the staff takes a few moments to reflect on the journalistic year.

Although it appeared to be an unsurmountable task, the first edition was published in ample time for distribution.

Our staff has been small compared to some past years, but every staffer has pitched in to make the year a success. Barker duties do not end at 3:30 each day.

Staffers stay late in the afternoon, write stories at night, and plan pictures for early morning classes. Although sometimes called "gossips," the staff tries to bring the student body the school news accurately and on time.

At this time, we would like to thank the numerous people who have helped us produce a newspaper this year. This list consists of administrators who have so kindly supplied us with news of coming events. "Hats off" to the faculty who have so tirelessly answered questions and have been so considerate to the Barker staff.

The many coaches of varsity athletics also deserve our thanks because of their patience with the staff during the athletic events.

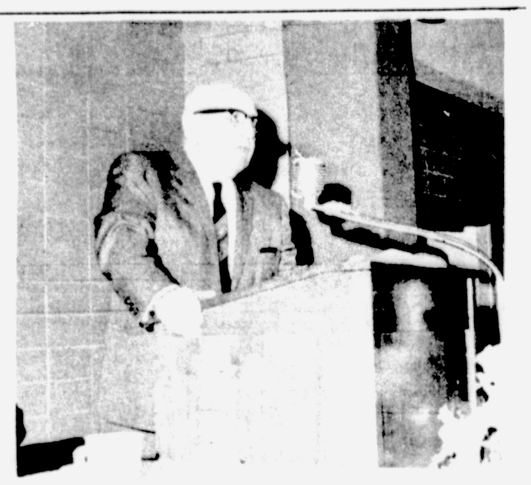

The staff would like most of all to thank the student body for the suggestions and helpful criticism that we needed to make the Bulldog Barker a better newspaper. Without you, the student body, there would have been no news or interesting articles.

The final judgment of our success or failure depends on whether you enjoyed reading the paper. In this capacity, we hope we have succeeded.

We also hope that our publication of a school newspaper will afford you many memories in future years.

We wish next year's staff good luck as the '66 staffers say THANKS TO EVERYONE!

---------- Deidre Harber

DR. JOHN RUFI gives an inspiring talk at the annual honor banquet.

Dr. John Rufi Questions Top 10 Per Cent Students

Using as a theme "These Are Great Days If," Dr. John Rufi, Professor Emeritus of Education at the University of Missouri in Columbia, presented the address for the top 10 per cent students and their parents at the honor banquet Monday evening.

Dr. Rufi remarked, "Sikeston should take high pride in the way its young people are being built. This is a day of revolution -- the most violent earthshaking revolution the world has ever seen."

Dr. Rufi asked three questions and challenged the honor students to answer them.

"Can our educational program adequately prepare us for the rapid changes expected in the future?"

He then cited some of the changes in medicine and transportation that have been brought about recently.

"Can we as a people learn to live with a billion new neighbors?"

"Can we maintain our integrity and freedom as a nation and yet escape the horror of a third world war?"

Dr. Rufi then asked, "What can you do about these problems?"

In closing he used a quote from Kipling to suggest possibly an answer to the question --

"Do the work that lies under your nose

With the tools that lie under your hand."

Approximately 79 students were honored at the annual top 10 per cent banquet. Food was prepared and served by the public school cafeteria personnel, and the cost was underwritten by the Educational Foundation Center and several civic organizations in Sikeston.

Students received merit certificates for their achievement scholastically. Members of the Sikeston board of education presented the awards.

Pop Concert Will Follow Exhibitions

Displays of the year's work will be shown tonight at the annual open house from 6:30-8 o'clock. Pop concert of the Sikeston high school bands will immediately follow the exhibitions.

Students and teachers have prepared notebooks, projects, and displays, the objects of hours of concentration and toil, and these will be formally displayed at 6;30 this evening in the various rooms of the high school.

Immediately after the hour and one-half tours of the individual classrooms, both divisions of the band will present the annual spring concert.

Seating for the public will be on the bleachers set up in front of the outdoor stage.

In the English department, students and teachers will show a culmination of the year's work in the forms of notebooks, themes, posters, and special projects.

In the history department, students will show their work that has been gathered over the past year.

Visitors will find an amazing array of projects in the math and science building.

Juniors will exhibit their American history notebooks to show how they have been instructed to do research work and apply it to classwork.

Some of the numbers that will be presented by the 7;30 band are "Selections from Music Man;" "Pink Panther"; "Theme from Symphony No. 6"; "Bells A-Poppin' "; and "Rockin' Rhythm."

Numbers that will be presented by the 8;30 band are "No Matter What Shape"; "Pharos"; "Prelude to Revelry"; "Second American Folk Rhapsody"; and "Selections of Rodgers and Hart."

Keith Collins, band instructor, will direct both bands for their performances.

Primarily for the public's enjoyment and benefits, the open house is the "red carpet treatment" for Sikeston's citizens. School administrators as well as teachers and students, invite everyone to drop by for a "LOOK AROUND."

Abilities--Talents-- Put Them To Use

DR. JOHN RUFI, in his talk at the Sikeston high school scholarship banquet Monday evening, said that we must all use our talents -- however small and inconsequential they may seem.

He was quite right. If everyone felt that his abilities were not of a great enough magnitude to make any difference to society, our country would be a poor one indeed.

It would be a country inhabited by unhappy people working at jobs below their abilities.

Very few students work up to their ability. In most cases, the students with the most potential and ability tend to coast through their school years without much effort. They do not put their talent to work.

Dr. Rufi said, "I cannot do everything, but I can do something, and feel that I can do a small part in the right direction."

Everyone should do what he can, no matter how small, to better his country. This is especially true at election time.

One vote may seem unimportant at the time, but if everyone felt that way, elections would be disastrous.

It is the responsibility of the educated Americans to put their abilities to work to keep America strong.

Yearbook Staff Prepares Pages For Deadline

With only a few days left before the May 15 yearbook deadline, the Growler staff is rushing to get as many pages as possible ready for the Paragon Press Publishing Company.

Future Teachers' pages were recently completed as pictures were taken of the students as they did their practice teaching.

Honor students were photographed Monday evening at the banquet, and the pages are being designed.

National Forensic League, Honor Society, distributive education, coooperative occupational education, and Barker pages are also ready for shipping.

Pictures of graduation and baccalaureate will be snapped by local photographer Loy Baugher and school photographers Mike Buchanan and Stan McMackins. The staff will work the first week of June to complete the Growler.

As graduation approaches, all work will eventually come to a close. Barker staffers will distribute the final issue of the Bulldog Barker next Friday afternoon.

Next week's issue will be the 30th and final publication and the traditional senior histories will appear in the edition.

Only task then remaining will be the completion of the yearbook pages. Staff will return the Tuesday following graduation to complete the final yearbook pages and will distribute the Growler sometime in August.

Mike Boardman Receives First In State Contest

Senior Mike Boardman won a number one rating in the State Industrial Education Association Awards Contest last Saturday at Columbia.

Mike's entry was in architectural drafting division.

One hundred and twenty boys participated in the state-wide event, entering projects in a variety of categories.

Mike won a number one rating at the Industrial Arts Contest at Cape Girardeau Saturday, April 30, making him eligible to participate in the state contest.

Boardman is presently enrolled in design drafting III, instructed by Pat Jones.

Mike was a member of the 65-66 Bulldog football squad, weight-training program, and is currently a leading trackster.

New President Of Honor Group

Dave Shy was elected president of the Veritas Chapter of the National Honor Society for the '67 school year Monday afternoon.

Other officers are Vicki Schindler, vice-president; Elizabeth Martin, secretary; and Connie Nowell, treasurer.

Honor Society has had various speakers throughout the year. Among them are Mrs. Robert Matthews, the Rev. Bill Spencer, Mrs. Helen Reuber, Sam Harbin, and Charles Matthews, IV.

Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick was the guest speaker at the induction ceremony, the highlight of the year's activities.

Thirty-one members were initiated at the annual ceremony. New members composed five per cent of each class.

Membership in the group is based on scholastic standing, service, leadership, and character.

Mrs. Catherine Matthews, social studies instructor, is the sponsor of the organization.

Lions' Club To Present New Award

"Lions Junior Citizen Award" is a new honor to be presented at the awards assembly by Judge Marshal Craig.

One boy and girl from the freshmen class and one boy and girl from the senior class will receive the award.

Nominations were made at the senior high school last Friday, and students voted Tuesday in home room for the final selection.

Qualifications for the award are that the winner be a member of one or more organized school or community activity and that he or she have common courtesy and good citizenship.

All winners will receive a plaque worth $50. Winners from the senior class will receive $50 in cash while freshmen winners will receive $25 in cash. Winners will also be guests at the first Lions Club meeting following the awards assembly.

This award will be one of several distinguished awards presented at next Wednesday's assembly. Assembly is being planned by the student council's assembly committee.

Staffers Hold Picture Sale Next Monday

Pictures anyone! All pictures not used in the Growler will go on sale next Monday afternoon in A-4.

Photos will be scattered around the journalism room for all curious lookers. Many pictures were shot while students weren't looking, and they may be worth 25 or 30 cents for those persons.

All football, basketball, golf, track, and baseball pictures that were not used in the yearbook will be on sale. A few organization pictures, such as the Red Peppers, may be purchased.

All money collected from the picture sale will be used for the yearbook expenses.

Pictures left from last year will also be available if anyone wishes to purchase these.

Seniors Receive Mortarboards, Gowns This Week

Seniors scrambled to the cafetorium yesterday afternoon to check out the long-awaited caps and gowns that are evidence of the great day -- Graduation.

Traditional navy blue will be worn again this year. Girls' robes will have white collars, but the boys are asked to wear white shirts and dark ties.

Caps and gowns will be worn on Sunday, May 22, and Friday, May 29.

Tassel and gold charm with "66" written on it may be kept by seniors as memories of the graduation ceremony.

Rental fee was $3.75 and seniors were required to present a receipt of payment before receiving their outfits.

Any seniors who has not yet checked out his cap and gown may do so at 3:30 this afternoon in the cafetorium.

Caps and gowns were received early this year to afford graduates ample opportunity to have photographs made. All robes must be turned in the night after commencement exercises in the same boxes in which they arrived.

Plans Girls' Breakfast

Senior girls who plan to attend college after graduation will be honored with a breakfast Tuesday morning in the home economics room.

Breakfast, which will begin at 7 o'clock and end at 8;30 is sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

"Who's Who," a clever farce in one act, was thoroughly enjoyed by several hundred persons at the high school gym Friday night. Cast members were: Robert Dempster, Emery Rose, Earl Kelly, Margaret Whidden, and Marie Mainord.

This is a cat tale and a true one, too. Al Daily of the Sikeston Seed Store, keeps a grey cat about the store to keep the mice down. Thursday the cat found a mouse trap in the neighborhood that had a mouse in it, and brought trap and the mouse into the store. Mr. Daily took the mouse from the trap for the cat and the owner of the trap can have same by calling at the store.

Franciska Seelinger Parks, (Fannie,) daughter of the late Jacob and Franciska Phiefer Seelinger, was born in Chilicothe, Ohio, March 26, 1863. She died in Sikeston in the Sikeston General Hospital on May 6, at the age of 83 years, 1 month and 10 days.

W. J. Page of Vanduser, celebrated his 75th birth anniversary on May 12, with a dinner at the home of his son, Marshall Page, with whom he makes his home.

Mrs. H. E. Reuber and Miss Myra Tanner entertained Wednesday night for Miss Margaret Clymer with a handkerchief shower and dessert bridge at the home of Mrs. Reuber. Miss Clymer is to be married to Norman Rothenheber of Brentwood on May 28 at the St. Francis Xavier Church in this city. On Friday evening Miss Camille Klein will entertain with a dinner party at the Dunn Hotel. Mrs. Jack Lancaster and Miss Lucille Stubblefield will entertain with a kitchen shower and dessert bridge on Saturday at the home of Mrs. Lancaster.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness.(II Timothy 3:16).

PRAYER: Our Father, help us to make our homes places where we honor Thee by reading and obeying Thy Word. May we not be hearers only, but doers of the Word. We pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

To the Editor:

Why I prefer the Daily Standard as my source of information for buying all family needs. Because it gives full details of where and when the bargains are and also each day that there are specials it gets out in plenty of time for us rural folk to take advantage. We prefer the Standard to all other papers.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I promised myself if it happened again I would sit down and write to you. And it did, so here I am.

Why does a telephone customer get precedence over the customer who has taken the time and trouble to go to the store? I left my office today for what I thought would be a quick trip. Just as I was preparing to hand the saleswoman the money, the telephone rang. She turned around without so much as a word and left me standing there while she became involved with a customer who had dozens of questions. With every passing minute my blood - pressure mounted. I tapped my foot for 12 minutes.

I very nearly walked out of the store but I decided it would be bitting off my nose to spite my face. If I left I would have to start all over again some place else and perhaps not find what I wanted.

Please don't tell me to boycott the store that treats its customers this way. They ALL do. Just tell me what to do about it. -- COLUMBIA, S. C.

Dear Columbia: Leaving a customer to answer the telephone is more than bad business. It is bad manners. It's as rude as turning your back on a friend in mid-sentence to speak to an intruder.

The sales person who MUST answer the phone should ask his customer before he leaves him if he will please wait one moment while he takes the number so he can return the call.

The next time you are abandoned this way I hope you WILL walk out. Then write a letter to the store president and tell him why the store lost the sale and your good will.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of seven children and I have seen a good bit of what goes on in the world so please don't think I'm naive. What happened yesterday gave me the shock of my life.

When the delivery boy returned the family dry cleaning he handed me some papers that had been found in our son's coat pocket. (Karl is 17.) Among the papers was a note from a girl. Karl and the girl are not going steady. He just happens to see this girl more often than any of the others. The girl was pleading with Karl to take her to a motel so they could pretend they were married. From the way she wrote it sounds as if she has been trying to get him to do this for quite some time.

Please tell me if I should remain silent and act as if I know nothing. Or should I let Karl know I saw the note and have a talk with him? --LANCASTER MOTHER

Dear Mother: Get a copy of my book, "Ann Landers Talks To Teen - Agers About Sex." You don't have to buy it. Your public library has a copy. Hand the book to Karl when you return the papers to him. Explain how you happen to have the papers and tell him you have read everything.

Make it plain you have complete confidence in him and that you know he's not going to do anything foolish. Tell him you want to make sure he has plenty of information since it is obvious that some of the girls in his crowd are in pretty pathetic shape emotionally and are ignorant as well.

Do you feel ill at ease. . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Exhibit A-8 You are hereby notified that a complaint in condemnation has heretofore been filed in the office of the Clerk of the above named court in an action to condemn a perpetual easement for the erection, operation, and maintenance of a line or lines of poles, towers, or other structures, wires, cables, and fixtures for the transmission of electric current. The easement taken is subject to existing easements for roads, railroads, canals, ditches, pipelines, telegraph lines, telephone lines, and other electric lines. The easement taken includes the perpetual right of ingress and egress, including the right to use, for the purposes of said easement, any and all right, title, and interest of the owner in and to any streets, roads, avenues, alleyways, and right-of-way upon, abutting, or in any way appertaining to the premises over which said easement passes; includes the perpetual right to remove buildings and improvements, except fences and except such buildings and improvements as are appurtenant to existing easements; includes the perpetual right to trim, cut down, remove, and destroy any trees which may interfere with or endanger said transmission line or lines or the maintenance or operation thereof; includes the perpetual right to set all necessary guy and brace poles and anchors and attach all necessary guy wires thereto; and includes the perpetual right to assign, license, permit, or otherwise agree to the sole or joint use or occupancy of such facilities by any other person, association, or corporation for the transmission of electric power and energy; reserving, however, to the owner the right to cultivate, use and occupy said property for any purpose consistent with the rights and privileges herein taken and which will not interfere with or endanger the construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said easement, but said right of cultivation, use and occupancy shall not include the erection of any structure on, or permission to the public to use any part of, said easement, or any requirement for the payment of damages for any injury to crops, trees, vines, seedlings, or improvements on said property which occurs as a result of and during construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said line or lines. In the event of permanent abandonment of said easement, the title and interest of the United States and its assigns shall vest in the owners of the underlying fee interest in said property at the time of abandonment. The properties over which these easements are to be taken are described in Exhibits A-6, A-7, and A-8. The authority for the taking is under the Act of August 1, 1888, 25 Stat. 357, as amended, 40 U.S.C. sec. 257 (1964); the Act of February 26, 1931, 46 Stat. 1421, 40 U.S.C. sec. 258a-258f (1964); Section 5 of the Act of December 22, 1944, sec. 5, 58 Stat. 890, 16 U.S.C. sec. 825s (1964); and the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1966, 79 Stat. 1096 (1965). You are further notified that if you have any objections or defense to the taking of your property you are required to serve upon plaintiff's attorney at the address herein designated within twenty days from and after May 27, 1966, an answer identifying the property in which you claim to have an interest, stating the nature and extent of the interest claimed and stating all your objections and defenses to the taking of your property. A failure so to serve an answer shall constitute a consent to the taking and to the authority of the court to proceed to hear the action and to fix the just compensation and shall constitute a waiver of all defenses and objections not so presented. You are further notified that if you have no objection or defense to the taking you may serve upon plaintiff's attorney a notice of appearance designating the property in which you claim to be interested, and thereafter you shall receive notice of all proceedings affecting the said property. You are further notified that at the trial on just compensation, whether or not you have answered or served a notice of appearance, you may present evidence as to the amount of the compensation to be paid for the property in which you have any interest and you may share in the distribution of the award of compensation.

Charles Dana Gibson. U.S. artist and illustrator and creator of the famed "Gibson girl," furnished Collier's Weekly with 52 pen and ink drawings for a year and was paid $50.000. This is said to have been the largest commission ever paid to an illustrator. In the late 19th and early 20th century he was known as the delineator of the typical American girl at various occupations, particularly those out-of-doors.

Andrew J. Murphy

Chosen Director

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. -- Andrew J. Murphy was chosen assistant director of the activities and special events service of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

He became a professional leader in scouting in 1941.

The National Capital Council, Washington D. C., in 1948 selected him as a district scout executive, and promoted him to assistant Scout executive.

In 1964 he directed the National Jamboree arena shows at Valley Forge, Pa., before an audience of nearly 80,000. He prepares literature on district-wide activities and conducts training courses for professional and key volunteer Scout leaders. He also gives leadership to national activities.

MEDICARE PROBLEM—Mrs. Mildred Overfelt of San Jose, Calif., has her difficulties with Medicare. She signed up for the program after repeated urging, but now can't convince the government she's as old as she says she is—94. It's a matter of principle, not need. The wealthy woman has donated to the public land worth some half-million dollars for parks and hospitals.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, May 13, the 133rd day of 1966. There are 232 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1607, Jamestown, Virginia, the first permanent English settlement in America, was founded by 105 colonists.

On this date

In 1846, the United States declared war against Mexico.

In 1865, the last engagement of the Civil War occurred at Palo Pinto, Tex.

In 1915, the United States protested the sinking of the liner Lusitania by a German submarine.

In 1940, Prime Minister Winston Churchill made his historic statement: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

In 1942, the president of the Philippines established provisional headquarters of the Philippine government in Washington.

Ten years ago--A high Soviet official announced that all Soviet interment camps would be abandoned with 18 months.

Five years ago -- President Joseph Kasavubu of the Congo announced he would reconvene the Congolese Parliament.

One year ago--An eight-day truce was broken when the new government of the Dominican Republic launched an attack on the rebels.

New Kroger Store Manager

Mr. Jim Bevill, Northwest Zone Manager for The Kroger Company, has announced the appointment of Mr. Arthur Ziegler as Store Manager of the local Sikeston Kroger Store. Mr. Ziegler replaces Mr. Harold Nicholas who has been transferred to the Kroger Store in Poplar Bluff as Manager.

Mr. Ziegler is a graduate of St. Mary's High School in Cape Girardeau, Missouri.

He started with The Kroger Co. in 1943 and has worked in different positions throughout the Missouri Kroger Stores; his last position as store manager in Dexter before being transferred.

Mr. Ziegler and his wife, Anita have two children: Randy Lee and Mrs. Ada Ree Boyles. The Zieglers' are planning to move to Sikeston in the near future and will attend St. Savier Catholic Church.

Certain paintings are called miniatures because, originally, they were painted with minium, which is native cinnabar or red lead. The paint, not the size, was responsible for the name.

"Who's Who," a clever farce in one act, was thoroughly enjoyed by several hundred persons at the high school gym Friday night. Cast members were: Robert Dempster, Emery Rose, Earl Kelly, Margaret Whidden, and Marie Mainord.

This is a cat tale and a true one, too. Al Daily of the Sikeston Seed Store, keeps a grey cat about the store to keep the mice down. Thursday the cat found a mouse trap in the neighborhood that had a mouse in it, and brought trap and the mouse into the store. Mr. Daily took the mouse from the trap for the cat and the owner of the trap can have same by calling at the store.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness. (II Timothy 3:16).

PRAYER: Our Father, help us to make our homes places where we honor Thee by reading and obeying Thy Word. May we not be hearers only, but doers of the Word. We pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

To the Editor:

Why I prefer the Daily Standard as my source of information for buying all family needs. Because it gives full details of where and when the bargains are and also each day that there are specials it gets out in plenty of time for us rural folk to take advantage. We prefer the Standard to all other papers.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I promised myself if it happened again I would sit down and write to you. And it did, so here I am.

Why does a telephone customer get precedence over the customer who has taken the time and trouble to go to the store? I left my office today for what I thought would be a quick trip. Just as I was preparing to hand the saleswoman the money, the telephone rang. She turned around without so much as a word and left me standing there while she became involved with a customer who had dozens of questions. With every passing minute my blood - pressure mounted. I tapped my foot for 12 minutes.

I very nearly walked out of the store but I decided it would be bitting off my nose to spite my face. If I left I would have to start all over again some place else and perhaps not find what I wanted.

Please don't tell me to boycott the store that treats its customers this way. They ALL do. Just tell me what to do about it. -- COLUMBIA, S. C.

Dear Columbia: Leaving a customer to answer the telephone is more than bad business. It is bad manners. It's as rude as turning your back on a friend in mid-sentence to speak to an intruder.

The sales person who MUST answer the phone should ask his customer before he leaves him if he will please wait one moment while he takes the number so he can return the call.

The next time you are abandoned this way I hope you WILL walk out. Then write a letter to the store president and tell him why the store lost the sale and your good will.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of seven children and I have seen a good bit of what goes on in the world so please don't think I'm naive. What happened yesterday gave me the shock of my life.

When the delivery boy returned the family dry cleaning he handed me some papers that had been found in our son's coat pocket. (Karl is 17.) Among the papers was a note from a girl. Karl and the girl are not going steady. He just happens to see this girl more often than any of the others. The girl was pleading with Karl to take her to a motel so they could pretend they were married. From the way she wrote it sounds as if she has been trying to get him to do this for quite some time.

Please tell me if I should remain silent and act as if I know nothing. Or should I let Karl know I saw the note and have a talk with him? --LANCASTER MOTHER

Dear Mother: Get a copy of my book, "Ann Landers Talks To Teen - Agers About Sex." You don't have to buy it. Your public library has a copy. Hand the book to Karl when you return the papers to him. Explain how you happen to have the papers and tell him you have read everything.

Make it plain you have complete confidence in him and that you know he's not going to do anything foolish. Tell him you want to make sure he has plenty of information since it is obvious that some of the girls in his crowd are in pretty pathetic shape emotionally and are ignorant as well.

Do you feel ill at ease. . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

NOTICE OF CONDEMNATION
TO: UNKNOWN OWNERS
TRACT NO. 3011-31, Perpetual Easement. A strip of land 100 feet in width within the S1/2 SW1/4 of Section 21, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point within said S1/2 SW 1/4, which point is 653.5 feet North and 198.9 feet East of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 573.5 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 5.60 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-6. TRACT No. 3011-33, Perpetual Easement. All that portion of a strip of land 100 feet in width in the S1/2 SW1/4 of Section 22, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point on the West boundary of said S1/2 SW 1/4, which point is 487.0 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 397.0 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 6.05 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-7. TRACT NO. 3011-34, Perpetual Easement. All that portion of a strip of land 100 feet in width in the S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4 of Section 22, Township 26 North, Range 13 East of the 5th Principal Meridian, Scott County, Missouri, the centerline of which is described as follows, to wit: Passing through a point on the West boundary of said S1/2 S1/2 SE1/4, which point is 397.0 feet North of the Southwest corner thereof; thence Easterly through a point on the East boundary thereof, which point is 308.0 feet North of the Southeast corner thereof, containing 6.05 acres, more or less. Exhibit A-8 You are hereby notified that a complaint in condemnation has heretofore been filed in the office of the Clerk of the above named court in an action to condemn a perpetual easement for the erection, operation, and maintenance of a line or lines of poles, towers, or other structures, wires, cables, and fixtures for the transmission of electric current. The easement taken is subject to existing easements for roads, railroads, canals, ditches, pipelines, telegraph lines, telephone lines, and other electric lines. The easement taken includes the perpetual right of ingress and egress, including the right to use, for the purposes of said easement, any and all right, title, and interest of the owner in and to any streets, roads, avenues, alleyways, and right-of-way upon, abutting, or in any way appertaining to the premises over which said easement passes; includes the perpetual right to remove buildings and improvements, except fences and except such buildings and improvements as are appurtenant to existing easements; includes the perpetual right to trim, cut down, remove, and destroy any trees which may interfere with or endanger said transmission line or lines or the maintenance or operation thereof; includes the perpetual right to set all necessary guy and brace poles and anchors and attach all necessary guy wires thereto; and includes the perpetual right to assign, license, permit, or otherwise agree to the sole or joint use or occupancy of such facilities by any other person, association, or corporation for the transmission of electric power and energy; reserving, however, to the owner the right to cultivate, use and occupy said property for any purpose consistent with the rights and privileges herein taken and which will not interfere with or endanger the construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said easement, but said right of cultivation, use and occupancy shall not include the erection of any structure on, or permission to the public to use any part of, said easement, or any requirement for the payment of damages for any injury to crops, trees, vines, seedlings, or improvements on said property which occurs as a result of and during construction, operation, inspection, maintenance, reconstruction, control, and use of said line or lines. In the event of permanent abandonment of said easement, the title and interest of the United States and its assigns shall vest in the owners of the underlying fee interest in said property at the time of abandonment. The properties over which these easements are to be taken are described in Exhibits A-6, A-7, and A-8. The authority for the taking is under the Act of August 1, 1888, 25 Stat. 357, as amended, 40 U.S.C. sec. 257 (1964); the Act of February 26, 1931, 46 Stat. 1421, 40 U.S.C. sec. 258a-258f (1964); Section 5 of the Act of December 22, 1944, sec. 5, 58 Stat. 890, 16 U.S.C. sec. 825s (1964); and the Public Works Appropriation Act, 1966, 79 Stat. 1096 (1965). You are further notified that if you have any objections or defense to the taking of your property you are required to serve upon plaintiff's attorney at the address herein designated within twenty days from and after May 27, 1966, an answer identifying the property in which you claim to have an interest, stating the nature and extent of the interest claimed and stating all your objections and defenses to the taking of your property. A failure so to serve an answer shall constitute a consent to the taking and to the authority of the court to proceed to hear the action and to fix the just compensation and shall constitute a waiver of all defenses and objections not so presented. You are further notified that if you have no objection or defense to the taking you may serve upon plaintiff's attorney a notice of appearance designating the property in which you claim to be interested, and thereafter you shall receive notice of all proceedings affecting the said property. You are further notified that at the trial on just compensation, whether or not you have answered or served a notice of appearance, you may present evidence as to the amount of the compensation to be paid for the property in which you have any interest and you may share in the distribution of the award of compensation.

Montgomery; Mrs. Sells To Have Joint Trial

MEMPHIS -- A ruling for a joint - trial was made here yesterday for Joel Montgomery, wealthy Sikeston businessman and banker, and Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, who are charged with traffic death indictments stemming from an October 14, 1959 traffic accident.

Criminal Court Judge Perry refused to separate the two cases.

Don Owens, representing Montgomery, did not oppose the consolidation, but attorneys for Mrs. Sells did.

Their trial is presently scheduled for May 23.

In Sikeston this morning, Montgomery said, "It is of n consequence that we are to be tried together. We did not oppose it."

Montgomery ended a four-year extradition battle Feb. 16 when he stole the march on Shelby County, Tenn., law enforcement authorities and the press by surrendering himself to the Shelby County sheriff's office in Memphis.

Montgomery presently has a $2,000 bond posted in Tennessee for his appearance May 23.

He was indicated on the manslaughter charge in 1962 in connection with the death of Mrs. Glenda Wiles, 24.

Three Memphis law enforcement officers were left waiting at the courthouse in Benton Feb. 16. Montgomery had been scheduled to make a Circuit Court appearance, instead he flew to Memphis.

Mrs. Sells was indicted on a charge of second degree murder in the traffic death. She was found guilty of a reduced charge of manslaughter. The state supreme court later ordered another trial.

WW1 Veterans, Auxiliary Holds State Meeting

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. AP -- The Veterans of World War I of Missouri and its auxiliary will hold their 12th annual state convention today through Sunday at Cape Girardeau.

Registration, a memorial service and dinner will be today. Joseph S. Withington of DeSoto, Mo., the department commander, will call the convention to order Saturday morning. Col. Herbert M. Houston of Washington, the national commander, will be the principal speaker at a dinner Saturday night.

The business session will be Sunday morning to elect and install new offices.

Invitations were sent to 117 barracks. Charles T. Berry of Cape Girardeau and Peter N. Keller of Chaffee, remaining members of the Camp Cape Spanish American War Veterans, also will be guests.

Airplane Builder At Kennett is Prize-Winner

KENNETT, Mo. AP -- Kennett now has a prize-winning airplane builder in its midst.

A Pitts Special, built two years ago by Dick Rice, owner of the Bootheel Flying Service, will be competing next August in the World Aerobatics Competition in Moscow, Russia.

Rice built his small Pitss during his spare time and flew it himself. He later sold it to Bob Herendeen, Santa Monica, Calif., senior captain for Trans World Airlines. Herendeen placed third in the National Aerobatic Contest in Reno, Nev., flying the plane made by Rice.

Herendeen also will fly Rice's Pitts Special in the world contest as part of the U. S. aerobatic team. The trip will not be government subsidized, all members of the team paying their own expenses.

With a top competitor already to his credit, Rice has just completed another plane. This one is built on the same plan as the other, but Rice has stretched the wing span about 15 inches and extended the fuselage by about a foot. He has hiked the horsepower from 150 to 180. The small craft is stressed for 9,000 pounds of pressure.

Rice, who is widely known in the southern part of the country for his mechanical ability and love of antique planes, completed the latest craft in about five months, working in his spare time. It has been certified as airworthy by the Federal Aviation Agency.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

LARGEST STATE CLAIMS SMALLEST BABY ON RECORD

When the Green family of Anchorage, Alaska, celebrates the first birthday of its baby girl, it will be celebrating a miracle as well. For their baby weighed in at an incredible 1 pound, 10-3/4 ounces at birth -- possibly the smallest baby to survive in the history of the United States.

According to Dr. Alan Homay, who delivered the infant, she was born three months prematurely to a 39 year-old mother who had had 25 previous pregnancies, with six living children. Born at 4:00 a.m. on July 22, 1965, at the Presbyterian Hospital here, the tiny girl measured only 11-1/2 inches. At eight months she weighed 11 pounds, 9 ounces, stood 25-1/4 inches tall, and was normal except for a small umbilical hernia and an outward crossing of her left eye.

According to medical experts only one percent of all premature babies are below 2 pounds -- and not many of them survive undamaged.

CHILD SPACING IMPORTANT FOR MOTHERS & CHILDREN

Here are some of the ways that an unplanned-for baby, or inadequately spaced babies, can affect various members of a family, according to Prof. Emma N. Plank of Western Reserve University's School of Medicine:

"Some mothers who try to conceal their anxiety and concern about pregnancy may struggle with anger and guilt and even with impulses to hurt their babies, others manage by being overly solicitous and overprotective . . ."

A new pregnancy too soon after the birth of a previous child may affect the mother's ability to loosen her very close attachment to the existing child or may make her push it away too suddenly. "For the mental health of infant, mother, and the baby to come, one would wish for a long enough period without a new pregnancy to allow the mother to feel that her first child has moved toward independence before the next one needs her full attention."

When the needs of an infant and then the rivalry between two small children absorb too much of a mother's emotional energy, preventing her from behaving as a person in her own right and not only as a mother, there may be trouble ahead for the smooth functioning of the family.

NEITHER A BORROWER NOR A LENDER BE -- OF COSMETICS

If you're just aching to borrow your friend's eyeliner pencil -- resist the temptation. The American Medical Association's Section on Cutaneous Health and Cosmetics warns that a serious eye disease -- trachoma -- can be transmitted from person to person by just such a practice as using another person's eye cosmetics.

As a matter of simple personal hygiene, you should neither borrow nor lend your comb or brush, lipstick, powder puff or other cosmetics or tools that come into intimate contact with your skin or eyes.

Don't ever slam a door; you might want to go back.

NOBODY BEATS THE GOOD GUYS TO THE DRAW

The Dodge Boys will back competition down every time... and especially now during their Sales Stampede.
How do the good guys shoot holes in competition? With a car that's great . . . a deal that can't be beat . . . and a way of backin' up their words that makes competition head for the hills. That's what the Dodge Rebellion is all about. See the good guys in white hats today and cut your Dodge out of the herd.
(You can tell they're good guys—they all wear white hats)

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, May 13, the 133rd day of 1966. There are 232 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1607, Jamestown, Virginia, the first permanent English settlement in America, was founded by 105 colonists.

On this date

In 1846, the United States declared war against Mexico.

In 1865, the last engagement of the Civil War occurred at Palo Pinto, Tex.

In 1915, the United States protested the sinking of the liner Lusitania by a German submarine.

In 1940, Prime Minister Winston Churchill made his historic statement: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

In 1942, the president of the Philippines established provisional headquarters of the Philippine government in Washington.

Ten years ago--A high Soviet official announced that all Soviet interment camps would be abandoned with 18 months.

Five years ago -- President Joseph Kasavubu of the Congo announced he would reconvene the Congolese Parliament.

One year ago--An eight-day truce was broken when the new government of the Dominican Republic launched an attack on the rebels.

New Kroger Store Manager

Mr. Jim Bevill, Northwest Zone Manager for The Kroger Company, has announced the appointment of Mr. Arthur Ziegler as Store Manager of the local Sikeston Kroger Store. Mr. Ziegler replaces Mr. Harold Nicholas who has been transferred to the Kroger Store in Poplar Bluff as Manager.

Mr. Ziegler is a graduate of St. Mary's High School in Cape Girardeau, Missouri.

He started with The Kroger Co. in 1943 and has worked in different positions throughout the Missouri Kroger Stores; his last position as store manager in Dexter before being transferred.

Mr. Ziegler and his wife, Anita have two children; Randy Lee and Mrs. Ada Ree Boyles. The Zieglers' are planning to move to Sikeston in the near future and will attend St. Savier Catholic Church.

Certain paintings are called miniatures because, originally, they were painted with minium, which is native cinnabar or red lead. The paint, not the size, was responsible for the name.

MEDICARE PROBLEM— Mrs. Mildred Overfelt of San Jose, Calif., has her difficulties with Medicare. She signed up for the program after repeated urging, but now can't convince the government she's as old as she says she is—94. It's a matter of principle, not need. The wealthy woman has donated to the public land worth some half-million dollars for parks and hospitals.

Montgomery; Mrs. Sells To Have Joint Trial

MEMPHIS -- A ruling for a joint - trial was made here yesterday for Joel Montgomery, wealthy Sikeston businessman and tanker, and Mrs. Betty Lou Sells, who are charged with traffic death indictments stemming from an October 14, 1959 traffic accident.

Criminal Court Judge Perry refused to separate the two cases.

Don Owens, representing Montgomery, did not oppose the consolidation, but attorneys for Mrs. Sells did.

Their trial is presently scheduled for May 23.

In Sikeston this morning, Montgomery said, "It is of n consequence that we are to be tried together. We did not oppose it."

Montgomery ended a four-year extradition battle Feb. 16 when he stole the march on Shelby County, Tenn., law enforcement authorities and the press by surrendering himself to the Shelby County sheriff's office in Memphis.

Montgomery presently has a $2,000 bond posted in Tennessee for his appearance May 23.

He was indicated on the manslaughter charge in 1962 in connection with the death of Mrs. Glenda Wiles, 24.

Three Memphis law enforcement officers were left waiting at the courthouse in Benton Feb. 16. Montgomery had been scheduled to make a Circuit Court appearance, instead he flew to Memphis.

Mrs. Sells was indicted on a charge of second degree murder in the traffic death. She was found guilty of a reduced charge of manslaughter. The state supreme court later ordered another trial.

WW1 Veterans, Auxiliary Holds State Meeting

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. AP -- The Veterans of World War I of Missouri and its auxiliary will hold their 12th annual state convention today through Sunday at Cape Girardeau.

Registration, a memorial service and dinner will be today. Joseph S. Withington of DeSoto, Mo., the department commander, will call the convention to order Saturday morning. Col. Herbert M. Houston of Washington, the national commander, will be the principal speaker at a dinner Saturday night.

The business session will be Sunday morning to elect and install new offices.

Invitations were sent to 117 barracks. Charles T. Berry of Cape Girardeau and Peter N. Keller of Chaffee, remaining members of the Camp Cape Spanish American War Veterans, also will be guests.

Services will be held in the Wyatt Pentecostal church Saturday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Leroy Thornton, officiating. Burial will be in the Spencer Heights cemetery, Mounds, Ill., with McMikle Funeral Home, Charleston, in charge of arrangements.

Airplane Builder At Kennett is Prize-Winner

KENNETT, Mo. AP -- Kennett now has a prize-winning airplane builder in its midst.

A Pitts Special, built two years ago by Dick Rice, owner of the Bootheel Flying Service, will be competing next August in the World Aerobatics Competition in Moscow, Russia.

Rice built his small Pitss during his spare time and flew it himself. He later sold it to Bob Herendeen, Santa Monica, Calif., senior captain for Trans World Airlines. Herendeen placed third in the National Aerobatic Contest in Reno, Nev., flying the plane made by Rice.

Herendeen also will fly Rice's Pitts Special in the world contest as part of the U. S. aerobatic team. The trip will not be government subsidized, all members of the team paying their own expenses.

With a top competitor already to his credit, Rice has just completed another plane. This one is built on the same plan as the other, but Rice has stretched the wing span about 15 inches and extended the fuselage by about a foot. He has hiked the horsepower from 150 to 180. The small craft is stressed for 9,000 pounds of pressure.

Rice, who is widely known in the southern part of the country for his mechanical ability and love of antique planes, completed the latest craft in about five months, working in his spare time. It has been certified as airworthy by the Federal Aviation Agency.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

LARGEST STATE CLAIMS SMALLEST BABY ON RECORD

When the Green family of Anchorage, Alaska, celebrates the first birthday of its baby girl, it will be celebrating a miracle as well. For their baby weighed in at an incredible 1 pound, 10-3/4 ounces at birth -- possibly the smallest baby to survive in the history of the United States.

According to Dr. Alan Homay, who delivered the infant, she was born three months prematurely to a 39 year-old mother who had had 25 previous pregnancies, with six living children. Born at 4:00 a.m. on July 22, 1965, at the Presbyterian Hospital here, the tiny girl measured only 11-1/2 inches. At eight months she weighed 11 pounds, 9 ounces, stood 25-1/4 inches tall, and was normal except for a small umbilical hernia and an outward crossing of her left eye.

According to medical experts only one percent of all premature babies are below 2 pounds -- and not many of them survive undamaged.

CHILD SPACING IMPORTANT FOR MOTHERS & CHILDREN

Here are some of the ways that an unplanned-for baby, or inadequately spaced babies, can affect various members of a family, according to Prof. Emma N. Plank of Western Reserve University's School of Medicine:

"Some mothers who try to conceal their anxiety and concern about pregnancy may struggle with anger and guilt and even with impulses to hurt their babies, others manage by being overly solicitous and overprotective . . ."

A new pregnancy too soon after the birth of a previous child may affect the mother's ability to loosen her very close attachment to the existing child or may make her push it away too suddenly. "For the mental health of infant, mother, and the baby to come, one would wish for a long enough period without a new pregnancy to allow the mother to feel that her first child has moved toward independence before the next one needs her full attention."

When the needs of an infant and then the rivalry between two small children absorb too much of a mother's emotional energy, preventing her from behaving as a person in her own right and not only as a mother, there may be trouble ahead for the smooth functioning of the family.

NEITHER A BORROWER NOR A LENDER BE -- OF COSMETICS

If you're just aching to borrow your friend's eyeliner pencil -- resist the temptation. The American Medical Association's Section on Cutaneous Health and Cosmetics warns that a serious eye disease -- trachoma -- can be transmitted from person to person by just such a practice as using another person's eye cosmetics.

As a matter of simple personal hygiene, you should neither borrow nor lend your comb or brush, lipstick, powder puff or other cosmetics or tools that come into intimate contact with your skin or eyes.

Don't ever slam a door; you might want to go back.
